Deaths Tied To Drink

OTTAWA (CP) — About 38 per cent of 1,725 persons killed in traffic accidents in five provinces in 1973 were driving while impaired by alcohol, says a recent research study.

The study by the Traffic Injury Research Foundation of Canada says an examination of coroners' reports indicates about 18 per cent of the drivers killed were severely impaired.

A driver is impaired under law when the concentration of alcohol in the bloodstream is 0.08 per cent and there is severe impairment above 0.20 per cent, says the study report.

The report, released Thursday, was compiled from coroners' reports in British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and New Brunswick.

Male drivers accounted for 89 per cent of driver deaths and young men between 16 and 19 "tend to be the most heavily over-represented, accounting for almost 20 per cent of all driver fatalities."

Impairment stood out particularly among drivers aged 30 to 34 — 52 per cent of drivers killed in this age group were impaired.

Only six per cent of drivers killed over the age of 65 were impaired.

FAHRENHEIT FAREWELL

One of the changes brought on by the French Revolution was metric measurement. The system originated in France in 1795 and has gradually spread around the world.

Among the last bastions of resistance was North America but now Canadians are saying farewell to feet, inches, pounds, ounces and Fahrenheit and saying hello to metres, centimetres, kilograms, litres and Celsius.

City Jail Incident Ends As Inmates Win Demands

Times Staff

Twenty inmates barricaded themselves in the gymnasium at Wilkinson Road jail overnight and held two corrections officers captive for 9½ hours to protest prison conditions.

Order was finally restored at 5:30 a.m. when jail officials agreed to meet prisoner demands negotiated by Victoria lawyer Doug Christie.

Neither of the hostages — Jim Waldron, 25, and John McDonald, 50 — were harmed. The inmates released McDonald at 1:45 a.m. in exchange for Christie but kept Waldron to the end.

Christie, in a voice crackling with tension and fatigue, read out the prisoners' demands over Victoria radio station CJVI at 5 a.m.

The demands included a guarantee the inmates would be allowed to return to their regular cell-blocks, would not be placed in isolation cells, and that any charges arising from the incident would be "punished by outside court."

The inmates also demanded the media be allowed to take pictures of isolation cells for "publication in a conspicuous place," and that jail officials promise to provide "proper medical attention" for drug addicts in the future.

A half-hour later, as television cameras whirred and lights shone on the gym door, 18 of the inmates came out in single file and walked quickly toward the main prison building.

Seconds later, Christie emerged handcuffed to inmate Paul Desjarlais, 30, followed by Waldron and a guard handcuffed to the last inmate, Dennis Wilson, 23.

Surrounded by members of the news media, Christie, Desjarlais, Wilson and the guard then walked to the front of the prison.

Christie read again the prisoners' demands. He said his encounter with the inmates was a peaceful one and at no time saw violence used or any indication the men were armed with a weapon.

At the front door the two inmates were searched for weapons—none were found—and the group entered the main reception area.

Speaking to reporters, Desjarlais said he and cell-mate, Wilson, both awaiting trial on a variety of matters, had planned to escape Thursday night during an exercise session in the gym. They were among a group of 20 inmates.

Desjarlais said that at about 8 p.m. he tried to break down the metal-covered door to the gym, but was unsuccessful. He said he looked out through a keyhole and saw a guard on a hill with a shotgun in his hand, so he and Wilson gave up the escape plan and instead attacked the two officers supervising gym activities.

Both officers were bound and placed in a small storage room.

While more than a dozen heavily armed police officers from Saanich and Victoria converged on the jail, the inmates inside the gym advised they were protesting the prison conditions.

They demanded five bottles of demerol, a pain-killer drug.

Jail director Hal McGillivray said he "turned them down flat."

They then demanded five bottles of morphine. Again McGillivray turned them down.

McGillivray said Desjarlais

B.C. Pen Prisoners To Go East

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Three prisoners at the British Columbia penitentiary released two guards they were holding hostage Thursday night after officials agreed to their demand for transfer to a Dorchester, N.B., prison.

The prisoners, two of them convicted murderers involved in a hostage-taking siege at the prison last June, overcame three guards about 8 a.m. local time Thursday.

One guard, Donald Crawford of nearby Surrey, was released just before 6 p.m. A prison spokesman said it appeared to be an act of good faith on the part of the prisoners.

The other two guards were released at about 10:45 p.m. The prisoners also surrendered five bone-sharpened table knives and a bottle believed to contain acid.

The last two guards freed were William Ford, 48, of New Westminster and Vincent Jarvis, 21, of nearby Langley. They were reunited with their families after being checked by prison doctors.

The prisoners, Ardy Bruce, 27, Dwight Lucas, 21, and Dwight Gaye Lowe, 20, spent the night in RCMP cells in neighboring Burnaby.

They were to be transferred to Dorchester penitentiary later today and are to be flown back to Vancouver for court appearances on charges laid in their previous confrontations with prison authorities.

The last two guards were released after prison director Dragan Cernetic read on television a list of the prisoners' demands.

Among the demands:

—Hot and cold water in the isolation cells;

—Recreation yard privileges for segregated prisoners;

—Medical examination of a hernia condition they said Lucas was suffering and of a jawbone graft Bruce received after being shot in the jaw in June when that hostage siege ended;

—Procedural changes in a prison court that deals with discipline;

—The dropping of outstanding discipline charges, if any, against the three men and

Scrap Dairy Subsidies, Gov't Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should scrap $266 million worth of annual subsidies to the dairy industry and revamp industrial milk policies within the next 10 years, the food prices review board said Thursday.

Condemning the lack of a coherent federal dairy policy, the board said:

"Policies are established on an ad hoc basis, that emphasizes short-term political considerations at the expense of coherent, long-run economic and social factors."

Federal dairy policies during the last year were attacked: "The subsequent patchwork quilt of amendments and sometimes contradictory changes in some of the important elements of federal dairy policy have made a mockery of the government's assertion that it has a long-term dairy policy."

The report recommends continued provincial control of fluid milk marketing but says marketing boards in some provinces "are utilizing their near-monopoly powers to provide producers, at the expense of consumers, with a higher rate of return than is necessary."

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board today attacked farm marketing boards as the major villain in rising food prices but predicted price increases may be cut almost in half to seven per cent this year.

In its final report, the board also took another swipe at government indifference to reforming food policies and said politicians encouraged attacks on the "relatively minor villains" of business and industry while ignoring sharp increases in farmer incomes over the last three years.

The board, created in May, 1973, and absorbed by the anti-inflation board last October, also said its existence "provided a convenient target for politicians to attack, thereby avoiding having to face up to the real issues."

The prediction for over-all food price increases of seven per cent this year was based on three assumptions, normal weather conditions and no major crop failures, continuation of present government policies and anti-inflation program success in reducing increases in labor and supply costs and profit margins.

The seven-per-cent level would compare with a food price jump of 12.9 per cent in 1975. Food prices rose 14.6 per cent in 1973 and 16.3 per cent in 1974.

Food prices this year will be greater in the first six months, reflecting seasonal rises in fruit and vegetable prices, the board said.

The board continued attacks begun in earlier reports on the producer-controlled farm marketing board system as inefficient and representing a conflict of interest because it allows farmers to control production levels and to increase prices for their own benefit.

The farmers gained more than any other group from the food price surge in the 1973-75 period but escaped attention due to strong farmer lobbies with the government.

Welfare Work Talk Set

SURREY (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm will meet Manpower Minister Robert Andras in the next couple of weeks to work out a provincial plan to force welfare recipients to take available jobs or lose their benefits.

Ron Stew, with the Surrey welfare office, said Wednesday such a job-finding program has been in effect in this municipality 20 miles south of Vancouver for the last five years and the provincial program will be laid out along similar lines.

Stew said his office has been working closely with the provincial department in setting up the program, which finds jobs through the federal Manpower office and direct contact with the business community.

He said that in the time the office has administered the program, 6,000 potential welfare recipients have been able to find work, with only two refusing and losing their benefits.

Give Us Back Our Dead—IRA

DUBLIN (UPI) — Irish policemen held back screaming Irish Republican Army supporters today and took the body of IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg away by helicopter for a private funeral instead of the martyr's service planned by the IRA.

"Give us back our dead," screamed dozens of IRA backers who clawed and punched in an unsuccesful attempt to get through the police cordon at Shannon Airport, where the government had kept Stagg's body overnight.

With policemen holding back the attackers, the body was loaded onto a helicopter and flown to Hollimount, about 50 miles away, for a private funeral.

No one from the Stagg family was present at the funeral service in Stagg's home town. Service was conducted by the parish priest as armored cars ringed the church.

IT'S A BAR-GAIN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The man who made a million by selling pet rocks has revealed his secret.

He told a market researchers luncheon Thursday to "drink a lot of scotch, Go to the Sirloin & Grog. Drink at the bar. And don't forget your ideas when you leave."

At least that formula worked for Gary Dahl, 37, San Jose, Calif., who remembered his idea when he went home last April and was a millionaire by Christmas with his sale of pet rocks.

"I made a million bucks in 10 months and I didn't spend a penny on market research," he said.

'Oust Trudeau for Freedom'...6,000 Cheer Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — The national Progressive Conservative leadership convention opened Thursday night with a blaze of color, a pitch for party unity and a call to arms against the Trudeau government.

"If freedom is to survive, the Trudeau government must be ousted," declared John Diefenbaker as the four-day convention opened with a rousing tribute to the 80-year-old former prime minister, ousted himself as leader in 1967.

An estimated 6,000 delegates, alternates, observers and onlookers stood in the banner-decked Ottawa Civic Centre and cheered as Diefenbaker delivered what he said probably would be his last speech to a national party leadership convention.

All candidates whisked through busy schedules as delegates from across the country swarmed into downtown hotels.

The air was crackling with anticipation by the time the gavel came down for opening ceremonies at the bustling Civic Centre. But the tension and party infighting that marred the last leadership convention in 1967 were missing.

Diefenbaker, still The Chief to loyal supporters, struck a note for party unity when he told delegates from a flood-lit podium that "Stanfield was right" in his conduct of the last federal election campaign.

The gesture, greeted by a roar of applause, cooled wounds remaining from when Diefenbaker lost to Stanfield in a bitter factional struggle. Stanfield, who has failed in three elections to carry the Conservatives to power, smiled in his seat as the remark was made.

But the overriding theme of the opening focused on the Trudeau government and Conservative hopes to defeat it in the next election.

"Our job here is vital," said Michael Meighen, national party president.

"People want an alternative to what is happening; someone they can believe in, someone who will call upon the best in all of us."

Meighen said the convention is crucial to the party and its future.

He asked delegates to select a leader capable of leading the country into a new political era.

Outside the Civic Centre, hospitality suites boomed in hotels as candidates crisscrossed the city to meet delegates and hold news conferences.

9½-Hour Wilkinson Jail Drama Over

then asked for a negotiator and named Christie.

Ironically, Christie had gone to the prison shortly after the incident began to interview a client but he was turned away. Officials managed to contact him and he reached the jail at about 10:30 p.m.

Negotiations at first were conducted over a telephone connected to the gym. Finally, at 1:45 a.m., the inmates agreed to release McDonald if Christie would join them in the gym to work out their demands.

As he read the statement prepared by Desjarlais, Christie was choked with emotion.

"I hope . . . .I believe there are thousands of people who would not like to see people dehumanized," the statement began. It went on to describe both isolation cells and the regular cells in the jail — which inmates have to share two to a cell — as "dehumanized treatment."

Desjarlais said he had spent 12½ months in a solitary confinement cell at the B.C. Pen, but compared with the isolation cell at Wilkinson Road, "that one was paradise."

He noted the B.C. Supreme Court had ruled the B.C. Pen segregation unit was "cruel and unusual punishment."

Desjarlais said he had been placed in the isolation cell five days last week.

BACON

Deputy director of the jail, Harry Bacon, said Desjarlais had been "insolent" and had attempted to attack a staff member.

"We don't like to use the isolation cells, but we have to maintain discipline," Bacon said.

As the drama unfolded more than a dozen newsmen, barred from entering the prison grounds, waited in front of the main gate and grew stiff from the freezing cold. After Christie entered however, a radio reporter and press photographer were allowed in and remained inside the jail until the seige was over. At that point, the other members of the press, whose number had dwindled to six, were invited in also.

Following the reading of Desjarlais' statement, newsmen went on a tour of the isolation wing, the cell-block and dining area, fulfilling one of the demands the inmates had made.

Desjarlais, still handcuffed to Christie led the way.

In the isolation wing Desjarlais stood in one of the six solid concrete cells which each measure five feet wide, seven feet long and nine feet high. Reporters examined the tiny slit in the two-inch thick door, the barren floor, the 60-watt light behind a wire mesh that barely illuminated the interior.

Desjarlais said all an inmate is given is a thin mattress, a blanket and a pot. He's confined inside 24 hours a day until his punishment is over.

Then the group went to his and Wilson's regular cell, number 12 in a line on the second tier of the east wing. Reporters passed inmates, for the most part two to a cell, sleeping in chain-hinged bunk beds or standing idly behind the bars. The only furniture in the cells was one or two-hard-backed chairs. One cell had a small table. The toilet was without seat. Desjarlais said his didn't flush.

As the group passed, men in the tier below started calling up "Hey, come down and see how I live."

"There isn't even a toilet in my cell," an anonymous inmate called out.

Later, McGillivray said he agreed the conditions were anything but satisfactory.

"We've asked for changes in this institution for the past 12 years," he said. "But nothing has been forthcoming."

He said he would like to see the men separated so they could have their own cell, but that wasn't possible. There isn't the staff, he said.

If we had 10 more officers, well, that would be a different matter, he said.

With the extra staff the west wing, which is largely unused, could be re-opened.

There are 78 inmates currently in the institution, the majority of whom are awaiting trial.

Commenting on the "unfortunate" incidents in both Saanich and new Westminister, Attorney-General Garde Gardom today praised corrections officials for bringing about a "successful result."

"Both of these very unfortunate incidents have terminated very satisfactorily," he said.

"I think the province owes a great debt of gratitude to the many people who worked so very, very hard and with great dedication."

himself in "a fightin mood" as he greeted supporters throughout a busy day.

Alberta rancher Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot, made his rounds with a clutch of relatives and Gary Buck, a Nashville cousin who belts out country and western songs.

"Jack is the only good Conservative we've had," said a local entertainer at one bar stop.

Brian Mulroney adopted a high profile but a few clouds began to drift over his campaign.

The first was when Diefenbaker directed a subtle blow at him by telling delegates "tradition" had it that party leaders ususlly have long parliamentary experience before rising to that position.

Mulroney, who has never held electoral office, said "I don't know, I don't think so" when asked if he thought the remark was directed at him.

The second cloud is in the form of rumblings that a coalition of some other candidates is forming to block Mulroney, said to be near the top of the pack, when the voting starts.

"I don't think there will be a gang-up against me," he said when a reporter asked him about reports that Wagner, Paul Hellyer and Sinclair Stevens would work to steer their delegates away from him if they were edged out during the balloting.

He repeated earlier statements that there would be no "kingmakers" at this convention because the delegates, the "grass roots" would be the kings this time around.

The 95 Tory MPs are widely split on their first-ballot choices for the leadership, but Hellyer and Wagner are the top choices.

A Canadian Press survey of the caucus shows Hellyer, the former federal Liberal cabinet minister who jumped to the Conservative party in 1971, with 19 first-ballot choices and Wagner, a former Quebec Liberal justice minister, with 14 backers.

Hellyer, a comparative latecomer to the race, also has strong second-choice support among many western MPs.

Strong caucus support also was evident for party financial critic Stevens, with 11, and outspoken Horner with 10.

Trailing in caucus backers are Flora MacDonald and Mulroney with three each, John Fraser, Patrick Nowlan and Joe Clark with two each and James Gillies with one Heward Grafftey has no identifiable supporters in caucus.

There were also 18 MPs who in interviews would not reveal their choices and two others were unavailable for comment.

the weather

Rain associated with an advancing Pacific disturbance fell on the north coast overnight while a few showers persisted along the south coast. In the Interior skies were relatively clear in most regions under a ridge of high pressure. The disturbance accompanied by snow will move into the central Interior this morning and reach the southern Interior tonight. The rain will spread southward along the coast and reach the lower mainland this afternoon. A few showers will continue along the coast on Saturday with snowflurries in the central Interior. Occasional rain or mixed rain and snow will be present in the southern Interior. Little change in the present temperature pattern is expected.

HOSTAGE DRAMA AT PEN

that no charges be laid in Thursday's siege;

—That Jim Hogan, a Vancouver lawyer who was one of three negotiators requested by the prisoners, inform Lucas' mother of the events.

Cernetic agreed to comply with most of the demands after conferring by telephone with Andre Therrien of Ottawa, federal penitentiaries commissioner.

Cernetic told reporters at a late-night news conference the prisoners' demands for discipline court changes could not be met because they involved changes in both legislation and in prison regulations.

After seizing the guards, the prisoners demanded and received demerol, a pain-killing drug, and a radio. In mid-afternoon, they asked for the three negotiators — Hogan, who had represented Lucas; Ted Seifred, a lawyer who had represented Lowe; and Patricia Winfield ,a University of British Columbia law student, who was representing Bruce.

Reporters and photographers were kept off the penitentiary grounds by order of Cernetic.

Asked how the three had obtained the knives, Mr. Cernetic said: "They have to eat and cut their meat."

Mr. Cernetic said he believed the cause of Thursday's incident was the result of "the sensationalism of the June incident."

Last June, Lucas and Bruce and Claire Wilson, 27, held 15 hostages until they were overpowered by a group of guards.

Mary Steinhauser, 32, a classification officer, was killed and Bruce was injured by shots fired by the guards.

Earlier Thursday, the prisoners' union committee, a group formed to assist prisoners, said Lowe told Mr. Seifred by telephone Wednesday that guards were abusing him and insulting him and two other prisoners.

All three prisoners have been appearing in court weekly on various charges, Bruce and Lucas on charges relating to the June hostage incident, and Lowe on charges of attempted murder of a prison guard in October, 1975.

Bruce is serving a life sentence for the killing of night-club dancer Jackie Lampen in her Burnaby home April 19, 1970.

Bruce also was sentenced to three terms of 10 years for holding up two banks and a supermarket.

And in December, 1974, Bruce was sentenced to 15 years for attempted murder of a guard at the federal penitentiary at Prince Albert, Sask., and was returned to the B.C. penitentiary.

Lucas has been at the B.C. penitentiary since his conviction in June, 1974, for the axe murder of Michael Raymond Hurd, 26.

Lowe, who has an extensive criminal record, was sentenced to two years for possession of a dangerous weapon last September. In December he was sentenced to three years for two robberies.

He also is charged with attempting to murder penitentiary guard George Thomas Piper, who was stabbed several times last Oct. 16.

LONDON (Reuter) — Rape victims will remain anonymous and be protected from courtroom prying into their sex lives in a bill approved in principle by Britain's House of Commons.

MLAs' Mail Privilege Cancelled by Socreds

The Social Credit government has cancelled mailing privileges which allowed each MLA to send letters to all his constituents twice a year.

All three opposition parties were quick to condemn the move, saying communication with constituents is vital to the democratic process and the Socreds are trying to muzzle the opposition.

A letter to party caucuses Thursday from Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said the twice-yearly mailings to constituents have been discontinued.

The allowance for mailings was given by the NDP last year and it is estimated if every MLA took up the opportunity it would cost about $100,000 a year.

"I would ask that you use the mail only for writing to your constituents on a personal basis, as well as writing to others in conjunction with your position as a member of tht legislative assembly," said McCarthy.

"I would appreciate your co-operation in this respect and know you will understand the financial situation we face," she said.

NDP leader Dave Barrett called the move "cheap, petty, frightened politics" and said the Socreds are trying to stop MLAs from talking to their constituents.

The NDP in government never turned down any requests for assistance from the opposition, said Barrett.

Troy leader Scott Wallace said it's "another indication of the way in which the government wants to restrict the opposition in its legitimate job."

The move might be attractive to the public who wish the government to cut back on expenditures, said Wallace, but it is really an attempt to "muzzle" the opposition.

Trucking Commission Appointments 'Political'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Jack Kempf (SC-Omineca) said Thursday the government should investigate obvious political appointments to the Motor Carrier Commission.

The commission was established by the former New Democratic Party to regulate trucking in British Columbia.

Kempf said the commission chairman, Paul Sabatino, who is being paid $300 a day plus expenses, was an NDP candidate in the Vancouver riding of Point Grey in 1972. He also said Sabatino's expenses have been $50,000 in the last year.

He also said another commissioner, William Franklin, was former premier Dave Barrett's campaign manager in 1972, and that he is earning $175 a day plus expenses.

Air Mishap Review Board Slated

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than two years of discussion, the transport department announced Wednesday it will set up an interim aircraft accident review board effective March 1.

The board's mandate is to review transport department investigations of aircraft accidents "to ensure the investigations are complete, objective and free of any possible conflict of interest," a news release said.

The review board is the first step towards the establishment of an independent transportation accident investigation board, which was approved in principle by cabinet last April.

Officials said Wednesday the investigation board is still two or three years away from coming into existence.

PSAC Branch Settles

OTTAWA (CP) — A tentative one-year agreement has been reached between the federal government and 859 communications equipment operators, the Public Service Alliance of Canada said Thursday.

The agreement provides pay increase of between 11 and 12 per cent.

Under the old contract, pay rates ranged between $8,250 and $13,881. If employees ratify the agreement, salaries will range between $9,186 and $15,995.

A Park Is a Park Is . . .

No decisions have been made yet, but Mines Minister Tom Waterland's recent comments (mining in parks "isn't a bad thing") and a mines department report urging deletion from Strathcona Park of a spectacularly beautiful alpine area called the Big Interior Mountain are alarming warning signals.

There is also before the mines department an application by Cream Silver Mines Ltd. (which has a working arrangement with Western Mines) to operate a mine in the Cream Lake area of the park, also in the southern part, which the Sierra Club opposes. While Western Mines is situated on claims staked more than 60 years ago (and thus might be considered to have some prior rights in the park), these new proposals are on particularly shaky ground.

None of the claims in this southern part of the park date from before 1964, many of them as recent as 1970.

The New Democratic Party did some stupid things, but its parks policy wasn't one of them. Adding millions of acres of new parks, and enshrining them in legislation (which only the legislature may alter, not cabinet) with the existing ones, putting an end to claim-staking in provincial parks—these were actions which met with widespread approval, and probably still do, regardless of what happened on Dec. 11 last year.

Vancouver Islanders, particularly, remember the broken promises over the Western Mines operation. We were told first that no tailings would go into Buttle Lake, then when that was reversed, the company said the tailings wouldn't pollute the lake. Then came research reports from independent scientists showing that heavy metal levels in the water and in the fish of the lake had risen drastically. Lead content in fish between 1966 and 1969 rose by up to 1,000 per cent.

The pollution levels now in Buttle Lake—upon which Campbell River depends for its water supply—may not be lethal, but then half a century ago nobody thought twice about pulp mills dumping mercury wastes into river systems either. The problem has shown up only now.

To be fair, the mines department report quoted in the Times on Wednesday recommends the protection of Della Lake and spectacular Della Falls, not their deletion, but these two beauty spots are very close to the group of eight mining claims on Big Interior Mountain, (within two miles in fact) and it may be exceedingly difficult to preserve them once the mining companies go in. If a mine is developed there, more than the mere two-thirds of a square mile comprising the actual claims will be required.

The mining claims are at a higher elevation than the lake and the falls. To get in there, a road may have to go right through the area recommended for protection. And what happens to the mine wastes?

And Big Interior Mountain is not the only area of the scenic southern part of Strathcona Park which is threatened. There is the aforementioned Cream Silver Mines Ltd., application to operate a mine at Cream Lake, only three miles north of Della Falls. Other claims exist at Beauty Lake, a mile south of the falls.

Mistakes by former administrations—seen today in hindsight—allowed these claims to be staked. A certain legal entitlement goes along with these claims. But it's a problem that can be surmounted, by outright purchase, by trades, by one means or another. We believe as the Sierra Club does, that the time has come to draw the line.

A Bad Taste . . .

Extravagant pension schemes afforded two former B.C. Hydro executives by the NDP government appear to be the appetizer in a lavish financial extravaganza Social Credit is preparing for the weekend. The entree will be a "state of the province" message to be telecast tonight. Dessert, as Premier Bill Bennett has informed us, will be the Clarkson Gordon inquiry. The whole dinner is designed to give British Columbians severe psychological indigestion which can be blamed on latent socialist bacteria.

If the fare grows tedious through repetition, the Socreds have an interesting first course. Pension plans of $10,000 per year for life for the two Hydro employees who served little more than two years are excessive. It is also interesting to note that the NDP never went out of its way to publicize the pension schemes. The order-in-council appointing the men only said pension plans would be arranged.

These men were earning $48,000 and $38,000 respectively. It is questionable whether such high incomes warrant lavish pension schemes. Is a person not able to save on such salaries? The former government might counter that generous terms are necessary to attract a high quality of person to public life. Certainly, Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit political appointees have received lavish sinecures in private industry after government terms. Should a labor party not use the same system in reverse? Perhaps.

It all boils down to another painful example of the NDP's lack of financial responsibility. The Bennett administration has every right to insert the needle deeply on this one. In future, pension details should be listed in orders-in-council. Amounts should conditional on length of service.

MAURICE WESTERN

When Free Vote Isn't Free

OTTAWA — The coming vote on the capital punishment bill promises to be even more confused than its predecessors. There is always a certain amount of confusion because MPs do not agree as to the nature of their duties. Some feel that their proper role is to mirror on division the views of their constituents, suppressing their personal opinions if necessary. They busy themselves with surveys and their votes reflect the results. Why, in these circumstances, they bother with speeches is not very clear. The record of past debates suggests that every member feels a compulsion to justify himself on this particular issue.

One problem with the theory is that it would make parliamentary government very difficult if it were applied at all consistently. The popularity of cabinet ministers tends to rise and fall. What should a government member do if he is persuaded at some point, either by the public opinion samplers or by his own surveys that the hostiles in the country are in a majority? Should he promptly ally himself with the opposition? Or should he ignore the theory and be guided by his own judgment of the merits of contending policies?

Opinions Change

The traditional view, uncomplicated by notions which have seeped in from abroad, was given classical expression in a famous address by Edmund Burke, to the electors of Bristol who sent him to parliament. This is, simply, that a member owes his constituents his own best judgment, that he is not bound to surrender his conscience to their opinions. If they disagree with his judgments, they can, of course, dismiss him at the next election.

In practical terms, the older theory has a good deal to commend it. For in fact, no one can foresee at election time what issues are likely to arise in the course of a parliament. Nor indeed can cabinets when they address themselves to the contents of speeches from the throne. Thus an MP cannot go to Ottawa fully instructed. Moreover, opinions shift quickly and surveying is almost as hazardous as weather forecasting in the Ottawa area.

Whatever view one takes, the fact is that members are deeply divided on the rather basic matter of their duties as parliamentarians.

The problem has been further complicated this year, however, by the guidelines which the government has set out for its own supporters. There is to be one rule for the ministers, who are to support the legislation, and another for government backbenchers who are to vote according to conscience or opinion soundings, but in either case free of the whip.

This is clearly a departure from the practice of recent years. For some time it has been the view that moral issues, such as capital punishment, should not be treated as party matters. The government should take the responsibility of preparing and submitting legislation but ministers are not, in these special cases, bound to support it. Thus in 1967 two very prominent members of the Pearson cabinet, Arthur Laing and Judy LaMarsh, voted for retention and against the bill.

PARLIAMENT
. . . finally voting on noose

Trudeau is an abolitionist, as are a number of front-ranking Conservatives, such as John Diefenbaker, Robert Stanfield, Jed Baldwin, Gordon Fairweather and others. Speaking recently on the west coast, the prime minister said that he would do his best to persuade the House of Commons to pass the bill. In a letter to certain members, however he has defended the so-called "free vote" on the ground that, if the whips were on, Liberals would in any case vote against the measure in sufficient force to bring about the government's defeat and an undesirable election.

It is possible that this rather curious letter was not intended to surface. For how can Trudeau hope to persuade while suggesting that the bill, to which Ministers are committed, has very little hope of passage?

As a general rule, government members are reluctant to break ranks even in respect to amendments which would not be considered matters of confidence. But the implication of the letter seems to be that many Liberals are so awed by the strength of retentionist sentiment in the country that they would bring on a general election rather than support the government's legislation.

While the issue, without a question, is one which arouses deep emotions, there will probably be wide agreement with Trudeau that it would be a most undesirable one for election purposes. Apart from the likelihood that a mid-term election would be widely resented, there is the obvious objection that the issue divides both major parties. (Even the NDP divided on the last round.) It would be astonishing if a political realignment was forced by an issue which until now, has been considered peripheral in Canadian public life. How, in any case, in this time of so many economic concerns, could the issue clearly be separated from all the others which would certainly arise in public discussion?

Precedent of 1967

There may be no completely satisfactory method of dealing with the matter in parliament. Trudeau takes exception to the popular term "free vote" since it does carry the unwelcome implication that other votes are not free. But party discipline is, and always was, a reality in Ottawa. If it is not to prevail, why — in view of the 1967 precedent — worry about one or two dissidents in parliament? If what was then done was irregular, at least it was accepted and it occurred to no one in either side that the spectre of a general election hung over a vote on capital punishment in the House of Commons.

Conscience, or Constituents?

It ought to be the happiness and glory of a representative to live in the strictest union, the closest correspondence, and the most unreserved communication with his constituents. Their wishes ought to have great weight with him; their opinion high respect; their business unremitted attention. It is his duty to sacrifice his repose, his pleasures, his satisfaction, to theirs; and above all, ever, and in all cases, to prefer their interests to his own . . .

Your representative owes you, not his industry only, but his judgment; and he betrays instead of serving you if he sacrifices it to your opinion . . .

Parliament is not a congress of ambassadors from different and hostile interests; which interests each must maintain, as an agent and advocate, against other agents and advocates; but parliament is a deliberative assembly of one nation, with one interest, that of the whole; where, not local purposes, not local prejudices ought to guide, but the general good, resulting from the general reason of the whole. You choose a member indeed; but when you have chosen him, he is not member of Bristol, but he is a member of parliament. — Edmund Burke, address to the electors of Bristol, Nov. 3, 1774, the traditional defence of the right of an elected representative to make up his own mind.

". . . do you really think I'd idly stand by while you catch your death of cold on a windswept mountain ridge? . . ."

W. A. WILSON

Looking At the Long Term

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau's now-famous year-end broadcasts accurately reflected agreed cabinet positions on the uses to which political power is to be put between now and the next election.

Careful checking with reliable political sources since the controversial broadcasts were made establishes that they were far from being the off-the-cuff musings which they came to be called. They can much more accurately be regarded as a preliminary step in conditioning public opinion to accept changes which the government has decided are necessary for the economic and social welfare of the country.

Much of the subject matter of the broadcasts has been discussed by cabinet at its annual political session at Meach Lake in the autumn, one source said. He confirmed the accuracy of the prime minister's statement that "there is no master plan in my mind or in some little elite group in the prime minister's office, presumably, which will tell the world in general and Canada in particular where it must go over the next little while."

Labor Changes

Rather, this source said, there is cabinet agreement on the areas where change is needed and in a general, but not a specific way, on the directions this change should take. He drew attention to the prime minister's references at various times to structural change and changes in the nation's institutions.

Labor relations came high among the examples cited by the political sources in discussions of institutional changes. A major review of this subject is planned, they said, and legislative action is likely in either the next session of parliament or the one following. There was agreement that it will not come during the present session, expected to last until June with no new throne speech until autumn.

The sources were vague about the actual proposals that will be put forward, suggesting that agreement has been reached on objectives rather than the ways of achieving them. But changes in the nature of collective bargaining seem to be firmly on the agenda for both the private and public sectors of the economy.

Other institutional changes mentioned by political sources included federal-provincial financial arrangements, land ownership in ways that would affect both foreign ownership and speculation and continued efforts to modify competition legislation. The latter has been a prolonged effort of the Trudeau government and some skepticism was discernible when it was mentioned.

The sources that discussed the government's general plans were agreed that the price and wage control approach will dominate anti-inflation efforts during the next three years but they insisted that a general decontrol process is still firmly planned for the period shortly before the 1978 election.

The pattern of plotting legislative action for an entire term of office is an old favorite of the Trudeau administration. It was adopted during the early stages of Trudeau's first term as prime minister. The period of minority government after the 1972 election did not lend itself to this approach and that was one of the things Trudeau's close associates disliked most about that period.

It proved difficult to establish what the government plans with regard to land legislation, either relating to foreign ownership or to speculation. These are normally matters that would be considered within provincial jurisdiction under the British North America Act, along with other property matters. One source said tentatively, however, that some sort of action might be taken through the Citizenship Act. The foreign Investment Review Act, of course, touches heavily on property rights and was passed and implemented by the federal government without constitutional challenges. It was, however, the subject of long and careful discussion with the provinces. Some provinces have already moved to restrict foreign land ownership but there has been no particular demand in the country for any uniformity of approach on this matter.

One source said that the next legislative session will see further action to establish the country's economic sovereignty, a subject on which the government believes Canadian public opinion is steadily shifting. In general it is not regarded in government circles as possessing the same potential for bitter controversy that it did a few years ago.

Devious Backtrack

The fate of current legislation aimed at Reader's Digest and Time Canada does not seem to support this sanguine view, however, since the cabinet has had to backtrack along a devious route to avoid the repercussions of throwing 1,500 Quebec employees of Reader's Digest out of work. The action still aimed at Time will also cause unemployment and if, in the end, Time Canada is driven out of the country, this will be on a larger scale than many realize at the present.

The Liberal party still surveys public opinion on an intermittent basis and the results of this work plays some part in the development of the cabinet's long-range plans. The sources insisted, however, that these are no mere exercises in catering to popular opinion and pointed out that the labor relations legislation, for instance, is bound to be highly controversial. They did concede, however that the party's surveys have shown a high level of public conerns over time lost through strikes, some degree of balancing is clearly involved.

Foxy Fable

All the good people, who are surprised at the latest Strathcona Park mining caper, remind me of one of Aesop's fables, where there was much bewilderment over the doings of a fox who was elected to guard a chicken house.—John Willow, 1644 Richland Avenue.

Driving Rules

After 19 months of venturing forth on the more travelled routes in our fair city I have virtually given up on exercising the rights I am told as an automobile driver I enjoy.

I find that a number of our locals abide by driving rules somewhat different than those espoused by the majority of us. Coward that I am, I concur that for self-preservation or conformity's sake we should all agree that:

One waits through at least the initial five seconds of green.

One proceeds through amber lights. To stop indicates one's ignorance that amber is extended green.

Metchosin Bad

Having lived on Metchosin Road for 30 years, we have never seen such driving as in the last two years or so! Five poles have been broken off within 200 yards of either side of our home. The crashes have awakened us at 1 a.m. with the wires to the house vibrating. Two dogs have been killed, a number of cats too. I myself have had to jump off the gravel at the side of the road to save my hide.

Having been an NDP member before they got elected, I find it interesting to notice how many complain about the increased costs of ICBC; forgetting all about being their brothers' keepers; so "charge it all up for the future generations to pay."—John Bligh, 4223 Metchosin Road.

Repressive Policy

I am infuriated to read that the president's executive council of the University of Victoria is considering a policy of giving employment preference to Canadians. This proposal is chauvinistic and disgusting because a professor's nationality has no bearing on his professional expertise. It is unclear what benefits are expected to accrue to the university by restricting appointment to the "best qualified Canadian applicant."

The net effect of this plan is to ensure that where the best Canadian applicant is inferior to the best non-Canadian applicant, the Canadian will gain the position. It is regressive and immoral to establish nationality as a criterion for employment. Not only is it unfairly discriminatory to the non-Canadian applicant, but it blatantly inhibits efforts to secure the best qualified professors. In addition, I feel that it would be a much healthier world if countries opened their doors to each other and outlawed this kind of prejudice. — Roland Case, University of Victoria, 1576 Midgard Avenue.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of February 20, 1916

ST. JOHN, N.B.—The distinction of having on its muster roll the youngest soldier yet enlisted for overseas service probably belongs to B company of the 132nd North Shore Battery. The youthful warrior, who is only seven years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flieger of Chatham. At a recent recruiting meeting in the opera house there, when an appeal was made for recruits to come forward, the little fellow walked boldly to the platform and announced his desire to sign on. The officers in charge were so taken with the lad's patriotism and evident desire to enlist that arrangements were made with relatives and the boy is now a member of B company and lives with the men in their barracks.

Blame the Camel

By RONALD KOVEN

Who conquered who?

Somehow, in my gut, I knew it all along. I think a lot of people did. But we had no way of even beginning to prove it. So we kept the idea strictly to ourselves, lest we cease to be taken seriously.

Now, along comes Richard Bulliet to confirm in a brilliant way our deepest suspicious about the Middle East: It is all the fault of the camel. His thesis is blindingly simple and, once stated, almost self-evident.

Historians have always held that the greatest human advance, after the harnessing of fire, was the invention of the wheel. Yet, for some strange reason, the cradle of Western civilization abandoned the wheel as a means of transportation. The result has been the stagnant and backward Middle Eastern societies that are only now recovering their rightful place in the technological vanguard thanks to the sudden influx of oil money.

That the Middle East was in ancient times thoroughly familiar with the wheel is indisputable. The Romans built roads all over the region, and their carriage ruts are everywhere to be found.

(A review in the Washington Post of the book, The Camel and the Wheel, by Richard W. Bulliet)

Progressively, Bulliet convincingly shows, the wheel was abandoned in Syria, Palestine, the Persian Empire and North Africa between the third and seventh centuries after Christ.

But the weheel was not just abandoned in a fit of neo-primitivism. The camel did the wheel in because it was a cheaper, more efficient means of moving goods and people under the conditions of the time. As Bulliet tells us, the camel could carry two to four times the payload per animal as a pair of oxen pulling an oxcart. The oxen had to pull the weight of the cart as well as the goods. They were fussier about their diets and therefore more expensive as well as more numerous to feed. The oxcarts got stuck in the mud.

Did the camel conquer the Middle East or did the Arabs conquer it? A chicken and egg controversy. The large numbers of camels needed to travel the region's great distances had to come initially from the source in southern Arabia, along with the camel drivers who knew how to maintain them.

The Arabs conquered militarily with their swift horses. Some Arab tribes rode camels to their objectives and then switched to the horses in the caravan to ride into battle. But, when it came to keeping a hold over conquered societies, the Arabs switched back to their ultimate economic weapon, the camel.

Not having had the advantage of Arab conquest, Europe kept the wheel. It went into the steep decline of the Dark Ages while the Arab caliphates reached their cultural zenith. By the time European technology was ready to restore the wheels' ancient advantage, the Middle East's Roman road network was largely abandoned in favour of ill-defined caravan routes.

So the camel is both the hero and the villain, an ambivalent conclusion that fits the Western preconception of an animal that does not appear to be loved even by the Arabs, who save their esteem and affection for the noble horse.

PROFANITY: IT'S MORE THAN MATTER OF TASTE

By BORDEN SPEARS
Toronto Star

When President Richard Nixon described Canada's prime minister as "that asshole," the editors of The Star had no difficulty in deciding that their readers should be informed of it. When Controller Barbara Greene applied the same epithet to a colleague in North York Council, and Mayor Mel Lastman endorsed it, the same editors concluded that the same readers should be protected from the knowledge. Why?

The North York incident, and several others of recent days in the turbulent local political scene, pose a real dilemma for the press despite their superficially comic overtones. The question is how far to go in the reporting of obscenity, profanity or mere vulgarity. No newspaper has found a wholly satisfactory answer.

The issue is not one of taste alone. Even if it were, the matter would not be simple. A newspaper can, and does, decide its own criteria, which are necessarily related to the standards of taste prevailing in the community. A common guideline is to refrain from publishing language that will unnecessarily offend a substantial section of the readership.

But this is an imprecise yardstick, of limited practical use. Standards of taste are subjective and shifting. The barnyard terms of yesterday are common currency in today's polite society and maidens no longer blush. High school teachers and university students shout obscenities at cabinet ministers. The newspaper that reports in euphemisms is derided for hypocritical nice-Nellyism.

At the same time, there are extremes of tolerance and intolerance within the society. An indignant subscriber wrote to The Star protesting at a photograph of two starving African children. The photo was indecent, he said, because the children wore no clothes.

No sympathy is required for the press in its exercise of this discretion, which is inseparable from publishing. The newspaper makes its judgment of what is fit to print and offers the result to the verdict of the marketplace. The difficulty comes at another level: when in the interest of honest reporting it feels obliged to print expressions that exceed its own canons of taste. The issue then is one not of taste but of ethics. Where does propriety end and suppression begin?

The question is posed most sharply in the arena of public affairs. Public officials, elected to transact the public business, operate in the public eye. Voters assess not only their policies but their conduct, and have a right to know if that conduct becomes offensive.

Several disorderly scenes occurred during last week's unruly debate in Toronto City Council on a new official plan for the downtown core. Personal exchanges became nasty. Twice, an alderman was physically restrained from going after another. One senior member expressed disdain for the proceedings by stretching out on the floor under the council table. There were shouted references to canine ancestry and equine excrement.

Star editors gritted their teeth and reported that one member had been called a son of a bitch. In one edition the word horseshit appeared; after a conference on the news desk, it was revised to horse .

This was an unsatisfactory solution, as such compromises inevitably are, reminiscent of the famous occasion when Prime Minister Trudeau used the ultimate four-letter word in the House of Commons.

On that occasion, Trudeau himself came to the rescue of embarrassed editors by rendering the word as "fuddle duddle". The press and the people joyfully adopted the bowdlerism and fuddle duddle became part of the language. Everyone knows what it means but is spared the necessity of saying it.

The general ambivalence, and the difficulty of framing rules to fit all cases, result in some inconsistent news coverage. Nixon's coarse reference to Trudeau was considered reportable because it revealed, as no euphemism could, the attitude of a U.S. president to this country's leader. Controller Greene's use of it presumably was censored because the principals were relatively minor figures. If a provincial premier described another in equally scatological terms, perhaps that would be published.

But the laundering of Greene's language had an unsatisfactory result for a newspaper that aims at informing its readers about public affairs. When the controller apologized some days later, ungraciously and under pressure, readers of the Star were left in the dark about what she was apoligizing for. The voters of North York deserve better than that if they are to make informed judgments about the performance of their representatives.

Common sense seems to be the only guide. There are journalists who argue that all exhibitions of vulgarity should be reported on grounds of artistic integrity. This can become an excuse for mere exhibitionist bravado. Four-letter words are not a part of civilized discourse and betray linguistic poverty. The press avoids them, but there are occasions when we need to know about the people who use them. It is the Nixons and Trudeaus and Greenes, not the newspapers, who need to clean up their act.

The Priest Who Bugs the Police

By HENRY GINIGER

Rev. Xirinachs, seated left, during passive resistance campaign.

BARCELONA — A tall, bearded 43-year-old Roman Catholic priest with an admiration for Gandhi is immobilizing varying numbers of Barcelona policemen every day from 9 in the morning to 9 at night.

Between those hours the Rev. Luis Maria Xirinachs conducts a passive-resistance campaign by sitting on a stool or on the sidewalk across the street from the fortresslike Barcelona prison where about 140 political prisoners are still held. Like many other Spaniards, Xirinachs wants a full amnesty for them and all other political prisoners in Spain.

For this and other goals — such as human rights, reconciliation among Spaniards and regional autonomy for Catalonia — few people in Spain have fought with as much persistence and disregard of personal convenience or safety as Xirinachs. This was illustrated last Sunday during a violent clash between demonstrators favoring amnesty and police, in which Xirinachs suffered a head injury, but later resumed his vigil outside the prison.

Xirinachs has spent almost two years in prison, carried out seven hunger strikes and was once exiled from Barcelona. Last year, he was nominated by a group of university professors for the Nobel Peace Prize and is believed to have come in a close second to Andrei D. Sakharov, the Soviet physicist and dissident.

The church in Spain has changed from the time it was virtually a part of the political regime and gave it religious sanction. Xirinachs is a striking example of the change.

"I believe in the separation of church and state," he said in an interview. "But you cannot separate the church from human problems. Jesus walked in the streets; he was not a man of the temple."

As for Gandhi, Xirinachs paid tribute to his style but said that he was not as pure as the late Indian leader. "I am not against defensive violence, the acts of those who defend themselves against oppression," he said.

He calls himself "a mosquito behind the ear of an elephant." He began his campaign for amnesty a year ago when the Roman Catholic Holy Year opened. Form his cell in Carabanchel Prison, where he was serving a term for "illegal propaganda," he wrote a letter to Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Catalan, the language he prefers to use, announcing that he was starting another hunger strike. He was finally released from prison in October when he began to be mentioned as a possible winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

When Franco died in November, hopes for an amnesty rose. But King Juan Carlos I first decreed only a limited pardon, and in protest Xirinachs began his seventh hunger strike in the Catalan monastery of Montserrat, traditionally a centre of church dissidence. The fast was carried out for 22 days, then halted in expectation that the King might grant an amnesty in his message to the country Christmas Eve.

But there was no amnesty, and Xirinachs began his present vigil Christmas Day. At first the police took him away, but he would always come back. One New Year's Eve he led a group that circled the prison singing songs, and the police did not interfere. On Jan. 7 a police car took him away five times during the day, each time leaving him a little farther from the prison. The last place was a garbage dump outside the city. But still he came back.

Now a police jeep is stationed on the sidewalk a few yards from where he sits and meets a constant stream of people coming to express sympathy or offer help. Occasionally someone is arrested. He displays no banners and shouts no slogans.

New York Times

A reactionary policy

harry bruce

I've decided to help Transport Minister Otto Lang grasp what taxation, public service and the function of government are all about. Normally, I wouldn't undertake so massive a challenge but, since he's asked for advice, it's my duty as a citizen to set things out for him in words we can all understand.

He does not believe in big government subsidies to establish efficient mass transit by rail and, with the attractive straight-from-the-shoulder style cabinet ministers sometimes affect, has said, "You'll have to tell me why it's important for those who choose to stay at home to pay for part of the cost of those who choose to travel. I'm not sure I see that. I am determined to see that, more and more, the user pays."

I think I can help clear up his becoming confusion.

In the first place, he must try to understand that the free-market system — in which the user pays — is no longer working for the general good. I forget who told me that but I believe it was one of Lang's cabinet-mates.

In the second place, he really should try to realize that we authorize governments to collect our money so they'll spend it on achieving social justice, helping the unfortunate, conquering regional disparity, promoting national unity, discouraging the powerful from exploiting the weak and the criminal from ravaging the innocent and, in the cause of our well-being and "quality of life," tackling jobs that are too big or too unprofitable for private industry.

Governments do other things, of course, but these functions will do for the purposes of this civics lecture. Besides, Liberal cabinet ministers like to talk about them at election time, and I'm trying to explain things in terms Lang will understand.

Okay. Now in the specifics of these honorable pursuits government has often recognized that the user can't possibly afford to pay the full shot for what he's using. Indeed, that's one reason why we have a department of transport for Lang to run.

Millions of Canadians spend their lives without ever getting aboard an airliner. The government spends billions on airports but, when it comes to railroads, Lang asks why the poor homebodies of Canada must subsidize the travellers. He's just not sure he sees that. Life is so complicated.

I'll simplify it. For a massive range of government services, it's not the user who pays. It's the non-user. The user reaps. Non-users of the CBC have no choice but to finance it through their taxes so that the users may enjoy it (or enjoy saying how little they enjoy it.)

Through federal taxes, non-drivers help finance highways; the healthy help finance hospital construction; the crippled help finance amateur athletics; the bilingual help finance bilingualism programs; the elderly help finance grants to teenagers; the employed help finance the unemployed; the fellow whose idea of high drama is an argument between Archie and Jughead helps finance live theatre; whites help finance black united fronts; Jews help finance trips by Arab belly dancers to promote our wonderful multicultural heritage; and men who have no intention of ever travelling east of Rocky Mountain House help finance springtime trips to the Labrador salmon grounds by Newfoundland fishermen.

All of us pay taxes so Lang's government can provide services we will never use and, in some cases, hope we'll never have to use. We understand that. Does Lang? Why does he act as though any fool can see there's something unnatural in non-users subsidizing services for users when any fool can actually see that arranging such subsidies is a basic function of government?

Passenger trains could be the most energy-thrifty method of moving people over this country's huge distances. They are already cultural, historical, educational, unifying and romantic institutions. They force Canadians to abandon their reserve and get to know one another. They teach love of country.

And the Canadian government, with one bold stroke, could promote a saner pace of life, champion the Conserver Society, give the railways a huge boost in passenger business, and increase the bureaucracy's understanding for that substantial part of Canada which actually does exist beyond earshot of the bells in the Peace Tower.

It could do all this simply by decreeing that all public servants, from the cabinet on down, must use trains whenever they travel at public expense.

Lang, however, is determined to reduce transcontinental service while, at the same time, he improves service in Central Canada, where the population is thick enough to make practical his strange reverence for the philosophy of "the user pays." For the times, it is a curiously reactionary policy.

Did Pilot Suffer Seizure?

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Something strange that was completely out of character happened to the pilot of a Panarctic Oils Ltd. Electra that crashed in the high Arctic Oct. 30, 1974, killed 32 of 34 men aboard, a federal inquiry was told Thursday.

Edmonton neurologist Dr. Harold Jacobs, a special medical adviser to the inquiry, said pilot Brian Thomson of Leduc, Alta., who was killed in the disaster, may have suffered a cerebral seizure moments before the crash into sea ice off Rea Point.

"What Captain Thomson did was completely irrational," said Dr. Jacobs, referring to testimony heard earlier that the captain failed to respond to information about the plane's rapid loss of altitude in the moments immediately preceding the crash.

"Something strange happened to this man that was completely out of character," the doctor said.

A cerebral seizure is a form of dizzy spell lasting 15 to 20 seconds and bringing on absentmindedness, lack of attention and daydreaming, the doctor said.

While it can only be regarded as a possibility that this is what happend to Thomson, it is the medical possibility that best fits the facts, the inquiry was told.

Cerebral seizures are known to occur in men of Thomson's age and can go undetected unless a trained person knows exactly what he is looking for, Dr. Jacobs said.

The only other way of detecting the condition is by an electroence phalograph (EEG), which can determine in nine cases out of 10 whether a person has had such a seizure, he said. It can also predict between 80 and 90 per cet of the time whether it will happen in the future.

However, the 30-year-old pilot was not believed to have had an EEG prior to the crash, Dr. Jacobs said.

The neurologist said the principal argument against this theory is that eyewitness evidence by the only survivors, co-pilot David Hatton and flight engineer Garry Weyman, did not indicate any abnormal physical movements by Thomson in the last few seconds of flight.

A person suffering a seizure would likely become inattentive, not respond verbally and not necessarily make any specific movements, the doctor said.

Dr. Jacobs said he had ruled out any other possible medical explanation for the actions of the Electra pilot just prior to the crash.

Tests had been conducted for disorders of the brain, arteries, heart, adrenal glands, kidneys, lungs, blood sugar and blood toxicology, none of which indicated any abnormalities, he said.

Thomson's liver, found to be abnormal because of a fatty condition, showed no evidence of cirrhosis or an atrophied condition, the doctor said. A fatty liver could be caused by alcohol, diabetes, excessive dieting, certain dietary deficiency diseases or toxins. In rare cases there is no apparent cause.

BOARD HOLDS LAST MEETING

The Greater Victoria school board will hold the last of a series of planning meetings at 7:30 p.m. Monday to deal with 7:30 p.m. Monday to deal with final recommendations - for classroom accommodation throughout the district.

All schools not yet considered under assistant superintendent Dr. John Wiens' planning report No. 3 will be discussed.

Main business of the meeting will be to re-draw attendance boundaries in the Gordon Head area, and adjutment to the planned September opening of two new schools there.

Water Safety Clinics Set

Re-certification clinics for water safety instructors will he held at Red Cross House Sunday and Monday.

The clinic Sunday, from noon to 5 p.m., will provide experienced instructors with information to conduct water safety leader courses.

Monday's clinic, from 7 to 10 p.m., will review the required standards used in Red Cross learn-to-swim programs.

Clinic size will be limited to 20 and those interested are asked to pre-register at 382-3150.

Preece Promoted

Maurice W. Preece, English department co-ordinator at Spectrum Community School, has been appointed vice-principal of Arbutus Junior High in Gordon Head.

Preece is a physical education major who has been a teacher in Greater Victoria since 1960, with five years time out teaching in Jamaica.

Ways to Block Skagit Flooding Under Study

SEATTLE (AP) — Premier Bennett says "several alternatives" are being explored to stop Seattle City Light from raising Ross Dam and flooding the upper Skagit Valley.

His government plans talks with City Light, Bennett said in a telephone interview published Thursday.

The premier declined to specify the alternatives being studied or what steps would be taken if Seattle insisted on proceeding with the project.

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said a middle-level B.C. officials would handle the early talks with City Light. Bennett said Nielsen "has a couple of ideas of his own."

"Naturally we are taking the same position as the other (ousted New Democratic) government; we don't want to see the Skagit Valley flooded," Bennett said.

In 1967 City Light and the B.C. government, then headed by Bennett's father, W. A. C. Bennett, signed a contract that permitted flooding.

City Light wants to raise Ross Dam 122½ feet, which would cause Ross Lake — now already backing up into Canada slightly — to flood 5,000 more acres of the valley.

Canadian officials and environmentalists now oppose the project, which would generate more power for City Light.

The former NDP resource minister, Bob Williams, said the ousted Dave Barrett government proposed Nov. 10 that in return for stopping the project, British Columbia would return all taxes and rental payments to Seattle and compensate it for City Light's study costs and land holdings in the valley.

Williams also said British Columbia would sell Seattle "some power" at full market rates and that Seattle would pay the province about $3.3 million annually in rent for lands presently flooded.

Cable Challenger Repeats Its Public Debate Offer

Capital Cable Co-operative Thursday reissued its challenge to Premier Cablevision to debate publicly their respective qualifications to operate facilities now run by Premier's subsidiary, Victoria Cablevision Ltd.

CCC president John Young said the Vancouver-based parent of Cablevision had made allegations against the co-operative that were inconsistent with the facts.

The co-op responded by offering to exchange points of view concerning its bid to take on the licence now held by Cablevision, which offers programs on channel 10.

"They really should come to Victoria and find out what's happening. We're ready for a discussion anytime, on channel 10 or wherever they would like to meet," said Young.

"I am most disturbed by their suggestion that community programming isn't worth financing properly, particularly when most of television production comes from Vancouver, Toronto, Hollywood and elsewhere.

"Why shouldn't Victoria have exciting and interesting programming about Victorians by Victorians and Capital Cable intends to prove it," said Young.

CCC proposes to buy Cablevision facilities with money put up by an unnamed financial institution, to be repaid by subscribers in the form of an equity share that would be redeemable if a subscriber opted out or moved away.

The purchase could be speeded, Young said, by $1 a month added to the regular $4.50 fee until a desired level of equity is attained.

Canadian Radio-Television Commission must decide whether to renew the Cablevision licence or award it to another operator.

MINING AND YOUR PAYCHEQUE

Not only mining company employees depend on the British Columbia mining industry for their paycheques. Mining contributes something to just about every paycheque in the province, including yours.

HOW COME?

Because the value of the mining industry's production in 1974 was over $1 billion, equivalent to $490 for each British Columbian. And the taxes the industry pays to our provincial and federal governments help support all government programs including social services.

But all has not been well with the mining industry in British Columbia.

WHY?

Because both the federal and provincial governments have been taking ever increasing amounts out of the revenues of mining companies. As a result, the money for exploration for new orebodies, for the development of new mines and the expansion of existing mines simply isn't being earned in large enough amounts. Expenditures for exploration and development dropped from $108 million in 1972 to $20.4 million in 1974.

This situation concerns us. We are a group of companies depending, at least in part, on sales to mines. We supply everything from tents to transportation, canned corn to chemicals, desks to diamond drills. And we employ thousands of people in British Columbia.

We feel that a fair and early solution to the mining industry's taxation problems is important to all British Columbians.

Because the mining industry affects the paycheques of us all.

Vancouver Exchange Doldrums Increase Rate of De-Listing

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The Vancouver Stock Exchange has settled back to doldrums-as-usual following the brief rally in the wake of the defeat of the New Democratic Party government in December.

Volume is only about 1 million shares per day, about half the level considered necessary for a healthy brokerage industry.

Professional traders make up the bulk of the market and there is little activity by the public at large. Professional traders usually sell short, hoping the public will buy.

The lack of trading enthusiasm has spread to the companies and an unusually high number are failing to file their quarterly financial reports.

This leads to suspension, or if continued for an extended period, outright delisting.

In the past week, the VSE has delisted nine companies, or about the total normally delisted in a full year when the market is strong.

Suspended in the past five trading days were North Island Mines, Meteor Mining, Kelmount Explorations, Del Lee Enterprises and Uncle Ben's Industries Ltd.

The suspensions are for 15 days but may be extended.

The short sellers had been busy in Q. C. Explorations in January but some of the shares had been bought back in early February. The company's shares still top the list for highest number overhanging the market.

Shares are sold short by professionaal traders who believe the price is on the way down. Officers of the company involved often have no idea who the traders are who are selling or buying their stocks.

Main companies hit by the short-sellers:

	Shares
Q.C. Explor.	189,500
Carolin Mines	92,300
Host	63,100
Stampede	54,000
Groundstar	53,500
Belmoral	53,400

The main increase in short sales was in Nahatlach where an additional 9,560 shares were sold short to raise the outstanding position to 11,560.

Aurus short sales totalled 8,000 for a balance of 13,000. Olympia rose 4,500 to 6,000. Belmoral was up 3,700 to 53,400 and Geo-Dyne rose 3,000 to 19,000.

Traders who have sold these shares will have to buy them back but they are confident they will be able to do so soon at lower prices than prevail at the moment.

Shaheen Nfld. Refinery Loses Backer's Support

NEW YORK (AP) — UOP Inc. of Des Plaines, Ill., has announced that it is withdrawing financial support for the Shaheen Natural Resources' oil refinery at Come By Chance, Nfld.

The company said Tuesday that it will not implement an arrangement that it and another creditor are to manage and financially support the refinery.

On Wednesday, Shaheen Natural Resources Inc. filed a suit in New York Supreme Court against UOP claiming damages of $189 million in connection with UOP's construction of the refinery.

UOP said that it understands that Atlantic Trading (Delaware) Corp., a subsidiary of Ataka Co. of Japan, the other creditor, has appointed a receiver under its debt agreement with the operator of the refinery and is attempting to have the refinery placed in bankruptcy.

UOP said it and its Procon Inc. subsidiaries have unsecured debt owed to them of approximately $16.3 million from the Shaheen concern.

UOP also has guaranteed obligations of Provincial Refining Co. Ltd., which operates the refinery, and that company's affiliate, SNR Delaware Inc., in excess of $18.6 million. He said approximately $5.9 million of that figure is secured in participation in the first mortgage on the refinery.

Forest Officials To Tour Europe

OTTAWA (UPI) — A contingent of 13 executives of Canada'a forest products industry will travel to Europe Feb. 23 with government officials to meet colleagues from the European Economic Community, Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Don Jamieson said today.

The trip, which follows dialogue initiated by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau during visits to European capitals in 1974 and 1975, will involve an initial stop at EEC headquarters in Brussels then continue to London, Paris, Rome and Bonn.

The group will engage in talks with officials of European forest products companies, EEC executives and members of trading associations before returning to Canada March 4.

"This mission will enable our companies to develop new contacts and discuss ways of working together with their European counterparts to develop trade and strengthen their industries," Jamieson said.

"We hope it will form the basis for joint projects of benefit to both Canada and the community."

EEC Commission President F. X. Ortoli arrived in Ottawa Wednesday for three days of talks with Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen and others.

An external spokesman said the department hoped this round of discussions would enable Canada to announce soon the official beginning of negotiations to establish contractual links with the EEC.

TAX TIPS: '76

Tax tips are supplied by the Victoria branch of Revenue Canada, 1415 Vancouver Street. Further information may be obtained by contacting that office at 386-2176.

Q. How much may be deducted for child care expenses and does it matter to whom the payments are made?

A. A taxpayer may deduct the amount actually spent on child care provided it does nok exceed the least of:

—$500 per child, or

—$2,000 for the family, or —two-thirds of the taxpayer's earned income for the year.

Child care expenses are not deductible if they are paid to a person claimed as a dependant for tax purposes by either of the parents, or to a person under 21 who is related to either parent by blood, marriage or adoption. Also, any allowable deduction for child care expenses must be supported by a receipt which indicated the name, address and Social Insurance Number of the person to whom payments were made.

Q. I paid $1,500 in alimony to my former wife last year. Can I claim all of this on my income tax return.

A. There is no dollar limit on the amount of alimony that can be deducted. You may claim the full amount paid in the year as long as the payments are made on a periodic basis for the maintenance of your ex-wife and, or children, and are in accordance with a decree, a court order or a written agreement. If you and your wife were reconciled before the end of the year you would not be able to claim alimony, but you could claim instead such personal exemptions as might be allowed.

Q. When the father and mother both work, can either of them claim the child care expenses?

A. No. When both parents work only the m other can claim the child care expenses.

Q. I was transferred to another city in 1975 and we decided to rent our house rather than sell it. I understand I can deduct capital cost allowance from my rental income but what do I use for a capital cost figure? We lived in the house for years and, with the improvements we made, it's worth a lot mor than we paid for it originally.

A. You are entitled to claim capital cost allowance on the fair market value of your house when you started to rent it. This would not include the value of the land.

Q. My wife works part time in my small grocery store. Can I claim wages for her in my return?

A. If your business is a sole proprietorship, you cannot claim wages paid to your wife as an expense.

Q. Part of my divorce settlement was that in addition to alimony I continue the monthly payments on our former house. Can I claim these payments even though I didn't pay them to my former wife?

A. Yes. The periodic payments you were required to pay for the benefit of your former spouse are deductible.

Q. I received interest of $178.00 and a pension totalling $2,300.00. How much of this do I exclude from my income? I am 67 years of age.

A. You must include the full amount of interest and pension income in your tax return. Then, you claim $178.00 for the interest and dividend income exemption and $1,000.000 for the pension income exemption.

Consultant Got $8.7M

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Senate investigators say a mysterious foreign official is emerging as one of the best-paid of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s foreign consultants.

Lockheed documents show that the aircraft firm paid $8.7 million to the official in 1973 and 1974 and that $4.5 million is still owed him. However, Treasury Secretary William Simon, chairman of a board that oversees the government's loan guarantee to Lockheed, said he has been assured the additional sum won't be paid.

Investigators under Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), chairman of the Senate banking committee, said they don't know what country the official is from but that he apparently also is an officer of a government-owned airline.

In another development, Senator Frank Church (Dem. Idaho) said his Senate committee on multinational corporations is trying to find out the names of foreign government officials who received Lookheed funds. Officials of the company have said they don't know the names of the recipients.

Cig Tax Rejection Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite testimony by two cancer specialists, tobacco-state lawmakers and industry officials say cigarette smoking has never been firmly linked with cancer and are urging the U.S. Congress to reject a new "health tax" on cigarettes.

The proposed tax would add levies on cigarettes ranging from two cents a pack to 50 cents, depending on their relative tar and nicotine content. It would be imposed gradually during a four-year period.

The tax would "hit hardest at those least able to pay," said Horace Kornegay, president of the Tobacco Institute.

In testimony Thursday before a Senate committee considering the tax, two Nobel Prize-winning cancer researchers said there is indisputable evidence linking smoking with lung cancer. Both said the tax would press the tobacco industry into producing less-hazardous cigarettes.

Renato Dulbecco of the Imperial Cancer Research Centre of London and Howard Temin of the University of Wisconsin, who shared the 1975 prize for their cancer research, told the Senate health cubcommittee that lung cancer is one of the hardest cancers to cure and the easiest to prevent.

Legal Battle Over Evidence As Patty Refuses to Answer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's lawyers, who instructed her to invoke her right against self-incrimination 19 times in her bank-robbery trial, faced another legal skirmish today in their battle to keep what they say is potentially incriminating evidence from the jury.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter upheld Miss Hearst's right to refuse to answer the government prosecutor's questions Thursday about her actions during the 12 months before her capture.

But U.S. Attorney James Browning said he intended to ask Carter today to admit a taped jailhouse conversation as evidence of the defendant's willing commitment to radical social change.

In the contested tape recording, Miss Hearst told long-time friend Patricia Tobin within 48 hours of her Sept. 18 arrest that her future statements would be from "a revolutionary feminist perspective."

Such change, he argued, led her to join with her Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) kidnappers in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hibernia Bank branch headed by Miss Tobin's father.

Chief defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey contends the jailhouse tape is irrelevant to the bank robbery for which Miss Hearst is on trial.

Miss Hearst underwent her first full day of cross examination Thursday and testified that she was not certain that she was brainwashed by her captors—as previously maintained by her defence lawyers. She said: "I'm not sure what happened to me."

She said she did not try to make contact with her parents during her underground odyssey because she felt they would not want to see or hear from her. She conceded that perhaps she should have risked accepting an early offer of freedom from her captors and cried when asked to recount physical abuse at their hands.

Bailey left the prosecution irate Wednesday when he wrapped up his three-day examination of Miss Hearst by skipping over a full year of her 19-month voyage in the terrorist underground.

By not opening up that period in his direct questioning, Bailey left Browning with no grounds to query Miss Hearst about the year, believed to have been spent in Sacramento and San Francisco.

'HOG FLU' OUTBREAK KILLS ONE IN N.J.

ATLANTA (UPI) — Doctors conducted an intensive investigation today into the appearance of "hog flu", a type of influenza previously believed restricted to swine and possibly related to the strain that killed 20 million victims in 1918.

The National Centre for Disease Control in Atlanta said the virus was discovered during a routine medical investigation of a moderate flu outbreak last week at the army base at Ft. Dix, N.J.

Two strains of flu were found, officials said, one of them the currently prevalent A-Victoria type. But four men suffered from swine influenza virus, and one of the men died.

Because of its rarity official said there is no inoculation against the swine virus currently available.

U.S. Charges 11 Airlines With Illegal Fare Kickbacks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. government filed criminal charges Thursday against 11 international airlines, alleging they made illegal rebates ranging from $50 to $1,150 on fares and cargo shipments to the Far East.

A companion civil suit filed in U.S. district court against 13 arilines seek to prohibit the carrying out of such practices.

Named in the criminal complaint were Air Siam, Canadian Pacific Air Lines Ltd., China Airlines, Japan Air Lines, Korean Air Lines, Pan American World Airways, Phillippine Airlines, Quantas Airways, Flying Tiger Line, Union de Transports Aeriens and Varig, S.A.

The civil action also includes Air New Zealand and Northwest Airlines, against which criminal complaints were filed in Los Angeles.

The civil suit claims the airlines violated the law by charging different rates than specified in filed tariffs or by making refunds or rebates directly or indirectly through travel or cargo agents.

Among the violations alleged are selling special fare tickets to those ineligible; ignoring or changing validity periods; transporting charter passengers on scheduled flights at lower rates; paying commissions or compensation to agents and either providing free services or reduced rates.

Last September, 19 airlines entered into a civil consent decree in New York agreeing to refrain from illegal fare rebating in the North Atlantic Market.

STRIKE CLOSES LOGGING FIRM

ABERDEEN, Wash. (AP) — Weyerhaeuser Co. logging operations in Grays Harbor and Pacific counties ceased Thursday after about 800 workers honored International Woodworkers of America picket lines following a strike vote by local 3-2.

A spokesman for the local said the workers struck because of safety conditions, wages and hours.

He declined to elaborate but said the strike was within the grievance procedures of the local's contract with Weyerhaeuser which runs until June 1, 1977.

Kansas Warning Of Dust Bowl

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Though better equipped and better educated in the ways of nature, farmers in western Kansas continue to battle the ancient enemy known as drought. As in dust bowl days, the farmer's greatest foe may still be himself, a conservationist says.

"We can create another dust bowl," said Robert Paris, a wheat farmer and president of the Kansas Association of Conservation Districts. "The dust bowl was a man-made problem and we could do it again if we're not careful."

Extremely dry weathr in southwestern Kansas since the 1976 winter wheat crop was seeded last fall has left millions of acres unprotected from heavy winds. About 535,000 acres in Kansas already have been damaged by wind erosion.

The problem has been intensified, said Paris, by higher wheat prices and U.S. government policies for all-out food production that have resulted in the plowing of grasslands and a slackening concern for soil-conservation practices.

"Higher prices for wheat in the past couple of years have been an incentive for farmers to bring more land into production," said the Dighton, Kan., farmer. "The problem is that some of this has been grassland or other acreage that never should have been broken up."

Paris and other conservationists say they doubt a new dust bowl is an immediate threat but only because farmers have invested millions of dollars in tree windbreaks, land terracing, crop-rotation patterns and equipment developed in the last 30 yeears.

Farewell, Fahrenheit

By AL FORREST
Times Staff
First of six parts

Fahrenheit Forever is folding and its members are looking for a new cause.

Its president was a Vancouver office worker who planned to march on Victoria carrying signs like: "Down with Celsius. Stop eroding our freedom by degrees."

FF also planned to oppose changes in linear measurements with placards reading: "Every time a metre replaces a yard, something is lost. Don't give an inch!"

Now FF is folding before it really got launched.

"The metric system is in the schools, in the weather reports, on the grocery shelves. It's hard to oppose something that's already here," he said.

He asked that names not be used. "It turns out our boss is fully committed to the metric system and my wife said Fahrenheit Forever is the dumbest thing I every thought of."

FF is right in believing the metric system has already arrived in British Columbia but wrong in saying that, when metres replace yards, something is lots.

In fact something is gained. A metre is 10 per cent more than a yard, a handy thing to keep in mind this Olympic year when everyone is talking metric. All skiing events, foot races, high jumps and hammer throws will refer to metric distances.

Fahrenheit was the first to fall to the metric system on a broad scale in North America. Last April it was replaced by Celsius in all Canadian weather reports.

(Another major setback for FF came when ICBC protesters took the best FF slogan and reworked it for their own campaing. It was: "Bring back Fahrenheit or stick it in your ear.")

Some companies are selling ice cream by the litre and sugar by the kilogram. Toothpaste has been sold in metric measurements for more than a year. All new mathematics text for grades 1 to 7 in Greater Victoria use the metric system.

The tide is relentless.

In April, wind speeds, atmospheric pressures and visibility will be given in metric terms. Wind speeds will be given in kilometres per hour (except marine forecasts, which retain knots) while barometric pressures will be given in kilopascals, which doesn't really matter because all that counts is whether it's rising or falling.

In just over two years all Canadian schools are scheduled to be on the metric system, although some equipment will be available in both metric and Imperial sizes until the end of the decade.

A major change for motorists will come in the summer of 1977 when all road signs are scheduled to be converted to metric measurements. There are a few road signs, 26 in all, using metric terms on B.C. highways as a test run.

Some new cars have kilometre speedometers and all new vehicles will have them by January.

The metric system is known around the world as SI, for Systeme International d'Unites. SI originated in France in 1795 shortly after the French Revolution. It was dramatic, arbitrary and smelled of revolution. Everything would be just so, in 10s, and forget the past.

Meanwhile, England continued to measure things by the width of a thumb and the length of a foot, a system that was exported to North America.

An international conference in 1960 voted to adopt SI as an international language of weights and measures. Britain, India, Japan, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand have all gone metric.

In fact almost everybody has, except for North America.

CITY GROUP SENDS $500 TO GUATEMALA

The Victoria branch of the St. Vincent de Paul Society has forwarded $500 contributed by local citizens for Guatemalan relief, spokesman Ben Caron said Thursday.

He said the money had been sent to the society's Montreal office where it will be transferred directly to society offices in Guatemala.

Anyone wishing to donate can mail contributions to the society's office at 840 View St., marking cheques for Guatemalan Relief.

Walkathon

The Victoria Kiwanis Wheels project, a motorcycle club for boys 11 to 16, will hold a walkathon Feb. 29 to raise funds for club work.

The club has 45 members and money is needed to repair worn-out equipment and rebuild the club's trailer.

The walkathon will sart at Mile 0 and the 20-mile route follows the marine drive to end at the Bishop Cridge Centre.

Sponsors and entries are asked to contact Glenn McKenzie at 592-7332 or Ken Dibden at 384-4111, Local 50.

Best Behavior for Habitat . . .

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Hugh Keenleyside has warned city residents not to behave like "a collection of prejudiced bush-leaguers" during the international Habitat conference.

"Let's avoid giving our visitors the impression that we're as philistine as we sometimes appear to be," Keenleyside, the associate commissioner-general of Habitat, said in a speech to the Women's Canadian Club.

He related his remarks to the recent opposition to the establishment of a French language television channel here.

Keenleyside said many visitors to Habitat — the first two weeks, of June — will speak two or even three languages as well as their own.

"So let's avoid giving our visitors the impression that we're a collection of prejudiced bush-leaguers who react violently against the proposition that even one of our TV outlets be used for our second language," he said.

He urged residents to take a keen interest in the events taking place at the conference.

"And let's keep our hearts open to welcome as friends the people coming here from other countries," said Keenleyside.

Defending the $14 to $15 million Habitat will cost the federal government, Keenleyside said the amount Canadians spend annually on liquor is 200 times greater than the cost of the conference.

"In 1976 Canadian women will spend 35 times as much on cosmetics as the whole of Canada will spend on Habitat," he said. "In fact, if every adult gave up one cocktail for one year that would considerably more than pay for the conference."

KEENLEYSIDE . . . not bush-leaguers

BCIT CONTRACT NEVER SIGNED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local 59 of the British Columbia Government Employees Union said Thursday it will ask the provincial labor relations board to implement its contract with the B.C. Institute of Technology.

The local announced two weeks ago it would go to the board but held off when the BCIT board of governors ratified the agreement. However, the board did not take the final step of signing the agreement.

"We feel we were double-crossed and now we have to go back to the labor board," said union spokesman Maureen Headley.

The union is complaining that BCIT is unfairly using the federal anti-inflation program for withholding payments to 180 employees covered by a new contract.

The local says provincial institutions are not covered by the federal legislation because B.C. has not signed an agreement with Ottawa to bring the public sector under the federal program.

ICBC STUDIES NEW MACHINE

SURREY (CP) — The Insurance Corporation of British Columbia is testing an American-made vehicle straightening machine to determine its suitability for decreasing the number of writ-off auto claims in B.C., corporation spokesman Jack Bader said Thursday. He said the machine can straighten a vehicle from any position around its exterior with exacting precision.

N. Van Hospital to Close Two Wings in Budget Cut

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Lions Gate Hospital announced Thursday it has decided to close one 33-bed ward on March 1 and a second 32-bed ward on June 12 in an attempt to cut $600,000 from the 1976 operating budget.

Emphasizing that the plan may be dropped at any time if patient care appears to be suffering, medical co-ordinator Dr. Jim Corbett said the move means giving up some luxuries, such as adults-only and children-only wards.

Full-time staff from the closed wards will be used for relief work in the rest of the hospital, he said, and the hospital will cut back casual relief staff.

The action follows announcement of Vancouver General Hospital plans to close down up to half its beds for one month in the summer to help eliminate a $10,000-a-day overrun.

Peltier Complains

VANCOUVER (CP) — Leonard Peltier, 31, a United States Indian wanted for the murder of two FBI agents last June, said Thursday in British Columbia Supreme Court he has been harrassed by guards at the prison he is being kept at.

Peltier made the allegation in an affidavit filed in court chambers after he was denied bail by Mr. Justice William Schultz.

Peltier is being held at the Lower Mainland Correction Regional correctional Centre (Oakalla) awaiting extradition proceedings.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said earlier in the week he had been advies Peltier was receiving "normal privileges" in the jail's observation unit.

Care 'Inadequate'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Facilities in British Columbia are inadequate for handling disturbed adolescents who need long-term care and follow up, Dr. Phil Adilman, a psychiatrist, said Thursday.

Dr. Adilman, who appeared on a panel at the University of B.C., is clinical director of Maples, a unit for emotionally-disturbed adolescents in Burnaby.

Dr. Adilman said the staff at Maples must restrict itself to the more disturbed . . . I don't know where the others are going."

H-Charges Laid

MAPLE RIDGE (CP) — Donald Pearson, 35, and Sandra McLennan, 25, of Maple Ridge were charged Thursday with possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficing after a raid on an apartment here resulted in seizure of heroin capsules valued at $24,500. They were held in custody pending a bail hearing.

Victim Identifed

ARMSTRONG (CP) — RCMP Thursday identified Clair Harris, 27, as the man killed Thursday in a head-on collision between a station wagon and a logging truck about four miles north of here on HIghway 97.

Tonnage Declines

VANCOUVER (CP) — Export tonnage handled at the Fraser River docks declined nearly 25 per cent during 1975 to 950,000 metric tons compared with 1.3 million tons in 1974. Imports declined during the same period by almost 50 per cent to 348,000 tons compared with 677,000 tons in the previous year.

Flu Confirmed

VANCOUVER (CP) — An outbreak of influenza A in the city was confirmed Thursday by Dr. Gerald Bonham, a medical health officer, who said it is "the classical influenza of recent years."

Kootenay University 'Vital'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Association of University and College Employees said Thursday they have launched a petition campaign to persuade the provincial government to make Notre Dame University at Nelson the nucleus of a fourth provincial public university.

Kathy Downs, Local 3 executive officer, said the continued existence of Notre Dame University is vital to the economy of the Kootenay community.

The university has not received a firm answer on the possibility of the provincial government meeting its financial needs but the Universities Council of British Columbia has confirmed it has no money for the university and has not asked the government for any.

The council, which has been responsible for preparing budgets for B.C.'s three public universities, was given responsibility for NDU six weeks ago after the universities council submitted its Dec. 15 budget.

At the same time, Education Minister Pat McGeer said he was discontinuing the government's annual grant to Notre Dame, which last year amounted to $1.8 million.

"We feel this is a trend," said Miss Downs. "And not only in the limiting of alternative kinds of education in the province, but also a trend of this particular government to indiscriminately cut budgets in ways that mean people lose their jobs.

"NDU is not just a university, it's an industry," she said.

Dispute Closes Mill

WOODFIBRE (CP) — Production halted Thursday at the Rayonier Pulp Mills here for the second time in 10 days because of a continued labor dispute over travel time.

Workers in the steam power plant booked off to protest the company's refusal to allow the dispute to be resolved by a third party. Woodfibre is on Howe Sound, about 40 miles north of Vancouver.

"It's a case of sheer frustration on the part of the workers", said Reg Ginn, national president of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada.

"Rayonier is causing a lot of problems for the industry by not allowing a third party. A third party is supposed to be the way we do things in Canada. They hope this issue will go away by not dealing with it, but it won't go away."

The company has not commented publicly on any part of the dispute over travel time but an industrial relations source said some of the employees in the steam plant failed to report for work on the afternoon shift Wednesday after an employee had been suspended earlier in the day.

On the midnight shift, all of the steam plant workers failed to show up, forcing the mill to close.

About 100 of 300 employees were still working on maintenance and shipping but there was no indication when production might resume.

The union local at Woodfibre scheduled a meeting on the demand for travel time on the company-financed ferry across Howe Sound from Squamish.

No Out Allowed North Egg Men

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The British Columbia Egg Marketing Board has upheld an earlier decision that northern B.C. egg producers must remain within the board's jurisdiction.

The appeal, presented last Friday by five northern egg producers, referred to a decision made by the board in October, 1975.

The marketing board rejected the appeal Tuesday and says that the farmers might be closed down if they do not co-operate with the board.

AROUND OUR SHORES
pat dufour

The irony of we Canadians having to pay more for our own boats than our American friends has never been brought home more forcibly than last weekend when 65 boats took part in the Laser regatta at Cadboro Bay.

The 14-foot, all-Canadian Laser became an instant success story when she was introduced to the racing scene, popular with both Canadians and Americans.

But when you find you can buy a Laser in Seattle for $900 it makes you wonder if our senior governments really want to try and encourage a healthy boat-building industry in our country.

You have to add more than one-third to the Seattle price and shell out $1,228 if you want to buy one here.

Admittedly the Americans are now building their own Lasers in California and it could be their labor costs are lower than at the Laser factory in Point Claire, Que. But that's only a small part of the story.

A breakdown of the $1,228 figure shows you pay $1,050 for the cost of the boat in Quebec (this includes the federal tax), $110 for freight, $58 for provincial sales tax and $10 Laser association dues, which are mandatory in this country.

The big bogey of the price is the federal tax which Americans do not pay if they come over and buy a boat here.

The differential is bad enough when you're considering a Laser dinghy, but when you get into the large keelboat and power-cruiser field it can really hurt.

* * *

Laser sailors of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, both have series racing scheduled this weekend. At Cadboro Bay racing starts 1:30 p.m. on Saturday. The Esquimalt sailors willl begin racing at the same time on Sunday.

The RVYC's Cal 20 fleet have another around-the-buoys race planned for Saturday. This, too gets under way at 1:30 p.m.

Many of the club's keel boats will join the Turkey head Sailing Association for two races off Oak Bay Marina on Sunday. Start times are 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

The club finished its series of long-distance races on Sunday with Gerry Howell-Jones Sian taking top honors in the International Offshore Rule section. She edged out Gorge Johnstone's Tarquin III, Jan Huibers' Sea Spell, Jack Woodward's Puff II, Hugh Bacon and Rod Andrews' Encounter, Archie Campbell's Sea Robin, Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer, Walter Root's Tringa, Tom Loney's Goodbye and Al Nelson's Lucifer.

Puff II wins the series, followed by Sian and Sea Spell.

* * *

Bob Van Den Driessche's Noosa was the first Pacific handicap Racing Fleet boat on Sunday. She was followed by Mike Weir's Filey Brigg, Dick Readshaw's Massilia II, Max Young's Spice, Walter Boyes' Bah'tat, John Ellis' Isis, Jim Robertson's Arataia, George Stricker's Servus, John Ciceri's Volare and Ron Saunders' Irrawaddy. Filey Brigg won the PHRF series, runners-up being Noosa and Spice.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club has a six-miler off Sidney on Saturday, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Forty boats raced a 10½-miler on Sunday, the race being won by Don Barker's Interulde. She beat out Will Jensen's Tiara, Russell Gardner's Caprice, Bud Peetz's Sea Quill, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, Barry Camp's Chanterelle, Jim Ross' Llanorig, David Carter's Pisces, Louis Lindholm's Carolina and Willi Fahning's Dominique.

Also out at Sidney, the Saanich Peninsula Sailing Association will be racing again on Sunday. The races will start near the Van-Isle marina's gas wharf, the first gun going at 1:30 p.m.

Club Rocks for Brier

REGINA (CP) — The organizing committee for the Canadian Curling Championship, to be played here March 7-13, announced Wednesday that the Canadian Curling Association has agreed to use rocks from Regina curling clubs for the event.

There have been complaints in previous years from curlers who said rocks provided by the association are difficult to adjust to because of their newness. New rocks are "sharper" and travel farther, officials said.

A news release said the only competing rink unchanged from last year's national championship is that of Jim Ursel of Quebec, who "is likely to be stamped the favorite."

Last year's event was won by Bill Tetley of Northern Ontario. But this year Tetley's rink was knocked out by Rick Lang, who played third for Tetley last year.

Organizers said the event will begin with afternoon and evening draws Sunday, March 7, continue with three draws Monday, morning and afternoon draws Tuesday, afternoon and evening draws the next three days, and the final draw noon Saturday, March 13.

James Bay Powered By Campbell

John Campbell scored 19 points to pace James Bay to a 79-64 victory over the Victoria and District Junior Men in Senior "B" Men's Basketball League action Thursday night at Spectrum School.

Victory moved the Bays four points ahead of Oak Bay in the fight for second place. Bays led 44-41 at the half, then popped in 15 of the first 17 points in the second half to consolidate their position. Ken Wiens was high for the Junior Men with 26 points.

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Pronovost Joins Elite Goal Club

By The Canadian Press

From previous experience, Toronto Maple Leafs should have known that Pittsburgh is no place to test a goaltender, unless he has nerves of steel.

Doug Favell, making his first start for the National Hockey League team since Nov. 8, didn't have a busy time Thursday night, but it didn't matter to the Penguins who took a 7-5 victory.

It was the fifth game in a row the Leafs have lost in Pittsburgh since Jan. 9, 1974, when they won 6-4. In that losing span, the Leafs have been outscored 31-16, which includes losses of 6-3, 7-1, 4-2 and 7-5. In their last 10 games against the Penguins, the Leafs have a 1-8-1 record.

In the only other NHL game, Buffalo Sabres defeated Atlanta Flames 3-1 to move to within six points of Boston Bruins in the Adams Division. Toronto is third with 59 points.

In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis Racers whipped New England Whalers 10-3 and Houston Aeros beat Cleveland Crusaders 5-3.

Jean Pronovost scored three goals and added two assists to lead the Penguins to victory. The goals raised Pronovost's total for the season to a 41, making him the sixth player in NHL history to score 40 or more goals in three consecutive seasons.

Pierre Larouche scored twice—giving him 34 goals this season—and picked up two assists.

Favell, 30-year-old native of St. Catharines, Ont., has been generally idle this season after the Nov. 8 game when he replaced an injured Wayne Thomas. Sharp goaltending by Thomas and Gord McRae, especially early in the season, was considered to be one of the reasons Favell made only three starts for the Leafs this season.

A tendon problem in his elbow, that was aggravated in practice, further immobilized Favell. He has been ready to play since mid-January and even went down to the Leafs' farm team in Oklahoma City to work himself back into shape.

Favell, who didn't expect to play again this season, was told about his starting assignment against Pittsburgh by coach Red Kelly on Wednesday morning.

"I thought when I came back from the minors in good shape and ready to go they'd put me into the lineup. When they didn't, I said to myself that I was finished for the rest of the year. I didn't think they had confidence in me and it's going to be rough for a while, getting my timing back and all that."

City Trio Chosen

Three Victoria gymnasts are included in the team of six, plus two alternates, who have been selected by national team coach John Herb, who are taking part in a qualification meet against Romania at Waterloo, Ont., this weekend.

The Victorians are Philip Delesalle, Bruce Medd and Owen Walstrom.

Others selected following a week's training camp in Toronto are Naosaki Maasaki of Toronto, Pierre Leclerc of Montreal (and the University of Michigan) and Keith Carter of Winnipeg.

Alternates are Glenn Butler of Vancouver and Steve Mtruk of Toronto.

The gymnasts who qualify at this meet will compete as the Olympic team or individually for Canada and will also take part in an "out of the country" competition at Warsaw, Poland the first week in March.

A Tiger Is Loose

Showdown Comes Early For Ramblers, Tigers

Defending champion Mt. Douglas Ramblers and B.C. champion Vic High Tigers meet tonight in their own private showdown for honors in the Lower Island high school girls basketball tournament which oepned Thursday night at Mt. Doug.

They are in the same half of the draw and did the predictable Thursday. They both won easily.

The Ramblers, who upset the Tigers in last year's final, opened with a convincing 50-17 triumph over Claremont Spartans while Vic High had little trouble in a 55-24 victory over Spectrum.

In other games, Reynolds Roadrunners defeated Esquimalt Dockers 43-33, and Belmont Tomahawks got by a stubborn Oak Bay side, 30-24.

Marie Morrison with 12 points sparked the well-balanced Mt. Doug attack. Marg Mason had 10. Debbie Perry was the Claremont leader with six points.

For Vic High, it was a familiar story. League scoring champion Shelley Godfrey and Shirley Lewis each totalled 16 points. Evy Thompson also had 16 for Spectrum.

Claire Turner paced Reynolds with 12 points, Robyn Bartlett carried most of the brunt for Esquimalt with 15 points, Sheila Chalmers had 10 points for Belmont and Sue Taylor was high for Oak Bay with eight.

The tournament continues today at Reynolds with the Vic High-Mt. Douglas clash the feature of the late draw at 7 p.m. Reynolds meets Belmont in the other semi-final at 8:30. Finals will take place at Vic High Saturday.

Haynie Ladies Leader

NEW YORK (AP) — Sandra Haynie holds a narrow lead over JoAnne Carner and Jan Stephenson on the Ladies Professional Golf Assocciation list of season earnings released this week.

After three events, Miss Haynie leads with $10,616. Mrs. Carner is second at $10,266 and Miss Stephenson right behind at $10,120.

Judy Rankin is fourth on the list with $9,091, followed by Jane Blalock, $6,891; Sandra Palmer, $6,187; Judy Meister, $6,005; Pat Bradley, $5,955; Kathy Whitworth, $4,620, and Jerilyn Britz, $3,999.

Bullets on Target

VANCOUVER — Burnaby Bullets scored a 92-77 triumph over Vancouver Athletics Thursday in the opening game of the Dogwood Senior "A" Men's Basketball League semi-final at Winston Churchill School.

Ken Olynk scored 25 points and Werner Spann and Mike McNeil hit for 18 points each for the Bullets, who led, 51-35, at the half.

Bill Leatham scored 22 points for Vancouver while league-leading scorer Brent Watson managed 15 points. Watson scored 13 points in the first half but left the game early in the second half after suffering a charley horse.

The second game of the best-of-three final is Sunday and a third game if necessary would be played next Thursday.

Rich Piechotta Rescues Bucks

Western Buckaroos and London Boxing Club played to a 5-5 stalemate in the first game of the Big Six Hockey League playoffs at Pearkes Arena Thursday night.

Rich Piechotta was the hero of the piece for the Buckaroos as he scored the tying goal with only 46 seconds to play in the third period of the first game of a best-of-seven series. It was Piechotta's third goal of the game.

Brian Hamilton and Rugs Pritchard each scored twice for the Boxers while Al McLaren had a single. Ron Williams and Randy Krantz each had a goal for the Buckaroos.

Strawberry Vale Registration Set

Strawberry Vale Girls Softball Association will hold registration for players 8-19 yetrs of age on Sunday in the Strawberry Vale Community Hall, corner of West Burnside and High Street. Children must be accompanied by a parent. For further information phone 479-3398, 479-5556 or 479-2972.

Stung at Start, Cats Cut Loose

Times News Services

Edmonton Oil Kings started strongly, but Victoria Cougars finished stronger.

The Oil Kings scored three weird goals in the first seven minutes of play but Cougars dominated action thereafter to score a 5-3 Western Canada Hockey League victory at Edmonton Thursday.

The victory kept Victoria within three points of third-place Medicine Hat Tigers, who protected their Western Division cushion with a 7-4 triumph over the Brandon Wheat Kings.

In Thursday's only other game, the last-place Calgary Centennials struck for all their goals in the second period to upset Kamloops Chiefs 5-4 in Calgary.

In Edmonton, the bounce of the puck indicated Cougars were heading for trouble. Ken Burdon scored two goals and Paul Mulvey the other to send Edmonton into a 3-0 lead by the 6:23 mark.

All three Oil Kings' goals stemmed from weird deflections. Mulvey's was deflected three times before finally glancing into the net off Victoria defenceman Tim Williams. Burdon's first bounced off another Cougar defenceman, Lorry Gloeckner, then he took credit for his second goal when a shot by Jeff Bandura deflected off his body.

To top it off, Victoria scoring leader Jim Gustafson took a solid body hit in the opening minutes and re-aggravated a shoulder injury. He sat on the bench for the rest of the game.

That's when the Cougars, out-shot 20-6 in the opening period, turned it around.

Despite a three-line shuffle because of Gustafson's injury, the Cougars played extremely well in the final two periods, out-shooting the Oil Kings 28-10.

Backstopping the victory was goalie Dan Rogers. Not to be faulted on his first three Edmonton goals, Rogers made a particularly-difficult save in the third period just before Will scored the game-winner.

Olmstead cut Clint Eccles for disciplinary reasons this week, and that move was followed by the departure of Jerry Bancks—one of Calgary's best forwards—and Morley Scott.

Calgary recalled 16-year-old Perry Turnbill from The Pass Red Devils in the Alberta Junior League, and the rookie responded with a two-goal performance against Kamloops.

Four Straight For Spartans

In the league's other game, Parkland Panthers occasioned a small surprise with a 12-10 victory over Victoria High Titans at Parkland.

Oak Bay, meanwhile, was stopped by the weather for the second straight time, and St. Michael's had its third straight game postponed, bringing to seven the number of games postponed.

League director Frank Gower says if conditions don't soon improve a shortening of the schedule will be considered.

For Parkland, Darryl Stubbs kicked two penalty goals in the first half and Steve Howery scored a try which was converted by Stubbs in the second half.

Vic High's points came on a first-half try by Terry Haire which was converted by Marty Mader and a second-half try by Ted Lapshinoff.

Another Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, who last fall signed United States college superstar Anthony Davis, now have his brother, Bill, under contract as well.

Bill, 22, is a year younger than his brother who has won wide acclaim as a star running back.

DONOHUE HEIRS SUE

PROVIDENCE (AP) — Heirs of racing driver Mark Donohue have filed a $20 million suit, alleging defects in the tires and safety helmet Donohue was using when he was killed last August in Austria.

Dobereiner Rink Leads Playoffs

NANAIMO — The Hilda Dobreiner rink of Oak Bay may be following in the footsteps of another Victoria rink.

The Flora Martin rink of Victoria for the last two years won the B.C. senior women's curling championship and then went on to win the Canadian.

And now the Dobereiner rink is leading the round-robin competition for the B.C. championship here with a 3-1 record.

Dobereiner won two games Thursday, defeating Joan Morrison of Vernon, 14-7, and Bev Reber of Whitehorse, Yukon, 10-7.

Tied for second are the Ada Calles rink of Kimberley, who defeated Morrison, 10-9, and Betty De Ridder of Hollyburn who had a fourth-round bye.

In other games Thursday, Dean Blake of Burnaby beat Kathy Kerr of Prince Rupert, 9-6; Flo Makepeace of New Westminster defeated Gloria Coons of Dawson Creek, 14-2; Reber won from De Ridder, 9-4; Calles defeated Coons, 7-4, and Kerr edged Makepeace 14-13.

Hayes Survives At Ohio State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Woody Hayes has weathered another storm of criticism and will continue to coach Ohio State football for an unprecedented 26th season this fall. Factions of the press, school alumni and student body have lashed at Hayes for skipping a news conference after a 23-10 upset by UCLA in the Rose Bowl and for his handling of the dismissal of star defensive tackle Nick Buonamici.

A Birthday Walk For Swiss Skier

BASLE, Switzerland (Reuter) — Skier Roland Collombin of Switzerland celebrated his 25th birthday in hospital by walking for the first time since a training accident last December at Val d'Isere, France, when he broke two vertebrae.

Doctors said Collombin, World Cup downhill champion two seasons ago and 1972 Olympic silver medallist, would remain two more weeks in hospital.

Burrows In, Patterson Out for Bates

Bob Burrows is the new coach of Victoria Bate softball team which this month won a share of the world championship in New Zealand. Former coach Joe Patterson announced his resignation Thursday.

General manager Jack Bell made the official announcement early this morning. He said Burrows had been in discussions with team sponsor Herb Bate for the past few days and an agreement had been reached today for Burrows to coach the club.

Patterson, who coached Bates to the Canadian championship in Oshawa last summer and then followed with the world title in New Zealand earlier this month, had been coach of Bates for the past five years and during that time had taken them to five national finals.

He cited the normal pressures of work and personal reasons for his decision to leave the club. It was not unexpected. Patterson had hinted last summer that 1975 would be his last season; and then in New Zealand this month when the decision was made to have three teams — Canada, the U.S. and New Zealand — share the world title, when bad weather cancelled the playoff he said that was it. He was getting out.

He felt Bates should have been declared champions because they won the round-robin competition 11-1.

Burrows, a former professional baseball player, was one of the stars of the tournament. He hit four homes, a tournament record, in New Zealand, and has been one of the mainstays of the team since he took up softball three years ago. Last year he was named Victoria's male athlete of the year.

WASHINGTON — The National Football League's 26 club owners have purposely delayed the college and expansion drafts to give them more time to reconsider adding teams in Birmingham and Memphis, a lawyer for the NFL Players Association said Thursday. Lawyer Ed Glennon said the owners have filed suit against the association federal court in Miami in an attempt to delay the drafts until after their March meeting when they will reconsider the two membership applications.

Four Strokes Off His Age

LOS ANGELES (AP) — His wide West Virginia smile shows satisfaction as 63-year-old Sam Snead continues to show the youngsters that the oldtimers have something left.

"It's great, no, in fact, it's fantastic that a man Sam's age can play as well as he does," said Tom Watson, 26, the British Open champion who like Snead had fired a four-under-par 67 in Thursday's opening round of the $185,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

Both Snead and Watson were one stroke behind the leader, Tom Jenkins, 28, of Houston, Tex., but Snead still commanded the attention.

Snead had a double bogey on the fifth hole when he hit a tree with his tee shot and banged a limb with his second.

"Other than that I played pretty well from tee to green," he said.

Jenkins earded five birdies without going over par on a hole. His putts for birdies ranged from two to 15 feet but generally it was his irons that put him in sub-par position.

Watson, like Snead, had to survive a double bogey. On the second hole, his shot lodged against a fence and he had to chip backward to get in playing position.

Ben Crenshaw and Johnny Miller, the two golfers who have won two tournaments this year, remained in contending position, Crenshaw with a 70 and Miller with a 72, the same score posted by Arnold Palmer and Gary Player.

Roster Extras Too Costly

TORONTO (CP) — For the second year in a row, the Canadian Football League has rejected an increase in rosters, mainly because of concern about the economic situation.

The league also announced Thursday that commissioner Jake Gaudaur has agreed to a five-year contract, estimated at $50,000 anually and running to Jan. 1, 1981.

Ralph Sazio, president of the league's executive committee, announced Gaudaur's new mandate during the third day of the annual league meetings.

The executive committee rejected proposals for bigger lineups from Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Alouettes and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Winnipeg's proposal, calling for the addition of two Canadians, was the only one reported to be considered seriously, although the other two motions required a vote.

The CFL's roster limit since 1965 has been 32—including 17 Canadians and 15 United States players. In the last two years, however, a number of the nine teams have been seeking an increase.

With the addition of blocking on punt returns last season, increasing the injury rate, many coaches found the roster size inadequate.

A roster proposal requires a 6-to-3 majority vote. Last year, the vote was 5 to 4, this year 4 to 5.

"Everybody is saying they need more people but they also realize they can't afford it," Gaudaur said.

Gaudaur estimated that it would cost the entire CFL $225,000 to add one import player to the roster of each team. He said that cost was worked out at an approximate cost of $25,-000 a player.

The Alouettes wanted to set up a four-man taxi squad, which would be in addition to the 32-man roster. The Argonauts wanted to increase the roster to 33 with the additional player being a Canadian-born quarterback. All were rejected.

In other business, Ottawa Mayor Lorrie Greenberg made a presentation to the executive committee for either the 1977 or 1978 Grey Cup games. However, the league deferred a decision until the semi-annual meeting in May.

Gaudaur explained the committee had to defer the 1978 Grey Cup game until they could make a final decision on the 1977 game. He said the committee wanted Montreal to play host to the 1977 game, but because of the uncertainies of the Olympic Stadium, nothing can be confirmed at this time.

The semi-annaul meeting is tentatively scheduled for Calgary the last week of May.

Gaudaur also said the executive committee approved four rules changes for 1976, suggested by the CFL rules committee in Edmonton last month.

Primarily the changes are aimed at discouraging crack-back blocks; rewarding a team blocking a kick into the goal area; minimizing the penalty for a kickoff that goes out of bounds; and equalizing the pass interference rule as it pertains to goal area offences.

Linebackers, who have been the main victims of the crack-back blocks, now will gain some protection from the rule which calls for a 15-yard penalty. The rule says it is illegal for a player who is positioned outside the offensive tackle moving in the direction of the ball prior to the snap and blocking an opponent below the waist within two yards on either side of the line of scrimmage.

A two-point safety will be awarded to a team that blocks a kick if the kick goes out of bounds in the end zone or is recovered by the kicking team in its end zone regardless of whether the kick was blocked in the end zone or the field of play. Under previous rules, only a single point was awarded if the kick was blocked outside the end zone.

The penalty for a kickoff that goes out of bounds or which doesn't travel 10 yards is reduced to five yards from 10.

The fourth rule change makes the penalty for pass interference by a defensive team within its 10-yard line the same as the penalty for pass interference in the end zone. A first down will be awarded to the passing team at the defending team's 10-yard line if the previous line of scrimmage was outside the 20-yard line. Half the distance to the goal line from the line of scrimmage will be stepped off and a first down awarded if the line of scrimmage was within the 20.

TWO-DIVISION LEAGUE

EDMONTON (CP) — The Western Major Fastball League will have two four-team divisions th is year with teams from Calgary, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Edmonton, Saskatoon Regina, Winnipeg and Weyburn.

Holloway Keeps Hoop Point Lead

SASKATOON (CP) — Amanda Holloway of University of Alberta Pandas continues to lead the individual scoring race in the Canada West University Athletic Association Women's Basketball League.

Holloway has 330 points in 18 games for an 18.3-points-per-game average, league statistics released Wednesday night show. Mary Mainwaring of Victoria Vikings is second with a 14.2 average.

Mainwaring, whose Vikings have clinched the league title, leads in field-goal accuracy, hitting on 54.2 per cent of her shots.

Although Calgary Dinnies are tied for last in the standings, they have two performers leading in individual departments. Jacky Shaw tops the rebounders with a 14.1-per-game average and Linda Nickolychuk is the top free-throw shooter with a 74.6 per cent accuracy mark.

Champion Joins Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Champion, defensive line coach with St. Louis Cardinals for the last two seasons, has joined the staff of New York Jets under new coach Lou Holtz, the National Football League team announced Thursday.

Champion coached the Cardinals' defensive line in 1966 and then moved to British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League until 1971, when he returned to the NFL with New Orleans Saints. He rejoined the Cardinals in 1973.

Unitys Need One To Collect Three

One more victory would produce three titles for First United Unitys.

For University of Victoria Jayvees, the appointed task is two triumphs for the same three crowns.

Unitys and Jayvees are currently engaged in a best-of-three playoff for the Greater Victoria, Vancouver Island and provincial junior women's basketball championships.

Holding the edge after tripling the Jayvees 53-46 in the series opener, Unitys will attempt to wrap up the three-title package Sunday at the old UVic gymnasium when the clubs clash in the second game at 2:30 p.m.

On the same court earlier will be Victoria Scorpions, who are continuing preparations for a two-title playoff.

Scorpions hit the floor at 12:30 Sunday to finish a two-game, senior "A" men's exhibition series against the Renton Roadrunners. The clubs open that series Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the UVic gym.

Winners of the Dogwood League title, Scorpions are waiting to play the survivors of the league semi-final in a playoff for both the Dogwood championship and the provincial senior "A" men's crown.

Caps to Play English Club

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League will play an exhibition game here May 24 against Manchester United, current English first division joint leaders.

General-manager Denny Veitch said he hopes the Manchester United game will set a record for a Canadian soccer crowd, exceeding the 26,500 fans who showed up to see Brazilian star Pele in action for the New York Cosmos against the Whitecaps last July.

Whitecaps will open their 1976 season at home against the Portland Timbers on Good Friday, April 16.

Horton's Satisfied

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton says he's happy after signing for a reported $105,000 to become the highest-paid baseball player in the history of the American League's Detroit Tigers.

"I didn't get everything I wanted," Horton said after signing. "But I'm happy with what I got."

The Tiger outfielder had originally asked for $140,000, which would have put him in the same category with the newly-acquired Rusty Staub. Staub soon will put his name on a 1976 contract for about $145,000, so Horton's "highest-paid" title won't stand for long.

The veteran Tiger slugger had threatened to play out his option and become a free agent if the club didn't meet his demands.

But this week, he agreed to the lower amount offered by Tiger general manager Jim Campbell.

Psychiatrist Dispensed Drugs Legally

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The unofficial team psychiatrist for San Diego Chargers apparently acted legally in providing drugs to players in 1973, a narcotics investigator reported this week.

He said the action was legal because Dr. Arnold Mandell is a medical doctor as well as chairman of the University of California at San Diego's psychiatry department.

Eugene Klein, who owns the National Football League team, said Mandell dispensed 1,700 amphetamines to athletes from July to November 1973.

Dr. Mandell was unavailable for comment but Joseph House, supervising special agent of the California Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement, said his office has no interest in investigating Klein's charges unless he has evidence of wrongdoing.

Klein made the accusation at a news conference called Monday to announce the promotion of Johnny Sanders as general manager of the Chargers. A longtime Los Angeles Rams scout, Sanders succeeds Harland Svare whom Klein said he fired last month because of a book written by Dr. Mandell, now in the hands of his publisher in New York City.

The book, The Nightmare Season, relates Dr. Mandell's experiences as guest of the Chargers in 1973 before a drug scandal brought fines totalling $40,000 against Klein, Svare and eight players. After the league's action in April, 1974, Dr. Mandell ceased his association with the team, saying the NFL ordered him away.

Klein said the psychiatrist was never paid but was invited because players appeared to be "up" and "down" for games. It was thought that Dr. Mandell might be able to motivate them, he said.

As long ago as 1969 drugs were a public problem for the Chargers. Lineman Houston Ridge filed a lawsuit saying he was injured in a game that year while playing under the influence of team-supplied drugs.

The suit was settled out of court in May of 1973 with Ridge getting close to $300,000.

CITY FEELS CARPARK CERTAIN

Gov't May Delay Office Complex

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's biggest hole in the ground is a major question mark today in view of the provincial government's reassessment of its 1976 spending program.

The $17.5 million project would provide two levels of underground parking and five storeys of office buildings covering almost a full city block at Blanshard and Courtney, adjacent to the Wilson Inn.

Victoria City donated 34,800 square feet of land for $1 on the understanding the province would provide a carpark as part of the project.

"Whatever else happens, we believe the provincial government is committed to the parkade," said city manager Jim Bramley.

He said the city has heard nothing to indicate the project would be delayed.

However, government sources indicated the project might be delayed because of the provincial government's reassessment of its spending program.

It would provide 210,000 square feet of parking on two underground levels, enough for 540 cars.

In addition, there would be 210,000 square feet of office space above ground. The building would taper up to five floors. Stores, restaurants and public walkways are planned for the ground level.

The provincial government had pencilled in the date November, 1977, as a target for completion.

Excavation for the parking levels is just about complete and work on the cement superstructure is about to begin, if the project gets the green light.

In its agreement with the city, the provincial government promised to proceed "forthwith" with the construction of the building, including the carpark. However, no deadline for completion is in the agreement.

The city understands that in view of the gift of land for $1, it has the right to retrieve its land if the project does not proceed.

Bramley stressed that the city is confident the carpark portion will be constructed and that is the only part of the project in which the city has a direct interest.

Government sources said that if the office portion of the project had to be delayed, work might proceed in stages. There was no indication the project as a whole would be shelved.

Oil Put Into Sewer Blamed In Bird Deaths, Beach Mess

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1976 17
SECOND SECTION

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Oil released into Victoria's sewers and discharged at Clover Point is killing waterfowl and polluting nearby beaches, a SPCA inspector disclosed today.

Rick West said the source of oil pollution has definitely been traced to the sewage system.

"There is no question about it," he said. "Someone is using the system to get rid of bunker or oil waste. The quantities are small but it builds up over a period of time."

He said the slick which washed up at Ross Bay on Jan. 28 came from the Clover Point outfall and not from a passing freighter as first believed.

He said the tide carried the slick to Ross Bay.

West said an average of two birds a day, covered with oil are turned into the SPCA shelter for treatment. In the last two days six were brought to the shelter.

"There is no way of telling how many birds have died as the result of oil pollution," he said. "We only receive and pick up birds which remain on oil-covered rocks because they are too weak to move."

He said diving birds suffer as they dive through the oil and come up through it.

Otters also suffer because the oil gets on their fur. They also sometimes eat the weaker birds and the oil gets into their system and they die.

He said Clover Point attracts quite a number of birds because of the feed in the area.

Steam plants are suspected of releasing waste oil into the sewage system but it could come from other sources, West said.

"Surely there are better ways of getting rid of waste oil," he said. "There is no reason to use the sewage system for a pollutant of this type."

He said other outfalls are being checked out for oil pollution.

"We are still investigating," he said. "Meanwhile, everyday residents report seeing oil-covered birds. Despite their weakness, we have been successful in treating them. We released them when they have regained their strength."

The oil from the outfall on Jan. 28 fouled about 600 feet of shoreline at Ross Bay. A crew used propane torches to burn it off.

It was estimated that the slick amounted to about six barrels of bunker oil.

Freight Spat on Ferry

Two trailerloads of freight had to be taken back to Port Angeles aboard the Black Ball ferry Coho earlier this week because of a dispute about which Teamsters' Union members should unload the freight.

The Coho made its first run Monday after a three-week refit in Seattle.

Black Ball last year sold the freight service part of its operation to an American firm and Johnston Terminals in Victoria acts as that firm's Canadian agent.

Teamsters members at Black Ball apparently still considered the off-loading of freight to be in their jurisdiction, despite the sale of the freight service, and prevented Teamsters employed by Jonnston Terminals from doing the off-loading.

Teamsters officials would not comment on the incident.

Johnston spokesman Wes Avison said the freight is now coming in on the Anacortes ferry to Sidney until the problem is settled.

Fumento said he thought it would be settled soon but would not elaborate.

Chamber Wants Ferry For Foot Passengers

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will meet Transport Minister Jack Davis in an effort to get the provincial government to keep the Prince George and use her as a foot passenger vessel between Victoria and Vancouver.

The decision to mount a campaign to save the vessel was made at an emergency meeting of directors today.

President Jack Hutchins said, just as in the case of the Princess Marguerite, the Chamber will rally support, hoping to get Davis to change his mind and not sell the ship to the highest bidder.

"We envisage a three-way link-up with people being able to travel from Vancouver to Victoria on the Prince George, then to Seattle aboard the Marguerite, returning to Vancouver by train without ever getting into their cars," he said.

Hutchins said if the government had the Prince George's state rooms gutted, in order to make more foot pasenger space as they did in the case of the Marguerite, it would considerably reduce renovation costs.

He said the downtown to downtown Victoria-Vancouver run could be extended from May to September to all-year-round service if found economically viable.

"We feel pretty strong about the need for walking downtown traffic," he said. "You only have to walk up and down Government Street, even though it's improved, to realize we need a walking traffic to make it economically viable."

Another cry for public support to save the ship came from semi-retired Victoria businessman Gordie Townsend today, who has 14 years experience in railway transportation.

"I would like to see the thing bought by the people of the province. If they can raise $2 or $3 million to save the Orpheum Theatre (in Vancouver), why not?", he asked.

Townsend said an organization could be financed by share purchases at a nominal sum by members of the public, giving them a vote in the company and serving as a down payment on a cruise.

City Backs Off Prosecutions In Drive on Tax Defaulters

Victoria's property tax defaulters who are willing to pay their outstanding taxes but need a little time to do so won't be taken to court by the city, Mayor Mike Young said Thursday.

Following an in-camera meeting of council's finance committee, Young told reporters that all such taxpayers who have indicated they intend to settle their accounts will receive letters from city solicitor Jakob de Villiers indicating how much time they will be allowed.

But the mayor declined to say what that period of grace will be. He did say, however, that no discretionary time limits will be allowed in the basis of individual circumstances.

"In essence, we have decided to treat everyone in the same way," he said. "We have agreed to full payment on a short-term instalment basis as necessary."

Young denied council was yielding to pressure by extending deadlines on its suing policy. As happens in any other lawsuit, he said, the city is merely arranging the terms of settlement where the taxpayers concerned have said they will make appropriate arrangements to pay "over a short term."

The policy of court action to recover overdue taxes was first applied to 128 commercial, professional and industrial taxpayers owing the city a total of $659,887. Thirty-three writs were actually served.

To date a total of $296,837 has been paid, and de Villiers said this total will increase as a number of post-dated cheques he has received mature within the next few days.

He said 11 firms or individuals have applied for time to pay their delinquent tax bills but not all of these requests are being granted.

Sums owned in this category range from $800 up to $78,000 for a total of about $250,000. The solicitor confirmed earlier reports that the bulk of the sum — $185,000 — is owed by three motel owners.

De Villiers said some people want until next year to settle, but the period fixed by aldermen allows a much shorter time to pay. The city would not permit 1976 taxes to become due while arrears were still outstanding.

That would indicate the maximum time limit allowable will not exceed four months, as this year's property taxes are due by June 30.

De Villiers said that apart from the extensions approved Thursday no further requests for time to pay will be considered.

'Amazing Support' Noted For Clark in Tory Race

Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon today rated Joe Clark at the head of the second rank of contestants for the party leadership to be decided Sunday.

He admits he is biased as one of the early supporters of Clark for Tory leader, but he said Friday night's reception in Ottawa Civic Centre Conservative convention rated Clark suprisingly high.

Measured in cheers, Clark's candidacy has "amazing" convention support, McKinnon said in an interview from Ottawa. In addition, Clark is getting a lot of attention from political commentators, he noted.

"We could hardly feel better than we do about our candidate."

McKinnon said about 7,000 delegates and party workers at the convention Friday demonstrated their enthusiasm for Clark, while support for the others was perfunctory.

At this point, Claude Wagner, Paul Hellyer and Brian Mulroney are one-two-three for the balloting, McKinnon said.

McKinnon said Wagner was not showing much strength at the convention, but this may be because he is "keeping most of his Quebec support at home until Saturday" so as not to create a Quebec schism in the convention.

Hellyer is getting more support than Jack Horner, to a degree which McKinnon thought might surprise armed forces-conscious Victorians.

Tribute to Retiring Judge

Tribute was paid this morning to Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton of B.C. Supreme Court as he stepped into retirement after 15 years on the bench.

Mr. Justice Wootton, who is 74, has been the resident Supreme Court judge in Victoria since 1961. No immediate replacement has been announced.

One of his first comments after the tributes was to note that his daughter, Anna, a lawyer, was present.

He said it is a great honor, privilege and responsibility to be a judge.

"This should be a happy occasion: I am not exactly being buried," he joked at one point.

"I thank you all. It's simply delightful to hear sweet things said on such an occasion."

His retirement caps a distinguished career in both public service and the law.

He is a former councillor and reeve of Oak Bay, a past president of the Men's Canadian Club, former chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors and registrar of the Anglican Synod, former president of Oak Bay Progressive Conservatives.

WOOTTON

He was a bencher of the Law Society of B.C. for 10 years until his appointment as a judge, a former president of the Victoria Bar Association and B.C. president of the Canadian Bar Association.

Dr. J. J. Gow, president of the Victoria Bar Association, said it was both a sad and a joyous occasion — sad because "we shall miss appearing before you," missing his patience, firmness, dignity and compassion.

But it was also a joyous occasion "because you will enjoy years of retirement after years of distinguished service."

Choose Alarm Carefully

CAVEAT EMPTOR

By LYNNE GORDON

I was startled to discover how quickly a small child learns to associate fire with a threat to his home. A few weeks ago I was talking with the mother of a two-year-old about fire alarms. In the middle of the conversation, he suddenly ran to her, threw his arms around her legs and whimpered, "The house, the house." Somehow he had understood enough of our conversation to associate a thing called fire with the security of his home.

A fear of fire, the killer which claims over 700 lives in Canada a year, is instilled in us early in life.

Because fire threatens so much more than just property, constant fire prevention and warning devices are a necessity.

In the last few years, there has been a great influx of fire alarms on the consumer market. Purchase decisions are made difficult by the fact that mandatory testing of fire alarms is not required. Unscrupulous operators can sell inferior alarms, which can give homeowners a false sense of security.

There is no question that we need a federal standard for fire alarms — regulations prohibiting the sale of any alarm not meeting the standard.

Right now, the best guideline is to look for an alarm marked "approved by the Underwriters Laboratories of Canada (ULC) or its U.S. counterpart, UL. The label tells you that the alarm has been tested by an independent body and will do what the manufacturer's written claim says it does.

When you buy a fire warning device, you should look for one that is sensitive to the most common type of fire in the home: The slow smouldering fire, which is so frequently started by careless smoking. For example, a forgotten cigarette that has fallen into a chesterfield has gone undetected as the family has retired for the night. It smoulders slowly, unnoticed, until fatal toxic fumes accumulate.

Of the two basic types of fire alarms, the heat sensors depend on a high heat to be set-off (60C or 140F), by the time the alarm responds, toxic fumes have possibly claimed their victims and flames have broken out preventing escape.

What you need is an "early warning device", a smoke detector known as a "products combustion device." It is set off by smoke, and, theoretically, should alert the family before toxic fumes accumulate. Whether it indeed responds as quickly as manufacturers claim, depends a great deal on its sensitivity and how close it is to the source of the fire.

Fire authorities have not confirmed any claims as to which is more sensitive — the photo electric or ionization devices. A study conducted by the Consumer Association of Canada last year, concluded that the photo devices are more sensitive to the most common types of home fires.

Fire officials, however, refuse to confirm that finding.

Similarily, no preference is shown by fire authorities for either battery-operated or household current-operated early warning devices. It is pointed out that in case of a power failure, a line power "plug-in" type won't go off unless it has a battery back-up. Also, people who are lazy about replacing batteries may let a battery-operated alarm go dead in spite of warning lights and geeps from the alarm. The two types are considered equally safe, provided maintenance and installation instructions are followed and that the alarm is ULC approved.

For an alarm to operate properly, it must be installed in a correct location of the home.

A fire alarm should never be placed at the baseboard because heat and smoke rise. The ceiling, or within inches of the ceiling, would be the more suitable location.

Decay Woes? Check Diet

This is the fifth in a series of six articles on dental health published by the Victoria Times in co-operation with the Victoria and District Dental Society in observance of February as Dental Health Month.

My son has a couple of teeth filled each time he goes to the dentist. But he does not eat a lot of candy. What can I do aobut this?

Unfortunately, there are a lot of other sweets in addition to candy that can lead to dental decay: cakes, cookies, sweetened drinks, candied popcorn, even breath sweeteners. He may be one of those compulsive sweet eaters who is ruining his dental health.

To minimize tooth decay, it is important to avoid eating such sweetened foods and beverages, particularly between meals. Each time that foods containing sugar are eaten, certain bacteria in the mouth are stimulated to create acids that attack the tooth enamel, eventually causing decay.

The most serious damage to the teeth is done within about 20 minutes after eating sweetened foods. So the more often the sweets are eaten and the longer they remain in the mouth, the longer the decay process continues.

If your child must eat between meals, select items like fresh fruits, raw carrots and celery, potato chips and popcorn, milk and cheese. Or foods and beverages that are made with artificial sweeteners.

During the pre-school years, it is a lot easier for you to control you child's diet. This is the time to help him establish good eating habits by providing the proper foods and by eliminating an abundance of between-meal snacks that contain decay-causing sugars.

Welch Medical Report

The endless skin scaling stops. The raw-beef redness of the underlying skin takes on a smooth tan. And, as it has with 95 per cent of the people with psoriasis who have been treated with PUVA, real progress has been made in the management of this discouraging skin disease.

This new, photochemotherapy treatment of psoriasis is now scheduled to be tested in 1,600 more patients in a nationwide trial. PUVA stands for psoralen tablets plus ultraviolet -A light.

The Harvard University clinic and its co-operating clinic at the University of Vienna in Austria, which reported on the successful treatment of patients a year ago, have now treated a total of 300 psoriasis sufferers, and all but 18 of their patients have achieved complete clearing of the disease. Another 41 per cent are at least 90 per cent improved.

With continued treatment over periods of up to nearly two years, 237 patients of the original 300 have stayed completely well.

The effectiveness of photochemotherapy (PUVA) in clearing up the stubborn scales and crimson skin patches of psoriasis is little short of sensational, but there is good reason to go slowly in order to study possible, long-term toxic side effects.

There is very little reason to be concerned about the ill effects from the skin-sensitizing pill that is part of the treatment, for psoralen has been used for thousands of years in Egypt and India to treat patches of unpigmented skin, and has been used in this country for the same problems for at least 25 years.

The potentially dangerous aspect of the treatment is the special ultraviolet light to which the psoriatic skin is exposed once it has been sensitized by the psoralen tablet.

The dose of light is elaborated by a sophisticated new source of special, ultravoilet rays and must be adavoid blistering of the skin. ministered with great care and precisely calculated to Studies are needed to make sure that the long-term effect of this type of ultraviolet light will not cause skin cancer.

Studies in rats employing drug doses 1,000 times those used in men and light exposure 10,000 times that used in men have produced both skin cancer and cataracts in those experimental animals.

In spite of possible long-term problems, there seems the be no question that within another year or so, the most effective treatment for psoriasis that has yet appeared will be bringing relief to the estimated 75 million sufferers of all ages, all over the world.

But experts in the field warn against non-expert warn against the use of treatment and especially lighting systems that are not exact replicas of the original systems used, at Harvard and in the Vienna Clinic.

Aging Mom Snubbed

DEAR ABBY: I have an elderly mother who has been in a nursing home for the last four years.

I am one of her three children. (One son and two daughers.) We all live within a 45-minute drive from the nursing home, and all of us contribute equally toward the expenses, but I am the only one who visits her. I go there every day.

My brother goes once in four months. He says, "I just can't take it. That place is so depressing!" Can you believe it? He calls Mama on the phone maybe once a week and keeps asking her if she "needs" anything. (All she needs is for him to visit once in a while.)

My sister runs over there once a month for five minutes. She doesn't even sit down. She tells me the "smell" of that place makes her sick. How is that for an excuse?

Although Mama gets confused once in a while, she is far from senile. I know she's hurt, but there's nothing I can do about it.

Please print this. The shoe will fit both a woman, size 6, and a man, size 10. Let them wear it! — HAD IT IN DETROIT

DEAR HAD IT: The shoe for this situation has no size. One size fits all.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem and I need help. I have been married for six years, and my husband still acts as though we have been married only a few days.

He won't keep his hands off me. We can have marital relations for an hour straight, and he is ready to go again in 15 minutes. I don't ever reach a climax.

Should my husband see a doctor, or should I get some energy pills? — MRS. A. IN KILGORE, TEX.

DEAR MRS. A.: Energy pills won't help. You need professional help.

(P.S. Too bad your husband wasn't born during Biblical times when a man could have as many wives as he could support.)

DEAR ABBY: I am an 80-year-old man who lost his wife last year. I'm in good health, but I am lonely.

I have become attracted to my widowed sister-in-law. (She was my wife's younger sister.) I never thought I would consider marrying again, but lately I am changing my mind because of this lady.

Is it wrong to have romantic feelings about a sister-in-law? She's 74 and a lot of fun, and she reminds me of my beloved wife. — FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: When your wife died, her sister ceased being your sister-in-law. She is now as eligible as any other single woman. If the romantic feelings are mutual, proceed without guilt. Neither of you needs parental consent.

Age Gap Widening

LONDON (Reuter) — Women now are living eight years longer than men compared to the beginning of the century, when the gap was only two or three years, American research in the General Practioner Journal showed.

Also the gap will continue to grow for the next 40 years, the research showed. Scientists think it's because of genetic differences between the sexes.

They said that sex hormones might be involved. Researchers at Georgetown Hospital have found that in rats and guinea pigs, the blood of females is less likely to clot than in males.

The male hormone testosterone might cause blood clotting, they said. When the sex organs of male and female animals were removed, the tendency to clot was similar.

Doctor Urges More Attention Paid to Elderly

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Society must pay more attention to the needs of the elderly, especially to some of the simpler things, says a Memorial University professor.

Dr. Keith Hodgkin, a member of the faculty of medicine, says there are two different groups among the elderly — those between 65 and 75 years of age and those older than 75.

The younger of the groups, he says, tend to experience problems of middle age rather than of the elderly, while those over 75 have problems of care and mental state.

Dr. Hodgkin said at a meeting of the Newfoundland association on aging that the real, although simple, problems of the old are not being tackled.

Many of these persons had to be taught such things as getting out of a chair or how to look after themselves.

"It is exxtraordinary how this area is so neglected," the doctor said.

Dr. Hodgkin puts almost all the problems of the elderly into four categories — mobility, self-care, mental state and social contact.

He said problems in these areas can be serious and recommended development of community support services such as home care and meal delivery to help the elderly.

Izvestia Admits Radiation

MOSCOW (AP) — Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper has admitted that there is "electromagnetic radiation" in the U.S. embassy in Moscow but said it is below minimum health standards in the Soviet Union.

In the first Soviet comment on reports of radiation hazards at the embassy, Izvestia rejected any suggestion that the health of embassy personnel were endanbered. It blamed the reports on "circles that oppose the line of maintaining and developing good, normal relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States."

Izvestia said it was well known and normal that "a certain electromagnetic field" may develop in big cities because of radio and television stations, other means of communication and some industrial enterprises.

It said a joint Soviet-American check was made at the U.S. embassy and it was found that the radiation "is below the minimum sanitary standards existing in the Soviet Union."

Krystyna Chojnowska-Liskiewicz

Solo Sailor Fears Illness, Whales

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — A 45-year-old Polish woman ship-builder has set out to beat two rivals to sail around the world. Her big fears are illness and whales.

Krystyna Chojnowska-Liskiewicz, mother of two, left this Baltic city aboard a freighter carrying her 31-foot sailboat, Mazurek, to Las Palmas in the Canary Islands where she will start the two-year, 30,000-mile voyage.

She is due in the islands at the end of February. The date of her sailboat departure from Las Palmas has not been set yet, but she is expected to leave in mid-March.

Her route leads through the Panama canal, past Tahiti and Australia, across the Indian Ocean and around the Cape of Good Hope back to Las Palmas. She plans to buy some supplies along the way and get others from Polish freighters in different ports of call.

Her boat is made of plastic with a 39-foot mast and Dacron sails, and has a small auxiliary engine, Western-made navigation instruments and a two-way radio.

"I have two important rivals — Waltraud Meyer of Austria, whose boat is moored in a Spanish harbor, all ready to sail, and Noriko Kobayashi of Japan," Mrs. Chojnowska-Liskiewicz said before leaving Gdansk.

"But I heard Waltraud was ill and couldn't leave ahead of me. Noriko has just now finished her trans-Pacific crossing and she too won't be able to leave soon.

"So, perhaps my dream will come true and I'll be the first."

Mrs. Chojnowska-Liskiewicz holds a diploma in shipbuilding from the Gdansk Polytechnic School. She began sailing as an undergraduate and 10 years ago won a skipper's licence.

The Guinness Book of World Records says Capt. Joshua Slocum, 51, made the first solo circumnavigation of the globe. He left Newport, R.I., April 24, 1895, and returned July 3, 1898, after a trip of 46,000 miles.

Haven from Brutality

WINNIPEG (CP) — Women seek refuge at Osborne House near downtown Winnipeg for a variety of reasons.

Most often, they come because they are hunted and desperately trying to escape from the brutality of their husbands.

"We offer them rest, safety and time to decide what to do," said Bev Riley, director of individual services for the Winnipeg YWCA.

"If they need help from a social agency, we make appointments for them. If they need a lawyer, we help find one. The basis of our work is to help and support."

To many of the women who arrive at the nondescript four-bedroom house, some of them with their children, medical care is their first need.

"Some women arrive so badly beaten they must be taken to hospital," Riley said. "Our first investment was an all-purpose first aid kit."

The idea of a crisis centre for women is a relatively new one in Winnipeg and many other urban centres across Canada and one that finds its origin in the women's movement.

For Wesna Saric and others intimately associated with Osborne House, however, the home's first priority is hardly ideological.

"Feminism is for the middle class," said Saric. "We're not moralists here. We deal with the immediate situation. We're not going to preach to them on women's lib. At this point, it's plain survival that matters."

Hundreds of women and their children have passed through Osborne House since the fall of 1974 and many others have had to be turned away for lack of space.

Alcohol seems to have played a part in many of their family problems and, like alcoholism, the problems of abuse seem to cut across all classes of society.

Riley said the tendency toward abuse appears to be passed on to children from parents, with boys identifying with an abusive father or girls with a battered mother.

"It seems to be chronically perpetuated from generation to generation."

The work of Osborne House has won praise from a number of social agencies in Winnipeg, but only limited financial support.

It survived last year with help from the city of Winnipeg, the United Way, the YWCA and a number of private donors, but its existence for the latter part of 1975 was mostly hand-to-mouth.

Pusher Jailed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Allan Joseph Cowie, 21, of Hixon has been sentenced to seven years in jail on a charge of importing cocaine.

He also was sentenced to seven years on a charge of conspiring to import cocaine and three years on a charge of possession of cocaine for the purpose of trafficking. All sentences are to be served concurrently.

Saigon Cheques In

SAIGON (Reuter) — People with bank accounts in Saigon can start writing cheques again, the official Liberation Daily reported.

Exercise Helps Faint Hearts

NEW YORK (Reuter) — A California medical research team has developed a diet and exercise program that it believes can virtually eliminate heart disease.

The program, now undergoing further scientific testing in California, already has produced startling results in a number of ill patients.

The most dramatic was recorded in an 81-year-old woman who, because of advanced cardiovascular disease, could barely walk 30 yards when she began the program six years ago.

Now, at the age of 87, she runs a mile every day and proudly displays four gold medals she won — in one-mile and half-mile events — in the Senior Olympics held in Irvine, Calif., in 1974 and 1975.

The program's developers — two doctors and two medical researchers — say that theirs is the first successful reversal of human heart disease that does not use drugs or surgery.

Their claims — based on findings of an initial test sample of 38 patients — were revealed in scientific papers presented late last year to professional medical groups, subsequent interim reports and in telephone conversations.

However, the scientists stress that these are preliminary findings and must be verified by further testing — by themselves and by other independent researchers.

With this aim the four have begun a year-long testing program in Santa Barbara, Calif., in which 1,000 patients with severe heart disease — most candidates for major heart surgery — will be placed on the diet — exercise regimen and followed closely for developments.

The prescribed diet — 10 per cent protein, 10 per cent fat and 80 per cent complex carbohydrates, with no added vitamins or minerals — is designed to reduce cholesterol in the body, the prime cause of most forms of cardiovascular disease.

Nathan Pritikin, co-ordinator of the research project, says controlling cholesterol levels in the blood is the key to combating heart disease and most of its related ailments — angina (chest pains due to lack of oxygen reaching the heart), hypertension high blood pressure and claudication pain in arms and legs due to lack of oxygen reaching the limbs.

Pritikin said in an interview that the body produces sufficient cholesterol on its own and eating too much animal fats or refined carbohydrates causes it to over-produce.

The resultant abundance of cholesterol in the blood, he said, tends to cause the oxygen-carrying red cells to "stick" together, resulting in two dangerous situations.

First, because the cells are "stuck" together, they are not able to assimilate oxygen and distribute it throughout the body as they normally would.

The researchers say that results of their initial experiment — on 38 cardiovascular patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Long Beach, Calif. — show that their diet, with regular exercise, drastically reduces cholesterol levels, as measured in blood samples, and physical symptoms, both as perceived by the patient and measured by instruments.

The diet is similar to those of a score of societies throughout the world that are virtually free of heart disease. It severely limits the intake of animal fats and proteins and depends a great deal on unrefined, or natural, carbohydrates.

Without Central Heating? You Can Still Keep Warm

The traditional Japanese home and its inhabitants have happily survived many centuries in a climate not very different from our own. And that house and the people who live in it have done so without central heat.

Yes they can. Here are a few of the ways people keep warm in such a traditional dwelling.

The kakebuton or Japanese quilt is quite different from an American one. When constructed of a combination of modern and traditional materials as it now usually is, it consists of a very light nylon covering over each side of a loft (or thickness) of approximately four inches — composed of untold layers — of cotton.

This quilt is not sewn through like a Western one would be, either. Instead, only an occasional thread — which is not pulled tight — runs from the nylon on one side, through the filling, and to the other nylon cover.

What this produces — essentially — is a big, flat, warm and wonderful, rectangular sleeping bag, which is spread over your futon (or bed). The futon is simply a pad— filled with foam rubber or cotton — which folds into a neat three-sectioned pile for daytime storage.

A kotatsu is a heater that's placed on the floor with a low table over it. A special quilt called— what else? — a kotatsu kakebuton is draped over the top of the table and a second top rests on the quilt. Wealthier folks frequently have a special space for their legs recessed into the floor under the table and a second — smaller and deeper — hole for the heater located in the centre of the first one.

However it's constructed, the kotatsu is the centre of a Japanese family's activities during cold weather. The family will spend most of its time in the winter closely grouped around that little square table. Such a life requires compatibility, to say the least.

The heater for such a "warmth pit" can be either electrically or charcoal fired. The latter is still very common in Japan and the most common of all kotatsu charcoal burners is the hibachi.

Not the squat, black barbecue that goes by the same name here in America. A real kotatsu hibachi more closely resembles a huge vase or flowerpot made of fired and kiln-glazed clay.

These hibachis are fueled with charcoal dust and a small ring of the dust burns slowly — without flame — in the heater's middle. Various grates or tripods can be put over the fire, so that food may be cooked or water boiled on the hibachi. For the most part, a kettle of water is kept simmering on the unit to humidify the room.

One very strong word of warning is in order here: Such a burner gives off dangerous gases that can dissipate quite harmlessly from a relatively well-ventilated Japanese home — but that same gas might well build up to lethal levels in your tightly sealed building, and asphyxiate you.

Nipponese clothes are certainly designed for winter comfort. Traditional garments — such as the haori, which resembles a short kimono — are constructed in the same layered manner as the kakebuton.

Common haoris come in various thicknesses (some are made of black silk and are primarily ornamental) and usually don't have as much loft as a kakebuton. They're heavier, however, and covered on the outside with cotton instead of nylon. The garments are worn both indoors and out, and some even have an extra space in the back for a baby. Lucky, warm baby!

And the haoris used in the winter ore warm for a very simple reaxon: You need something to protect your back and shoulders when the lower half of your body is snugly heated by a kotatsu. That's if you're a man.

Women — who are supposed to stick only their hands and knees under their host's kakebuton when they go visiting (Oh misery, Japan is not the place for a liberated lady) — appreciate the haoris' ability to warm their backs, shoulders, and tucked-under toes even more.

One lasty last item the Japanese use to make their winter lives comfortable is the yutampo. It-s something llike a hot water bottle in shape and function but is made of metal and covered with cloth to keep it from burning when you press up against it.

About 10 or 15 minutes before going to bed, fill your yutampo with boiling water. Next, make sure your yutampo's lid and cover are secured and then stick the hot container between the sheets at the foot of your futon. The bed will be warm when you're ready to slip in and you'll have something nice to put your feet against as you drift off to sleep.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS® ...it tells you how

Extinguisher Hazard

Tuesday's Mother Earth column — Here's a Handy Fire Extinguisher — neglected to say that baking soda should not be used on fires in deep fat fryers.

Baking soda extinguishes fires by releasing large volumes of carbon dioxide when heated. This smothers electrical fires, burning spilled fat, and smouldering material. However, the reaction from the baking soda if it is poured into a potfull of burning oil is so violent that the burning oil would be splattered all over the kitchen.

Huge Collection on Sale

KANSAS CITY (AP) — One of the world's largest private collections of antique toys, folk art and other Americana is being offered for sale here to the public.

The collection, gathered over a 25-year period by Jerry Smith, a retired Kansas City auto dealer, includes more than 12,000 items.

Included are cast-iron toys dating from the 1870s, among them examples of horse-drawn fire engines, circus wagons and early trains.

Hundreds of cast-iron car and truck toys span an automotive era from Model T to Chevy Roadster. More modern times include tin cartoon characters from the 1920s and 1930s.

Serious Crimes Dip in Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Serious crime in Seattle stabilized during 1975 when compared to 1974, the police department says.

A spokesman said the number of serious crimes reported last year was 46,111, down from 46,200 during 1974.

Chief Robert Hanson said the slight reduction reflects increased public awareness of crime prevention techniques and increased police productivity.

Significant decreases were recorded in burglaries and auto theft. The number of murders was down slightly, while the incidence of robberies, assaults and larcency was up.

NICOL HERE FOR REHEARSAL

A visit from author Eric Nicol provided an extra degree of stimulation for Manta Players' production of the Vancouver humorist's successful play, Like Father Like Fun, now in preparation.

He was on the island this week to visit the former Colwood Players in their rehearsal quarters, St. John's Church Hall, Colwood, where the comedy will also be performed next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The group also plans to take the play on the road, with performance dates at Parksville March 12 and 13, and at Open Space in Victoria March 26 and 27.

Director is Arlene Blundell. Performances at the church hall on Glencairn Lane (off Sooke Road opposite Colwood Elementary School) begin at 8 p.m.

At the evening session with Nicol, members of the cast were able to discuss details of interpretation with the author and were given assistance on building of scenes and timing by B.C. drama consultant Ray Logie, who conducted the rehearsal.

Nicol expressed his satisfaction with the cast and noted that a West Vancouver club had done the play for two weeks last year, playing to sell-out crowds.

He is currently working on a new full-length play which is also a comedy but "a bit of a black comedy," Nicol says. "The theme is serious — it's about the way we treat our elderly, which is something that is of concern to a lot of people right now."

Pierre Losing 'Original Partner'

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — After seven years, the "odd couple" of Stanfield and Trudeau is breaking up, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Thursday as the Commons paid tribute to Robert Stanfield as he steps down as leader of the opposition.

In a warm tribute, Trudeau noted that he was already feeling a "little lonely" because he and Stanfield had been "partners" for so long as opposing party leaders.

"I will miss my original partner," he said.

As a reply, Staffield cautioned the prime minister that he would be staying on as an ordinary MP and that "As a backbencher I will be even more of a tiger than I was as party leader."

Representatives of all parties in the House praised Stanfield's honesty, integrtity, courtesy and wit and wished him well in the future.

This was Stanfield's last day in the House as leader of the opposition as debate was adjourned at 5 p.m. until Monday to accommodate the weekend Conservative leadership convention.

Trudeau said that Stanfield, who became Tory leader in 1967, had "made an outstanding contribution to Parliament and all Canadians are thankful for it."

Although the two had had "our spats and tiffs" there was also good will and a working together at many times for a common purpose. The two have faced each other across the Commons floor since 1968 as government leader and opposition leader.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent said that Stanfield had "graced the House of Commons with his presence" and described him as a "blunt, courteous, honest and witty man."

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette praised Standield for his abiding interest in national unity and called him "a national figure rather than simply a regional one."

In thanking his colleagues, Stanfield adopted the self-deprecating wit for which he has become known, but at times his voice appeared to be quavering.

"After all this," he said, "a less loquacious man than myself would be speechless.

"Before this afternoon, I had sensed that the country might never be the same again (after his departure), but I had not sensed the full extent of the national disaster."

At one point, he told the prime minister that he had a question "which would bring the government down," but in the circumstances he would "wait till next week."

"Despite the prime minister's sense of loss," he said, "I hope it will console him to see that I am unfolding as I should."

This was in reference to Trudeau's statement during the 1972 general election to the effect that the universe was unfolding as it should.

He added that Trudeau would no longer have "Bob Stanfield's football to kick around anymore" in reference to a news photograph in the 1974 general election where Stanfield was shown fumbling a football.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Stanfield had served Canada for 27 years, many of which as leader of the opposition and then long-time premier of Nova Scotia.

"He has been a man of vision and ideas," Trudeau said, and added after a pause "I have borrowed a few in my day."

Elvis Travelled Incognito

DENVER — Elvis Presley is back in Colorado, this time to buy a home.

Werner Newcomb, a Denver real estate salesman, said Presley had made an offer for a home in Vail last month, but the bid was rejected by the owner.

But Newcomb said the property owner was unaware who the prospective buyer was because Presley wore a ski mask and a jump suit while inspecting the home.

BAL HARBOUR, Fla — The impending retirement of Joseph Kennan will make president George Meany the only remaining member of the original AFL-CIO executive council.

Meany, 81, was asked if the all-male council might select a woman to fill one of the vacancies. He replied, "I don't plan to elevate a woman to anything. I'm very careful on this subject. I have had a lifetime of domination by a wife and three daughters."

VANCOUVDR — Former education minister Eileen Dailly has confirmed she has offered to resign her seat so provincial New Democratic Party leader Dave Barrett can try to get back into the British Columbia legislature in a byelection.

FISHER
. . . out again

"I, and a number of MLAs, made the same offer," Mrs. Dailly said.

She refused to comment further.

OTTAWA — The appointment of Francis Laurence (Bud) Jobin, Mayor of Flin Flon as lieutenant governor of Manitoba was announced Thursday by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

He succeeds William John McKeag who has served as lieutenant-governor since 1970.

LONDON (AP) — Singer Eddie Fisher says he has struck out at love for the fourth time.

He was quoted by The Daily Mirror on Friday as saying his fourth wife, 21-year-bld college beauty queen Terry Richard, has left him after less than four months of marriage.

"My wife is living with friends and there is no chance of us getting back together," Fisher was quoted as saying.

The 47-year-old singer, appearing at the London Palladium, was previously married to Debbie Reynolds, Elizabeth Taylor and Connie Stevens.

He said the 29-year-old monarch will stop in Seattle April 10 and 11. He plans to visit Weyerhaeuser Co. forests and meet with Swedish-speaking students at the University of Washington.

Talent Showcase At McPherson

The event takes place at McPherson Playhouse beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The program includes several vocal as well as instrumental numbers. Students were selected by audition with a view to program balance and range as well as merit.

The quality, versatility and number of students who qualified made the task of auditioners Mrs. Ursula Thomas and Mrs. Florence Niedermann, an enormously difficult and sensitive one.

Performers are pianists Daphne Kalfon, Alexandra Rieche, Janet Luney, Miranda Wong and Arthur Lavertu; violinists Susan Pye (accompanist Susan DeBurgh) and David Sabey (accompanist Robert Holliston), cellist Paul Terry who will be accompanied by Anne Valdal and flutist Rod Sharman accompanied by Arne Sahlen.

Vocalists are Kathy Domoney, Richard Margison, Karin Roberts and Jane MacKenzie. They will be accompanied by Anne Valdal, Jane Davis, Stephanie Soulsby and Kristine Beny respectively.

Works by Handel, Beethoven, Novello, Vivaldi, Debussy, Faure, Brahms, Ravel, Schubert, Duparc and Liszt are among those to be performed.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

At the conclusion of play in today's deal, which arose in the 1975 National Championships held in New Orleans this past November, a kibitzer turned to the South declarer and made the observation: "Deception is a many-splendored thing." He was, and is, right. Sitting South was Roger Bates, of Phoenix, Ariz.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Dbl.	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

After winning the opening lead with his king of spades, West shifted to a trump. Declarer had perceived immediately that he had three fast losers in the black suits; and, in all probability, he would also lose a diamond trick since West, for his take-out double, rated to have the queen of diamonds. The best chance of fulfilling his contract, concluded declarer, was to try to trick West, the possessor of the spade ace.

So declarer won West's trump lead with dummy's ace, and led the queen of spades. On it he discarded a diamond!

West fell for this discard, hook, line and sinker. After all, West said to himself, if South is discarding a diamond, he is worried about that suit. And if I don't lead a diamond now, declarer will get rid of a couple of diamonds on dummy's jack and 10 of spades.

So, at trick four, West led the three of diamonds, South winning the trick with his eight-spot. The king of hearts was cashed next, picking up the adversely held trumps. Then came the ace and king of diamonds, felling West's queen. On the jack of diamonds, dummy's six of clubs was discarded. A club was then condeded to the defenders, and declarer chalked up the score for a game bid and made. His only losers were two spades and one club.

Had declarer made the normal discard of his two of clubs on the board's queen of spades, he almost certainly would have gone down. West, upon winning the trick with the ace, would conclude that South's worry was the club suit; and West would then lead a club. The defender would now have made two spade tricks, one club, and one diamond.

But South's deceptive discard of a diamond on the spade queen accomplished its intended effect: the convincing of West that South was weak in diamonds, rather than clubs.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, Feb. 21

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on depth, quality, ability to divine truth and separate it from frill, wishful thinking, deceptio. Member of opposite sex wants to discuss "security." Cancer, Capricorn persons could be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lie low — play waiting game. Defer to wishes of partner or mate. Welcome publicity but shun notoriety, message will become increasingly clear. Social invitation could lead to "more important" opportunities.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Practical matters dominate. Includes employment, basic methods of performing services, diet and health. Cancer, Capricorn figure prominently. Check details — be aware of fine print. Be willing to review and revise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Give full play to creative resources. Be ready for changes, dealings with children — and a relationship that becomes more intense. Gemini, Virgo individuals could play key roles. You are due for surprise — of delightful variety.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home, personal environment, cash on hand, credit standing, future prospects all may seem to blend. Key is to conclude business, to make amends for possible slight to family member, to build on solid base and to obtain an accurate business-property appraisal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on relatives, calls, ideas, visits. Now you can see as is, perfect techniques, get going along path that commits thoughts to paper and gains you greater security. Pisces could be very much in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-ct. 22): Emphasis is on the solid, material gain, executive decision and responsibility. Be sure you get authority — and financial reward — to go along with added duties. Time moves. Collect data. Take cash and let credit go. Message will become increasingly clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Moon in your sign coincides with upswing in potential. Take chance on your own abilities. Imprint style. Be there in person — insist that your counsel is followed. Means be independent, even if you might appear arrogant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Check sources that have access to private files. Keep word to one who might be confined to home or hospital. Be familiar with policy of special group, organization. There is an untold story. You might be the individual to tell it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friendship could be tested—money, possesions come into picture. Pleasure principle is strong—member of opposite sex may want more than you are prepared to concede. Maintain balance and don't eat while excited!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on duty, standing, prestige, career. Be flexible enough to go with tide. Display versatility, humor. Gemini, Sagittarius could be in picture. You may be asked to take a business trip. Be sure expense account agreement is in order.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight on distance, correspondence, publications. Look beyond the immediate — be aware of potential. You could be dealing with Scorpio, Taurus and Leo individuals. You gain insight regarding your own role and why you are here.

IF FEB. 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, artistic, stubborn and sentimental. You have unique way of expressing yourself. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. July should be your most significant month of 1976. You gain greater independence this year.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"Remember that crazy looking striped car we saw?" asked Ken. "I just figured out something on its licence number."

John smiled. "Sure," he replied. "We noticed it had a six-digit number."

"That's right," Ken agreed. "But if you shift its two last digits to the beginning without changing their order to get just one less than twice the number."

What was it?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: TWENTY was 104317.

BOUNDARIES SHIFTED FOR SPORTS

ROME (UPI) — No longer will golfers in the Piedmont village of Claviera play nine holes of golf in Italy and the back nine in neighboring France.

The two countries have decided to shift boundaries in the Montegnevre zone so Claviere is entirely within Italy and Montegenevre is completely within France.

Frustrated Pruners Find Outlet

For the gardeners with a pair of secateurs in hand but no fruit trees to prune, an outlet for the pruning urge in February is found in the lovely early blooming shrub named Chaenomeles.

The original plant was discovered in Japan back in 1784 and when introduced into England became known as "japonica" (meaning Japanese). However, a later introduction from China was more likely (the botanist tell us) the parent of our modern shrub that we know as Chaenomeles. Translated roughly, this word means "false apple".

Many varieties of this lovely flowering shrub are grown locally. It is deciduous (leaf-losing), up to eight feet or so and as wide as permitted to spread. Branches are sparsely equipped with strong spines, and the leaves are two to three inches long, dark green.

The flowers in late winter, and throughout spring on an old plant, are the feature making Chaenomeles worth growing. Especially colorful for gardens not growing rhododendron and camellias, a collection of three different colors make an attractive feature. The shrubs can be grown either near, but not against, a sunny wall, or free-standing where the flowers can be seen from house or patio from March to early June.

Distantly related to the apple, as seen by the hard but edible fruits in fall, the flowers of Chaenomeles are similar. In size however they may be one and a half inches wide, and come in clusters of two to four.

On a shrub more than four years old, these clusters are found tightly against the oldest branches, to make a splendid showing before the leaves come.

The pruning which can be done now is a matter of shaping and control of spread. Flower buds are easily seen on older wood. In especially sheltered warm garden corners, color and an opening bud or two will be noticed.

First, if there is a piece or two of old wood having no flower buds, and no new extension growth that is wanted — prune out that piece as low to the ground as possible. Don't forget the spines.

Now look at the branches and branchlets, each having six or eight inches of new ends grown last year. This is extension growth bearing only leaves, not flower buds for two or three years. If the plant is to be restricted to a small area, prune away each new growth, allowing one inch to remain. Some new branches coming from lower down where the oldest was pruned away, will provide new wood in later years to replace the oldest non-flowering wood.

If more drastic reduction in height or width is wanted prune an appropriate distance above where the flower buds can be seen; this will force new growth below the point of pruning.

With this method you have the flowers making a better display both on the bare branches, and those following later as the leaves expand. And the size is controlled as is needed in today's smaller gardens.

Colors may be pure white as in C. nivalis; there are one or two lovely soft pink varieties; but it is the scarlet and the orange-red shades which predominate in the genus Chaenomeles. Names to look for are Crimson and Gold, Simoni, Rowallane and Knaphill Scarlet.

Hard green fruits which form as the shrubs grow older make a fine pectin for jellies, adding also their flavor and aroma.

The fruits are referred to commonly as quince, but the quince grows on quite a different tree and is not often seen here though sometimes available in a limited way locally.

The value of these shrubs increases with age so treat them well while they are growing up.

T.L.C. NEEDED!
Tender-loving care is needed to realize the full potential of this charming vine-covered bungalow in Sidney. It has 5 bedrooms. The 2 in the attic are "head crackers" for tall people, but the others are good size. There is only one bathroom, the smallest I have ever seen, but there is a comfortable sauna. A nice entrance hall with slate floor, a beamed ceiling living room with antique pot belly stove, and a lovely large dining room with fireplace are some of the plusses. There is also a large studio and a small hide-away den. Some alteraations and maintenance are needed. The property is just over one ac., very secluded and produces some delicious fruits. This M.L. 14128 has terrific future potential! Asking $23,000 cash to $54,000 mortgage.

SIDNEY SEAVIEW $49,900
BLUE HOUSE!
If you don't like the blues, we will repaint it in your favourite colour. Where else can you find a seaview home of over 1100 sq. ft. and 2 bedrooms, that was once a church hall, at this low price! Reconditioned and as good or better than new! Call now to see and make an offer on M.L. 15320.

TREASURES ARE NOT ALWAYS BURIED

1-yr.-old deluxe 4 BDRM tri-level. Once you look at this very attractive split level home it will be difficult to find anything that compares. The interior is quality and completely luxurious. Impeccable taste is evident from the upper level with its 3 large carpeted bedrooms, spacious bathroom and ensuite, right down to the lovely kitchen with lots of cabinets. From the formal dining area step into a large comfortable living room so tastefully carpeted and double draped with its crackling fireplace of California travestine and glass doors. A large picture window frames a beautiful view of the Beaufort Range. How about some time in the large family room? Add to all this a well designed laundry and storage room plus an extra bedroom, bathroom and utility room with counter and sink. Imagine stepping through a breezeway to a double garage or turn left to a huge 40'x42' new steel clad building for boat storage, work bench or other hobby. All this is on one acre of good top loam with services 2 miles from Courtenay on a Cul-de-Sac setting. Why not call today to see your next home at $89,500.00.

109 Areas Radioactive

OTTAWA (CP) — Radioactive contamination is known or suspected in 109 locations across Canada, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

The minister made the statement in announcing the appointment of a federal-provincial group to oversee the cleanup of contamination. It will also investigate reports of contamination.

Gillespie also told the Commons that the first priority of the group, to be headed by the federal atomic energy control board, will be to complete an investigation and cleanup in Port Hope, Ont., where some schools have been closed and people forced to move from their homes because of the contamination.

But he also said that a list prepared by the government identified 109 locations in 25 areas where radioactivity is known or suspected.

He said 79 locations in 15 areas have been reported in Ontario, 19 locations in two areas in Saskatchewan, five locations in two areas in the Northwest Territories and two locations in Alberta, Manitoba and Quebec.

The minister tabled in the Commons documents giving details of the locations and the group he has formed to solve the problem.

He said the group will include the federal health, enviroment, energy and defence departments and appropriate ministries in provinces where radioactive areas are found.

Concern over the effects of radioactive contamination started in December when higher than normal levels were found in Port Hope.

The radiation has been traced to landfill containing contaminants from property owned by Eldorado Nuclear Ltd., a federal crown corporation that mines and refines uranium.

A Unique New Bridge Now Spans the Nitinat

FRANKLIN RIVER — MacMillan Bloedel's division here has added another chapter to inovation in the forest industry with completion of a unique $156,000 steel bridge over the Nitinat River.

The division's engineers call the new structure a single span steel box pridge. It employs engineering principles and construction techniques radically different from conventional steel bridges, and is believed the first of its kind in Canada.

Located on Franklin's South Mainline logging road south of Port Alberni, the new span replaces an old wooden logging railway bridge, built in 1954 and subsequently converted for use by the logging trucks that replaced the steam "locies" as the primary means of moving logs out of the woods.

Last summer MB engineers built a second bridge 1,500 feet upstream as a bypass for company logging trucks and public vehicles that travel the division's network of logging roads for recreational purposes.

Finally, the prefabricated steel bridge was hauled into place over the original wooden structure. The weathered timbers were cut out from under the steel structure, the bypass bridge was dismantled, and now the company as well as the public has one of the most modern bridges in the province over the Nitinat.

The entire project was carefully orchestrated by divisional engineer Chris Dybvik, who says steel box bridges are a brand new idea in the field of engineering.

The bridge is just what its name implies — a trapezoid-shaped box made of prefabricated alloyed steel, supporting a deck topped with prestressed concrete slabs, three inches of asphalt and thick timber guardrails.

Dybvik said the company had been thinking about replacing the Nitinat span for a number of years and serious planning began in 1974.

"The old bridge was not build for logging trucks," said the engineer. "When it was converted it was too narrow to handle the wide loads adequately and this created lots of problems for our truck drivers and also required continous repairs."

He said the steel box was selected over two other proposals for bridges built of laminated beams and prestressed concrete.

The main reasons Franklin settled on the box bridge, said Dybvik, are the durability of steel and the remarkable degree of structural strength that can be obtained through the box design with a minimal amount of material and maintenance.

The alloyed steel also activates a coat of oxidation that shields the structure against pit rust.

"The design saved a considerable amount of steel compared with other types of steel bridges," he said.

The "box" itself was prefabricated in Vancouver and hauled to Franklin River in three sections aboard flatdeck trucks.

The wooden decking was removed from the original bridge, the steel sections were bolted together and winched into position.

The new bridge utilizes the two original concrete piers poured during the 1950s to support the wooden structure. Once the box was in place, the old timbers were cut out from under the steel structure and removed in sections.

The box bridge is 138 feet long and 18 feet wide — plenty of room for the widest log loads.

There's a passageway through the centre of the box below the bridge deck from one end to the other, allowing engineers to inspect the structure inside and out at regular intervals.

The bypass bridge was a complicated project in its own right. Dybvik and other divisional personnel consulted federal and provincial fisheries experts almost daily during its construction.

"We took great care to avoid any impact on fish habitat in the Nitinat," said Dybvik. Building was carefully timed to avoid fish migrations and spawning.

"When we finished work on the steel structure we went back and removed the bypass bridge timber by timber," said the eingineer. "We were extremely careful in restoring the site to its original state and we even rebuilt a dry gravel bar after we'd taken out the bridge.

"We left the Nitinat exactly the way we found it."

Innovation seems to come naturally to Franklin River.

The Franklin operation, launched in 1934, eventually became one of the largest single logging operations in the world. It was there that the industry saw its first steel spar, in 1935.

The following year Franklin became the first operation in North America to use power saws in the woods, a German-made Stihl saw.

Franklin brought in hardhats in 1942 and in 1946 introduced the first fleet of modern logging trucks to Vanvouver Island.

"When we first got interested in the box bridge idea, we wanted to have a look at one," Dybvik recalled.

"But all we could come up with were designs and blueprints — so far as we know nobody in Canada had ever built one before we got into this project."

NEWS BOXES MUST GO

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — District council voted Monday to remove Pacific Press coin-operated news boxes from district land.

Council approved a motion asking Pacific Press, which operates news boxes for the Vancouver Sun and The Province, to remove them within seven days or have them removed by the district's engineering department.

Alderman Peter Powell, who made the motion, said the boxes are "a visual pollution — they're certainly an eyesore," and said the boxes are unnecessary because there is good home delivery service.

Women Rally March 22

Women Rally for Action Day plans to ask pertinent questions of members, evaluate their answers for posting at a booth to be set up on the legislative grounds and carry them back to their ridings for the benefit of women there.

They seek support for Berger Commission views on communal property in marriage and such things as equal pay for work of equal value, and claim few MLAs have declared themselves on these issues.

On International Women's Day, March 8, Women Rally for Action will hold an educational rally at Vancouver courthouse to lead up to the demonstration here.

Import Ban Cuts Supply Of Canaries

OTTAWA (CP) — Canaries, parrots, finches and other pet birds are reported scarce in some parts of Canada this winter because of a ban on imports from exporting countries.

The ban is to keep out Newcastle disease, a highly contagious ailment that causes palsy, paralysis and ultimately death in affected birds. There was an outbreak in Canada in July, 1973, that caused a $1-million loss of chickens and turkeys.

Once the disease hits a flock, up to 90 per cent of the birds usually die within a few days.

The federal agriculture department has placed an import ban on birds from countries in Central Africa and South America, where the disease is most prevalent, to prevent reccurrences of the epidemic.

Even birds from countries where the disease in under control, such as Australia, New Zealand, Iceland, and Northern Europe, are subject to a 28- to 45-day quarantine before they can be sent to pet stores. If the disease is even suspected, the bird must be destroyed.

Pet stores here say they have been forced to double the prices of their birds because of the resulting shortage. They have also turned to domestic suppliers, although their prices are often as high as the importers.

17.8% Boost For Schools

The Saanich school board has approvtd a $9.9 million budget for 1976, 17.8 per cent over last year's budget of $8.4 million.

Board chairman Gerry Kristianson said Thursday most of the increase is taken up by union contract increases including the 11.3 per cent teacher salary arbitration award.

The largest part of the budget was taken up by the instructional account, $6.3 million compared to $5.3 million last year, an increase of 18 per cent.

$5.2M Job To Farmer

Farmer Construction Ltd. has received a $5,211,000 contract to build the main building of the mail processing plant at Royal Oak.

Construction began this winter.

The Farmer contract is the largest of 15 awarded by the federal public works department for a total value of $8,156,459.

Central Glass Products Ltd. of Port Moody was also awarded a $433,238 contract for work on the main building of the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Patricia Bay.

Despite Cuts City Insurance Costs Jump

The city of Victoria faces a substantial increase in vehicle insurance costs this year, despite a bare-bones policy of largely dispensing with collision coverage.

In pre-ICBC days the city insured only its police vehicles for collision but in 1974 and 1975 collision coverage was mandatory on all smaller fleet vehicles less than eight years old.

With that requirement now eliminated, the city finance committee Thursday endorsed a reccommendation from comptroller Mason Sheldrick that once again such coverage should apply only to the police fleet.

The committee also recommended that, rather than pay the full premium, the city take the ICBC option of paying 70 per cent now and more later, depending on the actual number of accident claims incurred by city staff.

Under this retroactive premium supplement, the city could end up paying no additional premium or a further 60 per cent. It all depends on the accident record.

Sheldrick later told reporters he hasn't worked out the full amount of the premium. But if the city had the same coverage as last year (including collision on all vehicles) the 1976 premium would be $60,500, compared with the actual cost of around $25,000 last year.

However, the economies recommended should lop about one-third off the $60,500 bill, he said.

Gov't Plans Cannery Help

Canadian Press

Labor minister Allan Williams said Thursday a provincial government proposal to help the financially-troubled Port Simpson native Indian cannery is ready for presentation to the directors of the co-operative.

The minister said he feels the directors will approve the plan which will then be presented to a general membership meeting in Prince Rupert next Thursday.

Earlier this month, Williams said any proposal for further financial assistance from the government for the cannery will include provision for greater government control over the project's financial affairs.

He said then that the cannery, about 30 miles north of Prince Rupert, was in serious financial difficulty. He said the previous New Democratic Party government had advanced $7 million in grants to the Indian co-operative.

Williams said Thursday he did not know exactly how much the cannery was in the hole but clarifying that matter would be the first priority under the proposal.

He said he understands auditors for the co-operative have been working on the matter and may be able to advise the government. If they can't, he said, his department will put its own people on the job.

People Taking Risk with Meat But Pets Don't

NANAIMO — There are health standards for meat sold as pet food but not for all meat sold for people, the public health officer reported here Thursday.

Dr. Peter Reynolds, in his annual report on the Central Vancouver Island health unit, said no part of the unit is classified as a meat inspection area, meaning only meat sold in certain stores could be albelled "government inspected."

Meat not labelled that way is purchased by the public at its own risk, he said.

While all slaughter houses are inspected, not all animals slaughtered in them are.

On the other hand, said Reynolds, communicable disease regulations ammended last November now read: "no meat shall be offered for sale or sold as pet food which contains bacteria that are capable of producing disease in humans."

"It must be gratifying for the pets of this health unit to know that the Health Act requires that their meat be bacteriologically of superior quality to the meat offered to their owners," he said.

Classroom Democracy Urged

MOOSE JAW (CP) — Teachers have been told they should establish a child's motivation before they administer punishment.

Ed Nelson, a local high school teacher, said this will enable teachers to understand the circumstances of the child's action.

Nelson told a two-day teachers' meeting that teachers should not resort to punitive methods, such as the administration of the strap in the classroom.

He suggested students should set goals in the class and, though a democratic process, decide on the consequences for a student not following guidelines set by the students with the teacher's guidance.

Such decisions could involve when a term paper should be handed in.

Nelson said students could agree that those failing to get their paper in by the date specified lose their grade on that paper.

He said class decisions result in encouragement rather than discouragement.

MURDER TRIAL SET FOR JUNE

Victoria lawyer Eloise Roads Wilson, 46, will be tried in Vancouver for murder punishable by life imprisonment on June 17, 18 and 21.

Mrs. Wilson, 327 Niagara, was charged following the death Dec. 2 of Marion Hamilton, 69, of Vancouver.

Mrs. Wilson's defence lawyer is Anthony Pantages of Vancouver.

Mills Break Smoke Rules

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Air pollution regulations are being broken by 28 sawmills in northern British Columbia and seven of them are in this northern interior city, Chris Christiansen, regional engineer for the Pollution Control Branch, said Thursday.

Christiansen said half the mills in northern B.C. have been violating regulations since the forest industry strike ended because they were overloaded with hog fuel and chips.

"They had a lot of refuse to burn and most mills were overloading their burners, which damaged them," he said.

Christiansen said the department usually gives the companies three months to correct the problems.

Petition Wants Mayor Sacked

A spokesman for the municipal affairs department said Thursday a petition is circulating to remove Mayor Karl Maartman of Elkford.

Maartman was sentenced Tuesday to six months and fined $1,500 on a perjury conviction.

The petition, drawn up under a section of the Municipal Act, asks that Maartman be removed on grounds that he has been convicted of an indictable offence. But the spokesman said the department has not yet been able to determine the validity of the petition.

Village clerk Harold Gyte said council would not consider a move against the major pending his appeal.

Maartman was convicted Jan. 12 on the perjury charge laid by RCMP last May after he testified on a charge of driving with a blood alcohol level of more than .08.

He told the court the night he was charged he did not drive but accepted a ride from a friend. He was subsequently acquitted of the driving charge but RCMP later provided evidence the friend mentioned in the alibi was out of town at the time of the incident.

Poet Here Saturday

At Open Space on Saturday, Douglas Lang, poet, songwriter and guitarist will present his latest works.

He has recently returned from six months in Europe and his program for this concert is chiefly inspired by two of those months spent in Greece.

The concert begins at 8 p.m.

On Sunday Canadian poet Lionel Kearns will be featured in another of the series of readings sponsored by the Poetry Front and Canada Council.

The event begins at 2:30 p.m. Admission is free.

'Dead' Nearly Two Hours, Boy, 16, Recovering

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three weeks ago, 16-year-old Edward Milligan was, by normal clinical definitions, dead.

After collapsing in a school snowshoeing expedition, he had no heart beat, no pulse and was not breathing.

Today, the boy whose heart stopped beating for at least one hour and 45 minutes is keen to get back to school.

Edward, a student at St. John's Cathedral School in Selkirk, Man., is to be released from hospital this weekend.

Dr. Gerald Bristow, Edward's physician, says the case may be a lesson in how to handle exposure victims.

He said doctors should not give up when people suffering from exposure display the clinical signs of death.

Edward's close brush with death began Jan. 31, when he and a number of other students set out on the 25-mile expedition.

The weekly outing, which usually takes five hours, is part of the rigorous training program offered at the school. The trek began at 1 p.m. on a mild Saturday and Dr. Bristow said it appears the students were lightly dressed.

Three hours later, the temperature fell to —15 degrees celsius and a strong wind was blowing at Selkirk, 25 miles north of Winnipeg.

The students were walking in groups of four along hydro transmission lines towards Selkirk when Edward became drowsy.

He began tripping over his own snowshoes and, when his group was about 1½ miles from the school, the boy collapsed.

While one boy went ahead to find a snowmobile and call an ambulance, other students carried Edward on their snowshoes.

Dr. Bristow estimated it took about 1½ hours to get Edward to the school, where the boy was put to bed under blankets.

Ambulance attendants who arrived minutes later could not detect any pulse. They gave mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration and massaged the boy's heart externally.

Edward's body temperature then was about 25 degrees celsius, or 12 celsius degrees below the normal body temperature.

Dr. Robert Smith, the first doctor at Selkirk General Hospital to see Edward, said, "I don't know why I thought we could revive him . . . I've asked myself several times since."

Dr. Smith said it was a matter of "intuition" combined with his knowledge of hypothermia — low body temperatures — and how well children can respond when ill.

Finally, their efforts were rewarded by what Dr. Bristow called a "worm-like heart movement" and an almost invisible shiver.

The shiver sent Edward's body temperature soaring, and doctors were able to use electric shocks to get a regular heart beat.

The boy was taken about 1 a.m. Feb. 1 to the intensive care unit of the Health Sciences Centre in Winnipeg.

Within 24 hours of his collapse on the snowshoe trail, he was awake. After another 12 hours, he was talking.

Dr. Arnold Tweed, a specialist at the centre, said "It's the longest time we know of" for a heart stopping and the patient surviving without apparent brain damage.

Experts say at normal body temperature, brain damage will occur from three to five minutes after a person is deprived of oxygen.

Dr. Tweed said Edward's low body temperature slowed down metabolic processes and made it possible for him to survive the ordeal without brain damage.

The boy has been taking treatment for burns, an unavoidable result of the hot towel applications, and for frostbite.

No More 'Needless' Autopsies

CALGARY (CP) — Attorney-General Jim Foster said today steps are being taken to assure there are no unnecessary autopsies on Alberta Indians.

His statement was contained in a letter to Harold Cardinal, leader of the Indian Association of Alberta, who said last week that Sunchild Cree and O'Chiese bands west of Rocky Mountain House had been treated like "experimental rats" in autopsy procedures.

Cardinal said autopsies were performed needlessly, bodies had been returned unprepared for burial and organs often were missing.

Foster's letter said corrective measures now are in effect. Meetings have been held with band representatives and representatives of the chief medical officer.

The cabinet minister said the isolation of the bands often means local doctors are not familiar with an individual's medical history.

"This may result in an autopsy being ordered to determine the cause of death because there is no other way of doing so."

Tories Back NDP

WINNIPEG (CP) — Progressive Conservative MLAs joined forces with members of Manitoba's NDP government Thursday night to defeat the first non-confidence motion of the 1976 legislative session by a vote of 41 to 3.

The motion, proposed by Liberal House Leader Gordon Johnston of Portage La Prairie, charged the government with failing to come to grips with inflation.

Noise Crackdown

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba is going to crack down on motorists who make excessive noise through such actions as squealing their tires or honking their horns.

Highways Minister Peter Burtniak says there are too many such incidents, and those responsible will be breaking the Manitoba Highway Traffic Act beginning next month. Under new rules, the drivers can be charged with a simple noise infraction resulting in two demerit points on conviction.

Coroners' Fee Hiked

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government has increased coroner's fees by 62 per cent effective immediately, it was announced today.

The coroners will be paid $40 for every death investigated compared with the previous rate of $25.

Mileage rates for coroners also were raised to 18 cents a mile from 13 cents.

The province also has made changes related to what jurors, witnesses and professional people will receive. The $10-a-day rate will still apply for witnesses and jurors, but if a judge feels that is not enough under a particular set of circumstances, the rate can be increased.

$3M for Factory

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta cabinet has approved loans of $3 million for a cheese factory at Wetaskiwin which almost went into bankruptcy 17 months ago.

A special direct loan of $2 million and a guarantee on an additional $1 million loan were made through the Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC).

Public $ for Votes

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Public Works Minister Russell Doern Thursday threw his support behind public financing of half the cost of provincial election campaigns.

He also expressed a personal hope that legislation to this end will be introduced during the current session.

OUT OF SEASON: Australian black swan stands guard over eggs at Lost Lagoon in Vancouver's Stanley Park after laying them in same month she would have in Australia. Normal laying season on west coast is end of May.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Leonard Doust spoke on behalf of George Douglas Krachan who had changed his plea to guilty on a theft charge.

Krachan had stolen $113 worth of records from Woolworth's in Victoria Sept. 16, 1975, and court was told his record included two five-year jail sentences and several other convictions.

Doust told court Krachan had been out of trouble for some time, and stole the records in an isolated incident in circumstances not likely to happen again.

After the defence argument, Green said incarceration would normally be given to someone with such a record, but that he would fine him only $600 and add a two-year probation term.

He was one of about nine persons charged with the offence and received the heaviest fine when the prosecutor said he had a previous conviction.

A Victoria man, who caught more than the legal limit of salmon in the Saanich Inlet Jan. 3, pleaded guilty to contravention of the Fisheries Act and was fined $25.

* * *

William Ellwood McPherson, 49, no fixed address, received a suspended sentence and six months' probation when he changed his plea to guilty for obtaining food by fraud.

McPherson will also be required to pay $6.05 to the Olympic Cafe, 636 Johnson, where he had a steak meal Jan. 29 and could not pay.

* * *

In traffic court, Leila Louise Ryan, 53, 1702 Myrtle, was fined $500 by Judge Blake Allan for impaired driving and driving with over .08 blood alcohol in two separate incidents. She is prohibited from driving for 18 months, was put on 18 months' probation and ordered to take the impaired drivers' course.

Two others were fined $400 for impaired driving.

Bruce Campbell Matthews, 21, of 7173 Brentwood Drive, is also prohibited from driving for six months. Walter Eddie Evanchiew, 37, of 4095 Cedar Hill Crossroad, is grounded for three months, with six months' probation.

* * *

William Edward White, 23, of 1660 Cedar, was committed by Green to a higher court for trial following a preliminary hearing Wednesday on a Saanich charge of robbery with violence. White was one of two men charged Jan. 30 in connection with a Jan. 29 incident in which a young Victoria man lost about $230 to two other men in the Mount Tolmie area.

* * *

In the court section of Judge Harold Afder, a suspended sentence and a 12-month term of probation were set for Bertrand Lewis Thomas, 20, of 315 Henry, who must also attend a weekend work camp. Thomas was found guilty Jan. 27 after a trial on a Victoria charge of a break-in with intent Sept. 26.

Swim Grant Helped 1,500 Disabled

A $24,000 grant from the provincial human resources department last year enabled the Red Cross water safety service to help set up swim programs for 1,500 disabled children and adults in B.C.

Joan Wallace, spokesman for the Red Cross in Vancouver, said the organization is anxious to continue the program when funds run out at the end of March.

The grant enabled the Red Cross to hire three water safety consultants who trained over 650 volunteer instructors and assistants, she said, and these in turn set up 34 swim programs in their own communities.

Without the impetus, assistance and training provided by the Red Cross, most of these programs would never have been started, she said.

$1M To Run AIB

OTTAWA (FP) — It may cost as much as $1 million to operate the office of the Anti-Inflation Special Administrator in the upcoming fiscal year, according to Treasury Board estimates.

Operating costs for the Administrator were not included in the government's main estimates released Tuesday because they weren't received in time for printing, a Treasury Board official said. The administrator is responsible for enforcing penalties for violations of the guidelines.

The cost of the Administrator's office will be in addition to the $13.5 million which the Anti-Inflation Board is authorized to spend. Operating costs of the Anti-Inflation Appeal Tribunal may be another $105,000 to $200,000, meaning total costs of the controls program may be close to $15 million.

Thus far operation of the administrator's office has cost between $200,000 and $300,000 since Donald Tansley was appointed to the post on December 31, 1975. Mr. Tansley's salary accounts for $50,000 of this.

Tory Attack Delays Magazine Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Government hopes to get final passage of its controversial magazine bill through the Commons Thursday went down the drain as Progressive Conservatives made a last-ditch attempt to kill the bill.

Benno Freisan (Surrey-White Rock) assured further debate next week by moving that the bill go back to a Commons committee so MPs could be informed why the government exempted Reader's Digest from the legislation.

To qualify as Canadian magazines, publications must be 75 per cent Canadian-owned and substantially different from foreign editions. Under a ruling by Revenue Minister Bud Cullen, substantially different means 80 per cent Canadian content.

In a February ruling, months after the bill was first debated in the Commons, Cullen said material edited and condensed in Canada from foreign editions of Reader's Digest will be considered Canadian content.

"What happened between the time the Commons committee hearings ended in mid-December and the first week in February which brought about this absolute and total reversal in position?" asked Friesen.

"Something happend in the back rooms of the Liberal caucus or the department of revenue," he said.

It's Time to Change, Rhodesia PM Admits

SALISBURY (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith said today he is prepared to consider any British government offer to help achieve a political agreement between Rhodesia's white minority and its black majority.

"I believe we have reached a stage in our history where it could be beneficial to change our tactics," Smith told Parliament. "If the British government is prepared to make a constructive and realistic effort to assist in our settlement, then I believe we must give this serious consideration."

It was the first time Smith expressed willingness to include the British government in his negotiations with black nationalist leader Joshua Knomo and the African National Council. Rhodesia's white government renounced British authority when it declared independence in 1965.

Smith said his government's two main aims remain the defeat of "terrorism" and, by patient negotiation with the black majority, a constitutional settlement that would ensure stable government for all Rhodesians.

He said he has received a communication from British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan to which he has replied, but he gave no details. Callaghan said earlier this week that he has warned Smith of the "seriousness" of the situation in Rhodesia, where 274,000 whites rule 5.7 million black Africans.

Smith also attacked what he called "irresponsible" statements by British politicians which he said might be interpreted as an "open invitation to the Russians and Cubans to repeat their Angolan adventure and to intervene in the internal affairs of Rhodesia."

Labor Blasts Spending Cuts

LONDON (Reuter) — Left-wing Labor MPs today bitterly attacked their government's cuts in future public spending, while the Conservative and Liberal parties called the proposals "too little, too late."

The cuts, outlined Thursday by the Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, will amount to about $5 billion during the 1976-80 period.

The axe will fall on education, road building, housing, defence, health services, food and other subsidies, and on the civil-service payroll.

Healey told a news conference the cuts are essential to halt the decline in Britain's manufacturing industry and increase investments and exports.

But the proposals were fiercely attacked by the Tribune group, a left-wing association within the governing Labor party, which denounced Healey's white paper as "a document of shame."

"It will be resisted by the trade union and labor movement, and we in Parliament will combine to fight against the implementation of the public expenditure cuts by every means open to us," the Tribune group said in a statement.

City Jail Incident Ends As Inmates Win Demands

-John McKay photos

Lawyer Christie with Desjarlais, Wilson behind

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Twenty inmates barricaded themselves in the gymnasium at Wilkinson Road jail overnight and held two corrections officers captive for 9½ hours to protest prison conditions.

Order was finally restored at 5:30 a.m. when jail officials agreed to meet prisoner demands negotiated by Victoria lawyer Doug Christie.

Neither of the hostages — Jim Waldron, 25, and John McDonald, 50 — were harmed. The inmates released McDonald at 1:45 a.m. in exchange for Christie but kept Waldron to the end.

Christie, in a voice crackling with tension and fatigue, read out the prisoners' demands over Victoria radio station CJVI at 5 a.m.

The demands included a guarantee the inmates would be allowed to return to their regular cell-blocks, would not be placed in isolation cells, and that any charges arising from the incident would be "punished by outside court."

The inmates also demanded the media be allowed to take pictures of isolation cells for "publication in a conspicuous place," and that jail officials promise to provide "proper medical attention" for drug addicts in the future.

A half-hour later, as television cameras whirred and lights shone on the gym door, 18 of the inmates came out in single file and walked quickly toward the main prison building.

Seconds later, Christie emerged handcuffed to inmate Paul Desjarlais, 30, followed by Waldron and a guard handcuffed to the last inmate, Dennis Wilson, 23.

Surrounded by members of the news media, Christie, Desjarlais, Wilson and the guard then walked to the front of the prison.

Christie read again the prisoners' demands. He said his encounter with the inmates was a peaceful one and at no time saw either violence used or any indication the men were armed with a weapon.

At tht front door the two inmates were searched for weapons—none were found—and the group entered the main reception area.

Speaking to reporters, Desjarlais, said he and cell-mate, Wilson, both awaiting trial on a variety of matters, had planned to escape Thursday night during an exercise session in the gym. They were among a group of 20 inmates.

Desjarlais said that at about 8 p.m. he tried to break down the metal-covered door to the gym, but was unsuccessful. He said he looked out through a keyhole and saw a guard on a hill with a shotgun in his hand, so he and Wilson gave up the escape plan and instead attacked the two officers supervising gym activities.

Both officers were bound and placed in a small storage room.

While more than a dozen heavily armed police officers from Saanich and Victoria converged on the jail, the inmates inside the gym advised they were protesting the prison conditions.

They demanded five bottles of demerol, a pain-killer drug.

Jail director Hal McGillivray said he "turned them down flat."

They then demanded five bottles of morphine. Again McGillivray turned them down.

McGillivray said Desjarlais

B.C. Pen Prisoners To Go East

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Three prisoners at the British Columbia penitentiary released two guards they were holding hostage Thursday night after officials agreed to their demand for transfer to a Dorchester, N.B., prison.

The prisoners, two of them convicted murderers involved in a hostage-taking siege at the prison last June, overcame three guards about 8 a.m. local time Thursday.

One guard, Donald Crawford of nearby Surrey, was released just before 6 p.m. A prison spokesman said it appeared to be an act of good faith on the part of the prisoners.

The other two guards were released at about 10:45 p.m. The prisoners also surrendered five hone-sharpened table knives and a bottle believed to contain acid.

The last two guards freed were William Ford, 48, of New Westminster and Vincent Jarvis, 21, of nearby Langley. They were reunited with their families after being checked by prison doctors.

The prisoners, Andy Bruce, 27, Dwight Lucas, 21, and Dwight Gaye Lowe, 20, spent the night in RCMP cells in neighboring Burnaby.

They were to be transferred to Dorchester penitentiary later today and are to be flown back to Vancouver for court appearances on charges laid in their previous confrontations with prison authorities.

The last two guards were released after prison director Dragan Cernetic read on television a list of the prisoners' demands.

Among the demands:

—Hot and cold water in the isolation cells;

—Recreation yard privileges for segregated prisoners;

—Medical examination of a hernia condition they said Lucas was suffering and of a jawbone graft Bruce received after being shot in the jaw in June when that hostage siege ended;

—Procedural changes in a prison court that deals with discipline;

—The dropping of outstanding discipline charges, if any, against the three men and

Deaths Tied To Drink

OTTAWA (CP) — About 38 per cent of 1,725 persons killed in traffic accidents in five provinces in 1973 were driving while impaired by alcohol, says a recent research study.

The study by the Traffic Injury Research Foundation of Canada says an examination of coroners' reports indicates about 18 per cent of the drivers killed were severely impaired.

A driver is impaired under law when the concentration of alcohol in the bloodstream is 0.08 per cent and there is severe impairment above 0.20 per cent, says the study report.

The report, released Thursday, was compiled from coroners' reports in British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and New Brunswick.

Male drivers accounted for 89 per cent of driver deaths and young men between 16 and 19 "tend to be the most heavily over-represented, accounting for almost 20 per cent of all driver fatalities."

Impairment stood out particularly among drivers aged 30 to 34 — 52 per cent of drivers killed in this age group were impaired.

Only six per cent of drivers killed over the age of 65 were impaired.

Food Price Villain Farm Boards—Paper

Scrap Dairy Subsidies, Gov't Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government should scrap $266 million worth of annual subsidies to the dairy industry and revamp industrial milk policies within the next 10 years, the food prices review board said Thursday.

Condemning the lack of a coherent federal dairy policy, the board said:

"Policies are established on an ad hoc basis, that emphasize short-term political considerations at the expense of coherent, long-run economic and social factors."

Federal dairy policies during the last year were attacked: "The subsequent patchwork quilt of amendments and sometimes contradictory changes in some of the important elements of federal dairy policy have made a mockery of the government's assertion that it has a long-term dairy policy."

The report recommends continued provincial control of fluid milk marketing but says marketing boards in some provinces "are utilizing their near-monopoly powers to provide producers, at the expense of consumers, with a higher rate of return than is necessary."

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board today attacked farm marketing boards as the major villain in rising food prices but predicted price increases may be cut almost in half to seven per cent this year.

In its final report, the board also took another swipe at government indifference to reforming food policies and said politicians encouraged attacks on the "relatively minor villains" of business and industry while ignoring sharp increases in farmer incomes over the last three years.

The board, created in May, 1973, and absorbed by the anti-inflation board last October, also said its existence "provided a convenient target for politicians to attack, thereby avoiding having to face up to the real issues."

The prediction for over-all food price increases of seven per cent this year was based on three assumptions, normal weather conditions and no major crop failures, continuation of present government policies and anti-inflation program success in reducing increases in labor and supply costs and profit margins.

The seven-per-cent level would compare with a food price jump of 12.9 per cent in 1975. Food prices rose 14.6 per cent in 1973 and 16.3 per cent in 1974.

Food prices this year will be greater in the first six months, reflecting seasonal rises in fruit and vegetable prices, the board said.

The board continued attacks begun in earlier reports on the producer-controlled farm marketing board system as inefficient and representing a conflict of interest because it allows farmers to control production levels and to increase prices for their own benefit.

The farmers gained more than any other group from the food price surge in the 1973-75 period but escaped attention due to strong farmer lobbies with the government.

Welfare Work Talk Set

SURREY (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm will meet Manpower Minister Robert Andras in the next couple of weeks to work out a provincial plan to force welfare recipients to take available jobs or lose their benefits.

Ron Stew, with the Surrey welfare office, said Wednesday such a job-finding program has been in effect in this municiality 20 miles south of Vancouver for the last five years and the provincial program will be laid out along similar lines.

Stew said his office has been working closely with the provincial department in setting up the program, which finds jobs through the federal Manpower office and direct contact with the business community.

He said that in the time the office has administered the program, 6,000 potential welfare recipients have been able to find work, with only two refusing and losing their benefits.

Give Us Back Our Dead—IRA

DUBLIN (UPI) — Irish policemen held back screaming Irish Republican Army supporters today and took the body of IRA hunger striker Frank Stagg away by helicopter for a private funeral instead of the martyr's service planned by the IRA.

"Give us back our dead," screamed dozens of IRA backers who clawed and punched in an unsuccesful attempt to get through the police cordon at Shannon Airport, where the government had kept Stagg's body overnight.

With policemen holding back the attackers, the body was loaded onto a helicopter and flown to Hollimount, about 50 miles away, for a private funeral.

No one from the Stagg family was present at the funeral service, in Stagg's home town. Service was conducted by the parish priest as armored cars ringed the church.

IT'S A BAR-GAIN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The man who made a million by selling pet rocks has revealed his secret.

He told a market researchers luncheon Thursday to "drink a lot of scotch. Go to the Sirloin & Grog. Drink at the bar. And don't forget your ideas when you leave."

At least that formula worked for Gary Dahl, 37, San Jose, Calif., who remembered his idea when he went home last April and was a millionaire by Christmas with his sale of pet rocks.

"I made a million bucks in 10 months and I didn't spend a penny on market research," he said.

'Oust Trudeau for Freedom'...6,000 Cheer Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — The national Progressive Conservative leadership convention opened Thursday night with a blaze of color, a pitch for party unity and a call to arms against the Trudeau government.

"If freedom is to survive, the Trudeau government must be ousted," declared John Diefenbaker as the four-day convention opened with a rousing tribute to the 80-year-old former prime minister, ousted himself as leader in 1967.

An estimated 6,000 delegates, alternates, observers and onlookers stood in the banner-decked Ottawa Civic Centre and cheered as Diefenbaker delivered what he said probably would be his last speech to a national party leadership convention.

All candidates whisked through busy schedules as delegates from across the country swarmed into downtown hotels.

The air was crackling with anticipation by the time the gavel came down for opening ceremonies at the bustling Civic Centre. But the tension and party infighting that marred the last leadership convention in 1967 were missing.

Diefenbaker, still The Chief to loyal supporters, struck a note for party unity when he told delegates from a flood-lit podium that "Stanfield was right" in his conduct of the last federal election campaign.

The gesture, greeted by a roar of applause, cooled wounds remaining from when Diefenbaker lost to Stanfield in a bitter factional struggle. Stanfield, who has failed in three elections to carry the Conservatives to power, smiled in his seat as the remark was made.

But the overriding theme of the opening focused on the Trudeau government and Conservative hopes to defeat it in the next election.

"People want an alternative to what is happening; someone they can believe in, someone who will call upon the best in all of us."

Meighen said the convention is crucial to the party and its future.

He asked delegates to select a leader capable of leading the country into a new political era.

Outside the Civic Centre, hospitality suites boomed in hotels as candidates criss-crossed the city to meet delegates and hold news conferences.

9½-Hour Wilkinson Jail Drama Over

then asked for a negotiator and named Christie.

Ironically, Christie had gone to the prison shortly after the incident began to interview a client but had been turned away. Officials managed to contact him and he peached the jail at about 10:30 p.m.

Negotiations at first were conducted over a telephone connected to the gym. Finally, at 1:45 a.m., the inmates agreed to release McDonald if Christie would join them in the gym to work out their demands.

As he read the statement prepared by Desjarlais, Christie was choked with emotion.

"I hope . . . I believe there are thousands of people who would not like to see people dehumanized," the statement began. It went on to describe both isolation cells and the regular cells in the jail — which inmates have to share two to a cell — as "dehumanized treatment."

Desjarlais said he had spent 12½ months in a solitary confinement cell at the B.C. Pen, but compared with the isolation cell at Wilkinson Road, "that one was paradise."

He noted the B.C. Supreme Court had ruled the B.C. Pen segregation unit was "cruel and unusual punishment."

Desjarlais said he had been placed in the isolation cell five days last week.

BAKER

Deputy director of the jail, Harry Bacon, said Desjarlais had been "insolent" and had attempted to attack a staff member.

"We don't like to use the isolation cells, but we have to maintain discipline," Bacon said.

As the drama unfolded more than a dozen newsmen, barred from entering the prison grounds, waited in front of the main gate and grew stiff from the freezing cold. After Christie entered however, a radio reporter and press photographer were allowed in and remained inside the jail until the seige was over. At that point, the other members of the press, whose number had dwindled to six, were invited in also.

Following the reading of Desjarlais' statement, newsmen went on a tour of the isolation wing, the cell-block and dining area, fulfilling one of the demands the inmates had made.

Desjarlais, still handcuffed to Christie led the way.

In the isolation wing Desjarlais stood in one of the six solid concrete cells which each measure five feet wide, seven feet long and nine feet high. Reporters examined the tiny slit in the two-inch thick door, the barren floor, the 60-watt light behind a wire mesh that barely illuminated the interior.

Desjarlais said all an inmate is given is a thin mattress, a blanket and a pot. He's confined inside 24 hours a day until his punishment is over.

Then the group went to his and Wilson's regular cell, number 12 in a line on the second tier of the east wing. Reporters passed inmates, for the most part two to a cell, sleeping in chain-hinged bunk beds or standing idly behind the bars. The only furniture in the cells was one or two-hard-backed chairs. One cell had a small table. The toilet was without seat. Desjarlais said his didn't flush.

As the group passed, men in the tier below started calling up "Hey, come down and see how I live."

"There isn't even a toilet in my cell," an anonymous inmate called out.

Later, McGillivray said he agreed the conditions were anything but satisfactory.

"We've asked for changes in this institution for the past 12 years," he said. "But nothing has been forthcoming."

He said he would like to see the men separated so they could have their own cell, but that wasn't possible. There isn't the staff, he said.

If we had 10 more officers, well, that would be a different matter, he said.

With the extra staff the west wing, which is largely unused, could be re-opened.

There are 78 inmates currently in the institution, the majority of whom are awaiting trial.

Commenting on the "unfortunate" incidents in both Saanich and new Westminister, Attorney-General Garde Gardom today praised corrections officials for bringing about a "successful result."

"Both of these very unfortunate incidents have terminated very satisfactorily," he said.

"I think the province owes a great debt of gratitude to the many people who worked so very, very hard and with great dedication."

"Jack is the only good Conservative we've had," said a local entertainer at one bar stop.

Brian Mulroney adopted a high profile but a few clouds began to drift over his campaign.

The first was when Diefenbaker directed a subtle blow at him by telling delegates "tradition" had it that party leaders ususlly have long parliamentary experience before rising to that position.

Mulroney, who has never held electoral office, said "I don't know, I don't think so" when asked if he thought the remark was directed at him.

The second cloud is in the form of rumblings that a coalition of some other candidates is forming to block Mulroney, said to be near the top of the pack, when the voting starts.

"I don't think there will be a gang-up against me," he said when a reporter asked him about reports that Wagner, Paul Hellyer and Sinclair Stevens would work to steer their delegates away from him if they were edged out during the balloting.

He repeated earlier statements that there would be no "kingmakers" at this convention because the delegates, the "grass roots" would be the kings this time around.

The 95 Tory MPs are widely split on their first-ballot choices for the leadership, but Hellyer and Wagner are the top choices.

A Canadian Press survey of the caucus shows Hellyer, the former federal Liberal cabinet minister who jumped to the Conservative party in 1971, with 19 first-ballot choices and Wagner, a former Quebec Liberal justice minister, with 14 backers.

Hellyer, a comparative latecomer to the race, also has strong second-choice support among many western MPs.

Strong caucus support also was evident for party financial critic Stevens, with 11, and outspoken Horner with 10.

Trailing in caucus backers are Flora MacDonald and Mulroney with three each, John Fraser, Patrick Nowlan and Joe Clark with two each and James Gillies with one Heward Grafftey has no identifiable supporters in caucus.

There were also 18 MPs who in interviews would not reveal their choices and two others were unavailable for comment.

the weather

Rain associated with an advancing Pacific disturbance fell on the north coast overnight while a few showers persisted along the south coast. In the Interior skies were relatively clear in most regions under a ridge of high pressure. The disturbance accompanied by snow will move into the central Interior this morning and reach the southern Interior tonight. The rain will spread southward along the coast and reach the lower mainland this afternoon. A few showers will continue along the coast on Saturday with snowflurries in the central Interior. Occasional rain or mixed rain and snow will be present in the southern Interior. Little change in the present temperature pattern is expected.

CITY FEELS CARPARK CERTAIN

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's biggest hole in the ground is a major question mark today in view of the provincial government's reassessment ofits 1976 spending program.

The $17.5 million project would provide two levels of underground parking and five storeys of office buildings covering almost a full city block at Blanshard and Courtney, adjacent to the Wilson Inn.

Victoria City donated 34,800 square feet of land for $1 on the understanding the province would provide a carpark as part of the project.

"Whatever else happens, we believe the provincial government is committed to the package," said city manager Jim Bramley.

He said the city has heard nothing to indicate the project would be delayed.

However, government sources indicated the project might be delayed because of the provincial government's reassessment of its spending program.

It would provide 210,000 square feet of parking on two underground levels, enough for 540 cars.

In addition, there would be 210,000 square feet of office space above ground. The building would taper up to five floors. Stores, restaurants and public walkways are planned for the ground level.

The provincial government had pencilled in the date November, 1977, as a target for completion.

Excavation for the parking levels is just about complete and work on the cement superstructure is about to begin, if the project gets the green light.

In its agreement with the city, the provincial government promised to proceed "forthwith" with the construction of the building, including the carpark. However, no deadline for completion is in the agreement.

The city understands that in view of the gift of land for $1, it has the right to retrieve the land if the project does not proceed.

Bramley stressed that the city is confident the carpark portion will be constructed and that is the only part of the project in which the city has a direct interest.

Government sources said that if the office portion of the project had to be delayed, work might proceed in stages. There was no indication the project as a whole would be shelved.

Oil Poured in Sewer Blamed In Bird Deaths, Beach Mess

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1976 17
SECOND SECTION

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Oil released into Victoria's sewers and discharged at Clover Point is killing waterfowl and polluting nearby beaches, a SPCA inspector disclosed today.

Rick West said the source of oil pollution has definitely been traced to the sewage system.

"There is no question about it," he said. "Someone is using the system to get rid of bunker or oil waste. The quantities are small but it builds up over a period of time."

He said the slick which washed up at Ross Bay on Jan. 28 came from the Clover Point outfall and not from a passing freighter as first believed.

He said the tide carried the slick to Ross Bay.

West said an average of two birds a day, covered with oil are turned into the SPCA shelter for treatment. In the last two days six were brought to the shelter.

"There is no way of telling how many birds have died as the result of oil pollution," he said. "We only receive and pick up birds which remain on oil-covered rocks because they are too weak to move."

He said diving birds suffer as they dive throug hthe oil and come up through it.

Otters also suffer because the oil gets on their fur. They also sometimes eat the weaker birds and the oil gets into their system and they die.

He said Clover Point attracts quite a number of birds because of the feed in the area.

Steam plants are suspected of releasing waste oil into the sewage system but it could come from other sources, West said.

"Surely there are better ways of getting rid of waste oil," he said. "There is no reason to use the sewage system for a pollutant of this type."

He said other outfalls are being checked out for oil pollution.

"We are still investigating," he said. "Meanwhile, everyday residents report seeing oil-covered birds. Despite their weakness, we have been successful in treating them. We released them when they have regained their strength."

The oil from the outfall on Jan. 28 fouled about 600 feet of shoreline at Ross Bay. A crew used propane torches to burn it off.

It was estimated that the slick amounted to about six barrels of bunker oil.

Freight Spat on Ferry

Two trailerloads of freight had to be taken back to Port Angeles aboard the Black Ball ferry Coho earlier this week because of a dispute about which Teamsters' Union members should unload the freight.

The Coho made its first run Monday after a three-week refit in Seattle.

Black Ball last year sold the freight service part of its operation to an American firm and Johnston Terminals in Victoria acts as that firm's Canadian agent.

Teamsters members at Black Ball apparently still considered the off-loading of freight to be in their jurisdiction, despite the sale of the freight service, and prevented Teamsters employed by Jonnston Terminals from doing the off-loading.

Teamsters officials would not comment on the incident.

Johnston spokesman West Avison said the freight is now coming in on the Anacortes ferry to Sidney until the problem is settled.

Frumento said he though it would be settled soon but would not elaborate.

Chamber Wants Ferry For Foot Passengers

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will meet Transport Minister Jack Davis in an effort to get the provincial government to keep the Prince George and use her as a foot passenger vessel between Victoria and Vancouver.

The decision to mount a campaign to save the vessel was made at an emergency meeting of directors today.

President Jack Hutchins said, just as in the case of the Princess Marguerite, the Chamber will rally support, hoping to get Davis to change his mind and not sell the ship to the highest bidder.

"We envision a three-way link-up with people being able to travel from Vancouver to Victoria on the Prince George, then to Seattle aboard the Marguerite, returning to Vancouver by train without ever getting into their cars," he said.

Hutchins said if the government had the Prince George's state rooms gutted, in order to make more foot pasenger space as they did in the case of the Marguerite, it would considerably reduce renovation costs.

He said the downtown to downtown Victoria-Vancouver run could be extended from May to September to all-year-round service if found economically viable.

"We feel pretty strong about the need for walking downtown traffic," he said. "You only have to walk up and down Government Street, even though it's improved, to realize we need a awalking traffic of people to make it economically viable."

Another cry for public support to save the ship came from semi-retired Victoria businessman Gordie Townsend today, who has 14 years experience in railway transportation.

"I would like to see the thing bought by the people of the province. If they can raise $2 or $3 million to save the Orpheum Theatre (in Vancouver), why not?", he asked.

Townsend said an organization could be financed by share purchases at a nominal sum by members of the public, giving them a vote in the company and serving as a down payment on a cruise.

FUND-RAISING DRIVE to collect money to help celebrate Emily Carr Day May 21 is centred at Empress Hotel from now until March 3. The drive includes sale of mementos of the Victoria artist, raffle of a Brian Travers-Smith painting, an auction of Canadian paintings, and workshops for children. Funds will be used to continue development of Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government. Centre director Bill Bowie and wife Rosalie and Mel Kristjan open the drive at The Empress.

City Backs Off Prosecutions In Drive on Tax Defaulters

Victoria's property tax defaulters who are willing to pay their outstanding taxes but need a little time to do so won't be taken to court by the city, Mayor Mike Young said Thursday.

Following an in-camera meeting of council's finance committee, Young told reporters that all such taxpayers who have indicated they intend to settle their accounts will receive letters from city solicitor Jakob de Villiers indicating how much time they will be allowed.

But the mayor declined to say what that period of grace will be. He did say, however, that no discretionary time limits will be allowed in the basis of individual circumstances.

"In essence, we have decided to treat everyone in the same way," he said. "We have agreed to full payment on a short-term instalment basis as necessary."

Young denied council was yielding to pressure by extending deadlines on its suing policy. As happens in any other lawsuit, he said, the city is merely arranging the terms of settlement where the taxpayers concerned have said they will make appropriate arrangements to pay "over a short term."

The policy of court action to recover overdue taxes was first applied to 128 commercial, professional and industrial taxpayers owing the city a total of $659,887. Thirty-three writs were actually served.

To date a total of $296,837 has been paid, and de Villiers said this total will increase as a number of post-dated cheques he has received mature within the next few days.

He said 11 firms or individuals have applied for time to pay their delinquent tax bills but not all of these requests are being granted.

Sums owned in this category range from $800 up to $78,000 for a total of about $250,000. The solicitor confirmed earlier reports that the bulk of the sum — $186,000 — is owed by three motel owners.

De Villiers said some people want until next year to settle, but the period fixed by aldermen allows a much shorter time to pay. The city would not permit 1976 taxes to become due while arrears were still outstanding.

That would indicate the maximum time limit allowable will not exceed four months, as this year's property taxes are due by June 30.

De Villiers said that apart from the extensions approved Thursday no further requests for time to pay will be considered.

'Amazing Support' Noted For Clark in Tory Race

Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon today rated Joe Clark at the head of the second rank of contestants for the party leadership to be decided Sunday.

He admits he is biased as one of the early supporters of Clark for Tory leader, but he said Friday night's reception in Ottawa Civic Centre Conservative convention rated Clark suprisingly high.

Measured in cheers, Clark's candidacy has "amazing" convention support, McKinnon said in an interview from Ottawa. In addition, Clark is getting a lot of attention from political commentators, he noted.

"We could hardly feel better than we do about our candidate."

McKinnon said about 7,000 delegates and party workers at the convention Friday demonstrated their enthusiasm for Clark, while support for the others was perfunctory.

At this point, Claude Wagner, Paul Hellyer and Brian Mulroney are one-two-three for the balloting, McKinnon said.

McKinnon said Wagner was not showing much strength at the convention, but this may be because he is "keeping most of his Quebec support at home until Saturday" so as not to create a Quebec schism in the convention.

Hellyer is getting more support than Jack Horner, to a degree which McKinnon thought might surprise armed forces-conscious Victorians.

Tribute to Retiring Judge

Tribute was paid this morning to Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton of B.C. Supreme Court as he stepped into retirement after 15 years on the bench.

Judges, lawyers and court staff jammed into Courtroom 321 of the temporary courthouse at St. Ann's Academy to say goodbye and wish him well.

Mr. Justice Wootton, who is 74, has been the resident Supreme Court judge in Victoria since 1961. No immediate replacement has been announced.

One of his first comments after the tributes was to the that his daughter, Anna, a lawyer, was present.

He said it is a great honor, privilege and responsibility to be a judge.

"This should be a happy occasion: I am not exactly being buried," he joked at one point.

"I thank you all. It's simply delightful to hear sweet things said on such an occasion."

His retirement caps a distinguished career in both public service and the law.

He is a former councillor and reeve of Oak Bay, a past president of the Men's Canadian Club, former chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors and registrar of the Anglican Synod, former president of Oak Bay Progressive Conservatives.

WOOTTON

He was a bencher of the Law Society of B.C., for 10 years until his appointment as a judge, a former president of the Victoria Bar Association and B.C. president of the Canadian Bar Association.

Dr. J. J. Gow, president of the Victoria Bar Association, said it was both a sad and a joyous occasion — sad because "we shall miss appearing before you," missing his patience, firmness, dignity and compassion.

But it was also a joyous occasion "because you will enjoy years of retirement after years of distinguished service."

CITY FEELS CARPARK CERTAIN

Gov't May Delay Office Complex

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria's biggest hole in the ground is a major question mark today in view of the provincial government's reassessment of its 1976 spending program.

The $17.5 million project would provide two levels of underground parking and five storeys of office buildings covering almost a full city block at Blanshard and Courtney, adjacent to the Wilson Inn.

Victoria City donated 34,800 square feet of land for $1 on the understanding the province would provide a carpark as part of the project.

"Whatever else happens, we believe the provincial government is committed to the parkade," said city manager Jim Bramley.

He said the city has heard nothing to indicate the project would be delayed.

However, government sources indicated the project might be delayed because of the provincial government's reassessment of its spending program.

It would provide 210,000 square feet of parking on two underground levels, enough for 540 cars.

In addition, there would be 210,000 square feet of office space above ground. The building would taper up to five floors. Stores, restaurants and public walkways are planned for the ground level.

The provincial government had pencilled in the date November, 1977, as a target for completion.

Excavation for the parking levels is just about complete and work on the cement superstructure is about to begin, if the project gets the green light.

In its agreement with the city, the provincial government promised to proceed "forthwith" with the construction of the building, including the carpark. However, no deadline for completion is in the agreement.

The city understands that in view of the gift of land for $1, it has the right to retrieve its land if the project does not proceed.

Bramley stressed that the city is confident the carpark portion will be constructed and that is the only part of the project in which the city has a direct interest.

Government sources said that if the office portion of the project had to be delayed, work might proceed in stages. There was no indication the project as a whole would be shelved.

Oil Put Into Sewer Blamed In Bird Deaths, Beach Mess

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Oil released into Victoria's sewers and discharged at Clover Point is killing waterfowl and polluting nearby beaches, a SPCA inspector disclosed today.

Rick West said the source of oil pollution has definitely been traced to the sewage system.

"There is no question about it," he said. "Someone is using the system to get rid of bunker or oil waste. The quantities are small but it builds up over a period of time."

He said the slick which washed up at Ross Bay on Jan. 28 came from the Clover Point outfall and not from a passing freighter as first believed.

He said the tide carried the slick to Ross Bay.

West said an average of two birds a day, covered with oil are turned into the SPCA shelter for treatment. In the last two days six were brought to the shelter.

"There is no way of telling how many birds have died as the result of oil pollution," he said. "We only receive and pick up birds which remain on oil-covered rocks because they are too weak to move."

He said diving birds suffer as they dive through the oil and come up through it.

Otters also suffer because the oil gets on their fur. They also sometimes eat the weaker birds and the oil gets into their system and they die.

He said Clover Point attracts quite a number of birds because of the feed in the area.

Steam plants are suspected of releasing waste oil into the sewage system but it could come from other sources, West said.

"Surely there are better ways of getting rid of waste oil," he said. "There is no reason to use the sewage system for a pollutant of this type."

He said other outfalls are being checked out for oil pollution.

"We are still investigating," he said. "Meanwhile, everyday residents report seeing oil-covered birds. Despite their weakness, we have been successful in treating them. We released them when they have regained their strength."

The oil from the outfall on Jan. 28 fouled about 600 feet of shoreline at Ross Bay. A crew used propane torches to burn it off.

It was estimated that the slick amounted to about six barrels of bunker oil.

Freight Spat on Ferry

Two trailerloads of freight had to be taken back to Port Angeles aboard the Black Ball ferry Coho earlier this week because of a dispute about which Teamsters' Union members should unload the freight.

Black Ball last year sold the freight service part of its operation to an American firm and Johnston Terminals in Victoria acts as that firm's Canadian agent.

Teamsters members at Black Ball apparently still considered the off-loading of freight to be in their jurisdiction, despite the sale of the freight service, and prevented Teamsters employed by Jonnston Terminals from doing the off-loading.

Teamsters officials would not comment on the incident.

Johnston spokesman Wes Avison said the freight is now coming in on the Anacortes ferry to Sidney until the problem is settled.

Fumento said he thought it would be settled soon but would not elaborate.

Chamber Wants Ferry For Foot Passengers

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce will meet Transport Minister Jack Davis in an effort to get the provincial government to keep the Prince George and use her as a foot passenger vessel between Victoria and Vancouver.

The decision to mount a campaign to save the vessel was made at an emergency meeting of directors today.

President Jack Hutchins said, just as in the case of the Princess Marguerite, the Chamber will rally support, hoping to get Davis to change his mind and not sell the ship to the highest bidder.

"We envisage a three-way link-up with people being able to travel from Vancouver to Victoria on the Prince George, then to Seattle aboard the Marguerite, returning to Vancouver by train without ever getting into their cars," he said.

Hutchins said if the government had the Prince George's state rooms gutted, in order to make more foot pasenger space as they did in the case of the Marguerite, it would considerably reduce renovation costs.

He said the downtown to downtown Victoria-Vancouver run could be extended from May to September to all-year-round service if found economically viable.

"We feel pretty strong about the need for walking downtown traffic," he said. "You only have to walk up and down Government Street, even though it's improved, to realize we need a walking traffic to make it economically viable."

Another cry for public support to save the ship came from semi-retired Victoria businessman Gordie Townsend today, who has 14 years experience in railway transportation.

"I would like to see the thing bought by the people of the province. If they can raise $2 or $3 million to save the Orpheum Theatre (in Vancouver), why not?", he asked.

Townsend said an organization could be financed by share purchases at a nominal sum by members of the public, giving them a vote in the company and serving as a down payment on a cruise.

FUND-RAISING DRIVE to collect money to help celebrate Emily Carr Day May 21 is centred at Empress Hotel from now until March 3. The drive includes sale of mementos of the Victoria artist, raffle of a Brian Travers-Smith painting, an auction of Canadian paintings. Funds will be used to continue development of Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government, including workshops for children. Centre director Bill Bowie and wife Rosalie and Mel Kristjan open drive at The Empress.

City Backs Off Prosecutions In Drive on Tax Defaulters

Victoria's property tax defaulters who are willing to pay their outstanding taxes but need a little time to do so won't be taken to court by the city, Mayor Mike Young said Thursday.

Following an in-camera meeting of council's finance committee, Young told reporters that all such taxpayers who have indicated they intend to settle their accounts will receive letters from city solicitor Jakob de Villiers indicating how much time they will be allowed.

But the mayor declined to say what that period of grace will be. He did say, however, that no discretionary time limits will be allowed in the basis of individual circumstances.

"In essence, we have decided to treat everyone in the same way," he said. "We have agreed to full payment on a short-term instalment basis as necessary."

Young denied council was yielding to pressure by extending deadlines on its suing policy. As happens in any other lawsuit, he said, the city is merely arranging the terms of settlement where the taxpayers concerned have said they will make appropriate arrangements to pay "over a short term."

The policy of court action to recover overdue taxes was first applied to 128 commercial, professional and industrial taxpayers owing the city a total of $659,887. Thirty-three writs were actually served.

To date a total of $296,837 has been paid, and de Villiers said this total will increase as a number of post-dated cheques he has received mature within the next few days.

He said 11 firms or individuals have applied for time to pay their delinquent tax bills but not all of these requests are being granted.

Sums owned in this category range from $800 up to $78,000 for a total of about $250,000. The solicitor confirmed earlier reports that the bulk of the sum — $186,000 — is owed by three motel owners.

De Villiers said some people want until next year to settle, but the period fixed by aldermen allows a much shorter time to pay. The city would not permit 1976 taxes to become due while arrears were still outstanding.

That would indicate the maximum time limit allowable will not exceed four months, as this year's property taxes are due by June 30.

De Villiers said that apart from the extensions approved Thursday no further requests for time to pay will be considered.

'Amazing Support' Noted For Clark in Tory Race

Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon today rated Joe Clark at the head of the second rank of contestants for the party leadership to be decided Sunday.

He admits he is biased as one of the early supporters of Clark for Tory leader, but he said Friday night's reception in Ottawa Civic Centre Conservative convention rated Clark suprisingly high.

Measured in cheers, Clark's candidacy has "amazing" convention support, McKinnon said in an interview from Ottawa. In addition, Clark is getting a lot of attention from political commentators, he noted.

"We could hardly feel better than we do about our candidate."

McKinnon said about 7,000 delegates and party workers at the convention Friday demonstrated their enthusiasm for Clark, while support for the others was perfunctory.

At this point, Claude Wagner, Paul Hellyer and Brian Mulroney are one-two-three for the balloting, McKinnon said.

McKinnon said Wagner was not showing much strength at the convention, but this may be because he is "keeping most of his Quebec support at home until Saturday" so as not to create a Quebec schism in the convention.

Hellyer is getting more support than Jack Horner, to a degree which McKinnon thought might surprise armed forces-conscious Victorians.

Tribute to Retiring Judge

Tribute was paid this morning to Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton of B.C. Supreme Court as he stepped into retirement after 15 years on the bench.

Mr. Justice Wootton, who is 74, has been the resident Supreme Court judge in Victoria since 1961. No immediate replacement has been announced.

One of his first comments after the tributes was to note that his daughter, Anna, a lawyer, was present.

He said it is a great honor, privilege and responsibility to be a judge.

"This should be a happy occasion: I am not exactly being buried," he joked at one point.

"I thank you all. It's simply delightful to hear sweet things said on such an occasion."

His retirement caps a distinguished career in both public service and the law.

He is a former councillor and reeve of Oak Bay, a past president of the Men's Canadian Club, former chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors and registrar of the Anglican Synod, former president of Oak Bay Progressive Conservatives.

WOOTTON

He was a bencher of the Law Society of B.C. for 10 years until his appointment as a judge, a former president of the Victoria Bar Association and B.C. president of the Canadian Bar Association.

Dr. J. J. Gow, president of the Victoria Bar Association, said it was both a sad and a joyous occasion — sad because "we shall miss appearing before you," missing his patience, firmness, dignity and compassion.

But it was also a joyous occasion "because you will enjoy years of retirement after years of distinguished service."

His little plane was so loaded with fuel that Charles Lindbergh worried he might not even make it off the ground. But he did, narrowly, and the Spirit of St. Louis headed out over the Atlantic on the historic 1927 flight to Paris that made Lindbergh a world hero and brought him a joyous Broadway welcome home. Five years later, that triumph turned to tragedy with the 1932 kidnapping and murder of the hero's infant son.

On Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channel 8 (and Thursday on Channel 5), the networks will present a 3-hour dramatization of what has been called "the crime of the century"— The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case, chronicling the frustrating investigation, the ultimate capture of suspect Bruno Richard Hauptmann, his trial and its aftermath. In the cast are Cliff De Young as Lindbergh, Rita Barbara Allen as Anne Morrow Lindbergh and Anthony Hopkins as Hauptmann.

Today's Movies

Voyage Into Space, on 7 at 3:30. A 1968 Japanese-made animated space fantasy.

The Story of Alexander Graham Bell (xxx), on 2 at 9. Don Ameche plays the title role in this warm-hearted and entertaining 1939 dramatization of the life of the great inventor. An excellent supporting cast includes Loretta Young, Henry Fonda, Charles Coburn and Gene Lockhart.

Dirty Harry (x), on 5 at 9. A shallow, violent 1971 police thriller starring Clint Eastwood as a San Francisco police detective trying to capture a mass murderer who has threatened to kill a person a day unless he is paid $100,000. Supporting cast includes Harry Guardino and Canadian actor John Verson. (This movie comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.)

The Marriage of a Young Stockbroker, on 6 at 9. No rating available on this 1971 comedy-drama starring Richard Benjamin and Joanna Shimkus as an affluent couple facing a crisis point in their marriage. (This film also comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.)

The Extra Girl, on 9 at 9. Mack Sennett, who created the Keystone Kops, and in hundreds of one and two reelers made famous virtually all of the great early slapstick comedians, turned his talent to a full length feature with this 1923 silent comedy. Mabel Normand stars in the Cinderella story of a typical small-town girl who wins a beauty contest through a misunderstanding and ends up in Hollywood. Written and produced by Sennett, the story combines all of his traditional slapstick routines.

Arabesque (xx), on 7 at 11. Lavish international settings highlight this otherwise predictable 1966 chase melodrama starring Gregory Peck and Sophia Loren as a pair of lovers involved in international intrigue. The European locations are far more absorbing than the plot.

The Evil of Frankenstein, on 11 at 11. British horror star Peter Cushing stars in this 1964 thriller set in rural Germany.

Wait Until Dark (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A taut, fascinating 1967 suspense thriller about a blind housewife terrorized by drug smugglers trying to retrieve an antique doll containing heroin, which was unwittingly given to the woman as a gift. Based on a successful stage play, the action rarely moves from the woman's flat, but fine performances and brilliant direction keep the tension high. An excellent cast includes Audrey Hepburn, Richard Crenna, Alan Arkin and Efrem Zimbalist Jr.

23 Paces to Baker Street (xxx), on 4 at 11:45. A neat and tidy, attention-holding mystery about a blind playwright trying to solve a London kidnap-murder case, starring Van Johnson and Vera Miles.

Lonely Are the Brave (xxx), on 2 at 12:15 a.m. Kirk Douglas stars in this interesting 1962 modern-day western-drama, about a cowboy trying to live in the old way who finds his freedom jeopardized by the mechanization of the modern age. Douglas' portrayal of a man out of his time element is excellent, and he receives fine support from the rest of the cast which includes Gene Rowlands, Walter Matthau and Carroll O'Connor.

Women in Chains (x), on 5 at 1 a.m. A predictable 1972 made-for-TV prison drama about a parole officer's investigation of poor conditions at a women's penal institution. Veteran actress Ida Lupino is wasted in the role of a sadistic matron.

SUPERSTAR — a new crime-drama series starring Paul Sorvino as a former New York cop transferred to San Francisco, whose impressive record of arrests and convictions have earned him the nickname "Superstar," premieres on Saturday at 10 p.m. on Channel 4.

Today's Highlights

Progressive Conservative Convention, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Channel 2; 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Channel 8. Beginning two days of live coverage of the Progressive Conservative Leadership Convention from Ottawa. Today's program of events includes the candidates' speeches to the delegates (each is allowed 20 minutes, including floor demonstrations). 5 hrs.)

Theatre in America, on 9 at 3. A repeat telecast of Zalmen or The Madness of God, focusing on the demoralized Jews in a small Russian town. (2 hrs.)

Confrontation, on 6 and 8 at 4. A panel discussion on the topic of violence in hockey with former Montreal Canadien hockey player John Ferguson, a group of amateur coaches and referees, sociologists and hockey critics. (60 mins.)

Annual Variety Club Telethon, on 8 beginning at 9 p.m.; and 6 at 11:20 p.m., and running until 5 p.m. Sunday. Live from the Queen Elizabeth Theatre in Vancouver, is this coverage of this annual Variety Club telethon to raise money for charitable projects. Celebrities donating their time and talent include host Monty Hall, The Irish Rovers, Ann Mortifee, Leon Bibb, Blake Emmons, Paul Horn and Jo-Anne Worley. (20 hrs.)

Bert D'Angelo—Superstar, on 4 at 10. Debut of a new crime-drama series starring Paul Sorvino as a veteran San Francisco police detective, whose impressive record of arrests and convictions has earned him the nickname of "Superstar." (Crime-drama buffs will note that this is another Quinn Martin series.) (60 mins.)

Carol Burnett Show, on 7 at 10. Carol and her regulars Harvey Korman, Tim Conway and Vicki Lawrence welcome as special guests Dick Van Dyke and Tony Randall. (60 mins.)

Sammy and Company, on 12 at 10. Host Sammy Davis Jr. welcomes among his guests Dr. Joyce Brothers, Monty Hall and Peter Marshall. (90 mins.)

Saturday Night, on 5 at 11:30. Chevy Chase and the regulars welcome the rock group Labelle to tonight's show. (90 mins.)

B.C. Faces Highlight 20-hour Telethon

The most versatile entertainment package of all Telethons will be on stage February 21 and 22 at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre to raise money for British Columbia's handicapped children. The 20-hour Telethon will be produced by Rai Purdy and telecast live over the BCTV regional network from 9:00 p.m. February 21 until 5:00 February 22.

Masters of ceremonies and entertainers will include such well-known stars as Monty Hall, Blake Emmons, Bob McGrath, Jo-Anne Worley, Leon Bibb, the Irish Rovers, and Paul Horn. In addition to Hall and Emmons, masters of ceremonies will include sportscaster Al Davidson, and columnist Jack Wasserman.

Blake Emmons and Bob McGrath are familiar to Telethon audiences and their names are now synonymous with charity work in British Columbia.

Being 'emcee' will be nothing new to Monty Hall, producer and master of ceremonies of Let's Make a Deal — longest running television game show in captivity. Born in Winnipeg, Hall is the current president of Variety Clubs International. While this is his first appearance on the British Columbia Telethon, he has helped to raise millions of dollars on other Variety Club Telethons all over the continent.

Sesame Street star, Bob McGrath is a Pied Piper to all his faithful viewers. He has a special charisma with children and his Sunday morning portion of the Telethon has become one of its top features. Kiddies can expect to see assistants like Big Bird to help Bob on the Telethon.

ANN MORTIFEE

Country and western singer Blake Emmons has appeared on over 30 Telethons in Canada and the U.S., raising money for special Variety Club projects. Emmons understands the problems of handicapped children, as his adopted son was blind until an operation last year restored partial eyesight. A former Vancouver disc jockey, Emmons has his own half-hour show on the CTV network, Funny Farm.

Jo-Anne Worley is the vivacious and bouncy comedienne who starred alongside Dick Martin and Dan Rowan for years on the Laugh-In show. Although this will be her first British Columbia Telethon, Jo-Anne has performed on many shows of this type in other cities.

The 20-hour Telethon will include many Vancouver-based entertainers of international repute such as The Irish Rovers; Leon Bibb; Ann Mortifee — in her first Telethon appearance; flautist Paul Horn. Other familiar names appearing on the show will include all 400 pounds of "Big" Miller; Monica Parker from the Funny Farm, singer Gloria Kay from the Tommy Hunter Show and Loretta Marlene. Also entertaining will be the Ormiston Entertainers; Vancouver Firemen's Band; Dal Richards' Orchestra and other Vancouver rock groups, singers and dancers.

Last year Variety Club Tent 47's Telethon proceeds of $680,000 made it the largest in the world. It was also one of the very few where proceeds exceeded the pledges ($670,350) made during the Telethon. The money was used to complete the Berwick Mental Retardation Institute.

Proceeds from the 1976 Telethon will be used to construct a $1 million Diagnostic Centre for Children's Hospital. Chief Barker Jack Barnett said Variety Club hopes to start construction of the first phase of the new facilities immediately after the Telethon. The present Diagnostic Centre, housed in make-shift quarters, consists of converted three storey older houses and serves children from all over British Columbia.

In addition to Variety's Mental Retardation Institute, Variety Club's other major projects are the Variety Farm at Ladner and the Variety's Treatment Centre for Children at Surrey.

The Club's work is made possible because of public contributions, the Provincial Government and companies from all over British Columbia who have come to recognize the effort made by volunteers so that administrative expenses are not deducted from money which is donated. Variety's members — about 180 in number — not only are involved in the construction of major projects, but they also donate Sunshine Coaches to various children's organizations and supply equipment to help the blind, the deaf, the physically handicapped and the underprivileged children of British Columbia.

CONNORS DEFENDS TITLE

Live coverage of the National Indoor Tennis Championship singles and doubles finals from Salisbury, Maryland, will air February 22 at 1 p.m. on Public TV 9.

Forty-six players from fifteen countries will be on hand to try to stop Jimmy Connors from winning his fourth straight National Indoor Open title.

Among them are Dennis Ralston, Former David Cup team captain; Ilie Nastase, currently ranked number seven in the world; Vitas Gerulaitis, ranked number four, America's most improved player of the year; Ashok Amritraj from India; and Sandy Mayer, who was the 1973 intercollegiate champion.

The tournament is the second oldest tennis event in the United States and was first played in New York City in 1889. It remained in New York for the next sixty-five years with the exception of 1940 when it was played in Oklahoma City. For the last twelve it has been played in Salibury, Maryland.

In addition to Cononors and Nastase, the list of past winners of the event includes William Tilden, Jack Dramer, Poncho Gonzales and Chuck McKinley.

Today's Movies

Call Me Genius (xx), on 12 at 10:30 a.m. A 1961 slapstick comedy about a bored office worker who decides to become an artist, starring Tony Hancock and George Saunders.

Hand in Hand, on 7 at 11 a.m. No rating available on this 1961 British-made drama that tells the gentle and heartwarming story of a romance between a Roman Catholic boy and a Jewish girl, starring Philip Needs, Loretta Parry, John Gregson and Dame Sybil Thorndyke.

The Sun Also Rises (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. An overlong, but well-acted 1957 film version of Ernest Hemingway's novel about a group of American expatriates living in post-First World War Europe, starring Tyrone Power, Ava Gardner, Mel Ferrer, Errol Flynn and Eddie Albert. (This film may be pre-empted for basketball.)

Stalag 17 (xxxx), on 5 at 1. William Holden won an Oscar for his excellent performance in this superb 1953 film rendering of the sardonic stage play about a group of GIs in a German POW camp. Very well directed by Billy Wilder and co-starring Don Taylor, Otto Preminger and Peter Graves.

Paranoic, on 11 at 1:30. No rating available on this 1963 British-made thriller about madness and murder in a gloomy Gothic mansion, starring Oliver Reed and Janette Scott.

Return of the Seven (x), on 11 at 3. An unsatisfactory 1966 sequel to the 1960 Magnificent Seven, which was in turn based on the classic Japanese film Seven Samurai. Of the original cast, only Yul Brynner repeats his role as the head of a group of adventurers coming to the aid of Mexican peasants.

The Lone Ranger, on 5 at 3. A 1956 western based on the old TV series and starring Clayton Moore as the masked hero and Jay Silverheels as his Indian friend Tonto.

Anzio (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A fabricated 1968 account of the decisive Second World War battle of the Italian campaign about a small group of soldiers trapped behind German lines. Cast includes Robert Mitchum (struggling in a bad role as a war correspondent, Peter Falk, Arthur Kennedy and Robert Ryan.

How Sweet It Is, on 6 at 7 p.m. No rating available on this 1968 comedy about a married couple involved in extramarital complications on the Italian Riviera, starring James Garner and Debbie Reynolds.

The Last Detail (xxxx), on 4 at 9. Jack Nicholson and newcomer Randy Quaid earned Oscar nominations for their superb performances in this excellent 1973 adult comedy-drama about the adventures of two sailors assigned to escort a court-martialed young prisoner to jail. The two men plan to deposit their charge promptly and relax and enjoy the extra five days' leave that comes with the duty — but before long the young man in their charge begins to make his mark on them and they on him. (Although recommended, this film does come with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.)

Northwest Passage (xxx), on 12 at 9. Historical adventure fans will enjoy this epic 1940 story of the heroic Major Rogers who led his men on a perilous search for the Northwest Passage. Directed by King Vidor and starring Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, Walter Brennan and Ruth Hussey.

Shaft (xx), on 12 at 11:20. An Academy Award-winning score by Isaac Hayes highlights this 1971 crime-drama starring Richard Roundtree as a black detective hired to rescue the kidnapped daughter of a Harlem carcotics czar.

Three Came Home (xxx), on 4 at 11:30. Claudette Colbert, Patrick Knowles and Sessue Hayakawa star in this hard-hitting and well-acted 1950 drama about the tortures undergone by captive women in a Second World War Japanese internment camp.

The Deadly Bees, on 5 at 11:30. No rating available on this 1967 British-made thriller about the residents of a coastal island terrorized by killer bees. Cast is unfamiliar.

A Man Could Get Killed (xx), on 2 at 11:45. A 1966 spoof of espionage films about an American businessman in Portugal who is mistaken for a secret agent, played for laughs by a competent cast that includes Tony Franciosa, James Garner, Melina Mercouri and Sandra Dee.

The Adventurers (x), on 6 at 11:50 and 8 at midnight. A trashy, sex-filled novel by Harold Robbins served as the basis for this equally trashy 1970 adventure-drama about the jet set and a Latin American country torn by revolution, starring Yugoslav actor Bekim Fehmiu (trying to breathe life into an impossible character), Candice Bergen and Olivia de Havilland.

Banning (x), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Robert Wagner, Jill St. John and James Farentino star in this 1967 soap opera about the country club set and the young men who earn their living as golf pros.

TELEVISION PREMIERE — Randy Quaid, Jack Nicholson and Otis Young (l. to r.) are three sailors — one bound for prison, the other two taking him there — who have one last fling before the cell doors close in The Last Detail, making its television premiere on Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Today's Highlights

Progressive Conservative Leadership Convention, on 2 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and 5 to 6 p.m. on Channels 6 and 8. Today's coverage includes the balloting (each ballot is expected to take approximately 90 minutes); the new leader's acceptance speech; and if time permits, an evaluation of the new party head by political commentators and analysts.

McCloud, on 5 at 9. A blizzard-whipped, strike-bound New York City presents a series of problems for McCloud (series star Dennis Weaver) in tonight's episode of this crime-drama series. Guest cast includes Gig Young, Bernadette Peters and Della Reese. (2 hrs.)

Window on the World, on 8 at 9. Britain: Who Killed the Woodcock? — a study of Great Britain's economic plight. The program uses on-location film and interviews to probe the causes of the nation's industrial decline, the state of the welfare state and the frustrations of millions of unemployed skilled and unskilled workers. (60 mins.)

Marketplace, on 2 and 6 at 10. Tonight's program includes a report on safety checks for used cars; and a look at upholstery that is difficult to clean being used in the manufacture of furniture. (30 mins.)

Bill Moyers' Journal, on 9 at 10. Host Bill Moyers' talks about the relevance of the American Revolution for the 1970s with historian Henry Steele Commanger; pollster George Gallup; and philosophy professor Robert Solomon. (60 mins.)

SUNDAY MOVIE CLASSIC — Spencer Tracy and Robert Young head a large cast in the 1940 adventure classic, Northwest Passage, about a perilous expedition west during the French and Indian wars, to be telecast at 9 p.m. on Channel 12.

CBC-TV Presents AcclaimedDrama

Albert Finney and Rachel Roberts, two of Britain's outstanding and internationally-known actors, star in Alpha Beta, a drama of a marriage break-up, on CBC-TV, Wednesday, Feb. 25, at 8:30 p.m.

The one-hour drama special was filmed in England, adapted by the playwright from A. E. Whitehead's West End (London) stage hit.

Alpha Beta is a two-character drama, and Finney an Miss Roberts are its original stars. It was first seen on the stage of the Royal Court Threatre in London, where it had a highly successful run. This film version of TV was seen in England on BBC-2, and critics were almost unanimous in their praise.

"Alpha Beta is three scenes from an unhappy marriage (over a period of 10 years), brilliantly performed by Albert Finney and Rachel Roberts," wrote Albert Watson in the Newcastle evening Chronicle. He also said, "This film makes three rounds with Muhammed Ali seem like a tea party."

TV cirtic, The Spectator: "Alpha Beta . . . was more moving than anything I've seen on the box for a long time."

The play is set in the modest home of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot (played by Finney and Miss Roberts). Mr. Elliott is a Liverpool dock employee. They have two children, who are never seen in the play.

E. A. Whitehead, who wrote the play, and the screenplay for this TV version, describes the theme: "It's about a man who thinks he is rebelling against marriage as a social institution, but in fact he is rebelling against the 'pair bond' as a way of living. In fact, the theme leaves open the question of whether his rebellion is valid, because it is terribly difficult for an adult male or female in our society to live without forming a 'pair bond'. Mr. Elliot discovers this when he leaves his wife and starts to 'pair up' all over again . . . and again. But Mrs. Elliot comes near to tragedy by adhering rigidly to the doctrine that the only fulfilment for man and woman is within the discipline and bonds ofmarriage. Mrs. Elliot finds to her life-long cost that no kind of imposed discipline ever works out indefinitely . . .Mr. Elliot finds that 'freedom' can be even more wearing and destructive than formal bonds . . ."

Alpha Beta is directed for television, as it was for the stage, by Anthony Page. Art director (for both stage and TV): Alan Tagg. Producer: Timothy Burrill. Made on location in England near Kingston (London), Alpha Beta is a Memorial Enterprises Production.

COUSTEAU CHASES WHALES

Whales: Giants of the Deep, with adventurous and unprecendented underwater filming of finback, sperm and killer whales, will be presented on The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau, on the ABC Television Network, Sunday, Feb. 22, 7-8 p.m.

Cousteau and the men of the Calypso pursued the great sea mammals in the Indian Ocean off the island of Madagascar, and off the coast of Baja, California.

In many ways the program recalls the days when whaling ships sailed out of Newport and New Bedford. Again is heard the cry, "Thar she blows!" (only now in French: "Elle souffle!") And once more there is the lowering of boats and determined men with harpoons poised.

This time, however, the harpoons are not instruments of death. Instead, the weapon harmlessly pierces the mammal's skin to plant small tags which will enable oceanauts to trace the migration of whales.

In recalling the filming of the finback whale underwater in the open sea, an unprecedented feat, Cousteau said, "As the whale broached, the splash and waves made the water around us turbulent. The roar of the spout was like a steam engine. The sense was one of a man about to go into battle — blind, numb and fearful.

Among the scientific experiments conducted is one that measures the reaction of the killer whale to sound. The test was conducted at Marine World, in the San Francisco Bay area. There, in a training tank with a killer whale, chief diver Albert Falco plays back the sounds made by another killer whale, and observes the reaction.

Britain — A Crumbling Economy

—30,000 homeless in London are squatters in ancient houses. Riots erupt as council bailiffs evict welfare families from condemned homes.

—Skilled and unskilled labor forces march through the streets with banners waving, voices chanting. There are as many unemployed in Britain today as in the 30s.

—Rich landowners have lost their power, but cling tenaciously to their wealth.

—The balance of trade fluctuates — British industry cannot compete with foreign markets — and the pound sterling is unstable.

In Window On The World: Britain: Who Shot the Woodcock?, Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 8, Producer Richard Thomas examines the overpowering problems which threaten Britain today . . . from the homeless and hungry, to the unemployed, to the idle rich. Through the eyes of a Liverpool dockworker, a wealthy family of industrialists, an engineer, and London squatters, Thomas chronicles the agonies of a country which once ruled one quarter of the world.

What does the future hold?

It began with an Empire which for two centuries sustained its own momentum. The industries were mostly family-owned firms with a captive market overseas. There was pride in those days in the British product and British craftsmanship. But few saw the need to expand, or to update equipment, or to explore and implement new technology. In the 50s, Britain woke up to find that she was outstripped in the world market by competition from the United States, Japan and Germany. Without these markets, trade and manufacturing declined. Thousands joined the dole queues, or moved to government jobs. Because government collected its revenue from failing industries, the burden of supporting these displaced people became heavier.

By the 60s, the government recognized the need for advanced technology and competitive production, and began to force mergers among the small outdated family firms, and provided capital to stimulate productivity. Other industries were nationalized — the beginnings of a mixed economy.

Britain's class system plays a large part in the discontent. As the working class is forever frustrated through unemployment to obtain the things they see available to the rich upper classes, they become outraged and extremist. The Joe Byrne family in Liverpool works on the docks. Trade union politics are loudly debated at dinner-time . . . "It isn't enough any more to get a slice of the national cake . . . or a few crumbs . . . what we want is to take over the bakery!" The roots of working class resentment can be seen clearly in Liverpool. A symbol of their anger is the eight-mile wall surrounding the Docks. It was built to protect the nation's goods which are owned by the rich. The laborers are allowed in only to work. They see society in terms of "the owners and the owned."

The Sir Edward Thompson family is at the other end of the economic and social spectrum. Industrialists from the Midlands, they lost their family firm through mergers, but have retained their wealth through tangible investments — antiques, land, paintings. At family dinners, no talk of business or politics is heard at the table — just social small talk.

Technical and social revolution was promised in the 60s, and young men trained eagerly for engineering jobs which would upgrade the lower classes. The Beatles, from the industrial centre of Liverpool, were a symbol of the working class making good. Dave Woods, an electronics/telecommunications engineer, was one of these whom the revolution failed. Automation soon displaced even skilled labor, but production increased too slowly to give them jobs again. At the same time, government, as primary buyer, reneged on promises and contracts. Woods, along with others, found their jobs threatened.

Sue Bower and Ann Hamilton are squatters in London, totally dependent on a government which can't help them because the money isn't coming in fast enough from declining industry. Hamilton is homeless, and Bower is hungry as she and her child try to live on $27 a week welfare.

"The British economy is sick," observed Richard Thomas. "Britain has government participation at all levels in business and society. It does not follow that government meddling is the cause of the sickness. The dependence on Empire, the failure to plan investment, amateur management at the factory level, and union job preservation, have been the root causes of Britain's decline. Now, unless manufacturing industry improves, Britain won't be able to afford public housing, state health care, and state schools.

"State-owned corporations are a fundamental part of the British economy," Thomas continued. "More and more planning of the national economy, of British society, seems certain. Planning is the key to Britain's recovery. If one has faith that a democracy can govern itself, there is no reason to believe it cannot plan for itself."

Today's Movies

Brother John, on 8 at 12:45. No rating available on this 1971 drama starring Sidney Poitier as a mystical loner who returns to his Alabama home town at a time of racial violence. Will Geer and Bradford Dillman co-star.

Stage to Thunder Rock (x), on 11 at 1. Routine 1964 western starring Barry Sullivan and Scott Brady.

A Tattered Web, on 5 at 3:30. No rating available on this 1971 made-for-TV crime-drama about a policeman trying to conceal the accidental killing of his son-in-law's mistress, starring Lloyd Bridges, Broderick Crawford and Frank Converse.

On Her Majesty's Secret Service (xx), on 4 at 8:30. (Part 2). Conclusion of this 1969 James Bond thriller starring George Lazenby in the role of agent 007.

Wild and Wonderful (x), on 11 at 9. An uninspiring lightweight 1964 romantic comedy about a cognac-drinking French poodle who brings a young couple together, starring Tony Curtis and Christine Kaufmann. The script is corny but the dog is cute.

The New Healers, on 12 at 10. No rating available on this 1972 made-for-TV drama about a team of paramedics trying to win the confidence of a rural community, starring Robert Foxworth, Kate Jackson, Burgess Meredith and William Windom.

Message to My Daughter, on 12 at 11:30. No rating available on this 1973 made-for-TV drama about a confused teenager who finds emotional strength from a set of tapes recorded years before by her now-deceased mother. Cast includes Bonnie Bedelia, Martin Sheen, Neva Patterson and Mark Slade.

I'd Rather Be Rich (xx), on 2 at midnight. Sandra Dee, Robert Goulet and Maurice Chevalier star in this lightweight but amusing 1964 comedy about an heiress who has to supply a fake fiance on a visit to her supposedly dying grandfather. Chevalier, as usual, is delightful.

Punch and Jody (xx), on 6 at midnight. A 1974 made-for-TV drama about an itinerant circus roustabout who is suddenly saddled with a teenage daughter he never knew he had, starring Glenn Ford, Ruth Roman and Pam Griffin as the young girl.

A Very Missing Person (xx), on 8 at midnight. Eve Arden plays spinster sleuth Hildegarde Withers, a character created by Edna May Oliver in 1930s mysteries, in this 1972 made-for-TV murder yarn. The plot finds her wearing atrocious hats, picking locks with a hatpin and warding off assailants by swinging her handbag, in an attempt to locate "a very missing person".

Powder River (x), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Routine 1953 western about a small-town marshall out to revenge a friend's murder, starring Rory Calhoun and Cameron Mitchell.

In Old California (xx), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. An old fashioned 1942 John Wayne western adventure about a Boston druggist who heads West during the Gold Rush.

Upstairs and Downstairs (xxx), on 8 at 1:30. An entertaining 1959 British-made comedy about an affluent young couple with a servant problem, starring Michael Craig and Anne Heywood. A funny script highlighted with a charming performance by Mylene Demongeot as a Swedish domestic.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN — Lynda Day George's not-so-happy marriage to George Maharis means trouble ahead in part 5 of the 12½-hour special television adaptation or Irwin Shaw's epic novel, Rich Man, Poor Man, to be telecast on Monday at 10 p.m. on Channel 4

Rare Photos Preserve Indian Heritage

Dramatic footage of the Northwest Kwakiutl Indians shot in 1914 is just one of the rare items seen in The Shadow Catcher, returning to Public TV 9, February 23 at 8:30 p.m. This story of photographer Edward S. Curtis' struggle to preserve a record of American Indian traditions features many photographs and movies rarely seen by the general public.

At the turn of the century, convinced that Indian civilization was doomed by the North American rush toward industrialization, Curtis began the most extensive and ambitious anthropological photographic project ever undertaken. For 34 years, he worked obsessively, determined not to compromise Indian thought or custom: he recorded 10,000 songs, took 40,000 pictures, shot many 35-mm. films, and collected countless original Indian tales and stories. This work, collected in 20 volumes of written text and 20 portfolios of photogravure plates, has been available only in rare book collections until this program.

Called the Shadow Catcher by Indians who realized his dependence on light and shadow, Curtis began photographing Indians in the Puget Sound area in 1896. Later, after excursions through the Southwest, Curtis returned to this region to stage his only dramatic film — The Land of the Headhunters. For this movie Curtis employed Kwakiutl Indians, directing them to act out ancestral ceremonies which, in 1914, had already been dropped from their lives. The romantic look backwards premiered at Seattle's Moore Theatre, but it was not a financial success.

Excerpts from this film are included in Edward S. Curtis: The Shadow Catcher, along with interviews with some of the Indians who appeared in it. In retracing the film's action — as in recreating other phases of Curtis' life — the modern camera crew manages to make the viewer feel right in the midst of the action as if history were repeating itself.

In trying to duplicate many of Curtis' efforts, Robert Fiore, associate producer and cinematographer for Edward S. Curtis: The Shadow Catcher, discovered that many Indians today have the same uneasiness toward the cameras as they did in Curtis' day. As A. D. Coleman noted in his study of Curtis, "while the Indians Curtis photographed have overcome their original superstition regarding the camera, these superstitions had been replaced, quite sensibly, with suspicion of the motives of the photographers who persisted in streaming through their world and invading their privacy." This suspicion had not decreased over the years.

But when Curtis' efforts are juxtaposed to Fiore's, the two media seem to meld into each other. As Archer Winston says in the New York Post, "The picture shifts from ancient footage that hides behind the grain and fog of early days, brightens with modern color, and blazes with Indian faces of unforgettable majesty."

The mixture is held together by Donald Sutherland's narration of Curtis' letters and journals. Sutherland read the script straight through, in an effort to simulate the actual sound of an aging voice.

Do Not Adjust Your Color Set

Don't check with your neighborhood television repairman when the color of main titles fades to black and white on MASH, Tuesday, Feb. 24 (9-9:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network (Channel 7).

There's nothing wrong with your set: the show was filmed in black and white to establish documentary flavor in another of the innovations this season by co-producers Gene Reynolds and Larry Gelbart.

"We wanted to end the season on a high, artistically and creatively," explains Gelbart. "And the simplicity of the idea by Gene (Reynolds) struck me as a fresh way to show what MASH is all about.

The premise has a stateside television commentator, played by well-known West Coast news broadcaster Clete Roberts, interviewing most of the 4077th hospital's principal figures on a variety of subjects, from "Why do you think you're in Korea?" to "How do you like the members of your surgical team?"

The show's unique because of the broad spectrum of responses to what are both humorous and serious questions and the fact that a large share of the questions and answers were improvised during the filming.

"Alan Alda (Hawkeye) and the other actors had taped answers to some prepared questions before the episode was shot," says Gelbart.

"And with that storyline nucleus to work from, we devised more in-depth interview ideas as we went along."

"Clete Roberts, who had wide experience as a war correspondent in Korea, drew on his expertise to contribute many of the inquiries. And the often spontaneous answers, within the context of the individual characters, provide a strong insight into MASH and an Edward R. Murrow-type interview feeling to the show."

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT is the theme of this week's Mike Douglas Show, featuring special co-hosts Fred Astaire (above) and Gene Kelly, to be telecast this Monday through Friday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 12 and 6:30 p.m. on 7.

Today's Movies

Before Winter Comes, on 8 at 12:45. No rating available on this 1969 British-made drama about life in an Austrian border camp for displaced persons in 1945, starring David Niven, Israeli actor Topol and Anna Karina.

Red, Hot and Blue (xx), on 11 at 1. A pleasant 1949 comedy about an ambitious young actress who unwittingly accepts career help from gangsters, starring Betty Hutton, Victor Mature, June Havoc and William Demarest.

The Gun and the Pulpit (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Former evangelist-turned-actor Marjoe Gortner is well suited for the colorful role of a gunslinger posing as a preacher to escape a posse in this 1974 western. The script is full of clever comedy touches and a supporting cast of pros (Slim Pickins, Estelle Parsons) adds interest.

King Kong (xxxx), on 12 at 7. Film buffs and fans of imaginative special effects will enjoy this 1933 classic thriller about a giant ape captured and displayed in New York — with tragic results. Critics still laud this film as a marvel of technical achievement and consider it to be one of the most bizarre and fantastic movies ever made. Cast includes Robert Armstrong, Fay Wray and Bruce Cabot.

The Thomas Crown Affair (xxxx), on 11 at 9. Steve McQueen and Faye Dunaway star in this entertaining 1968 comedy-drama about a millionaire who masterminds a bank heist for fun and profit, and a dogged lady insurance investigator who's hot on his trail. They eventually meet and fall in love in what has to be one of the sexiest chess games ever filmed.

Attack and Retreat (xx), on 2 at midnight. A lavishly produced but ultimately disappointing 1964 Second World War story about a group of Italian soldiers and their experiences on the Russian front. Peter Falk and Arthur Kennedy head a large European supporting cast.

The Failing of Raymond (xx), on 6 at midnight. Jane Wyman and Dean Stockwell star in this 1971 made-for-TV thriller about a schoolteacher planning retirement whose plans are altered by a vengeance-seeking former student she failed years before.

The Invasion of Carol Enders, on 4 at midnight. No rating available on this recently-made-for-TV suspense drama about a nurse possessed by the spirit of a woman believed to have been murdered. Cast includes Meridith Baxter and Christopher Connelly.

The Deadly Bees, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1967 British-made thriller about the inhabitants of a coastal island terrorized by killer insects. The cast is unfamiliar.

Dirty Dingus Magee, on 12 at midnight. No rating available on this 1970 satire on Hollywood westerns, starring Frank Sinatra as a sorry outlaw who always comes out with the short end of the stick. A competent supporting cast includes George Kennedy, Anne Jackson and Jack Elam.

Three Into Two Won't Go (xxx), on 7 at 1 a.m. A 1969 British-made version of that familiar story of the man approaching forty who finds his marriage diffucult and seeks ego fulfillment with a co-operative young lady. This version is better than most thanks to the talents of Rod Steiger and Claire Bloom (they were Mr. and Mrs. at the time) and the young English actress Judy Geeson.

Huk (xx), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. Routine 1956 jungle adventure about a Manilla plantation owner trying to protect his property from Communist guerillas, starring George Montgomery and Mona Freeman.

Hostile Guns (xx), on 8 at 1:45. Standard 1967 western about a marshall and his young deputy attempting to transport four prisoners across Texas to the penitentiary, starring George Montgomery, Tab Hunter and Yvonne de Carlo.

THE THOMAS CROWN AFFAIR — an entertaining 1968 comedy-drama about a multi-millionaire who executes a million-dollar bank robbery just for the fun of it and the pretty insurance investigator who almost upsets his plans, will be telecast on Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 11. The movie stars Steve McQueen and Faye Dunaway (above).

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-hosts Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly welcome among today's guests Edward Asner of the Mary Tyler Moore Show, singing group the Manhattan Transfer and the Lennon Sisters. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 7. Acclaimed black actress Ruby Dee joins the program tonight for Voices from the South, a reading of poems by Southern authors including Tennessee Williams. (30 mins.)

M-A-S-H, on 7 at 9. Don't adjust your color set for tonight's episode — it has been filmed in black and white and takes the form of interviews conducted by a visiting TV commentator from the U.S. (played by real-life newsman Clete Roberts), providing a documentary flavor and improvised dialogue. (30 mins.)

Tuesday at Nine, on Cable 10 at 9 p.m. Wishing to honor his contributions to the community of Victoria, the Community Planning Association of Canada presents an interview with David Anderson, former Liberal MLA for the Victoria riding. There will be an opportunity for viewers to phone in their questions and comments. (60 mins.)

Soundstage, on 9 at 10. The big band sound as tonight's program reunites bandleader Stan Kenton with his former vocalists Anita O'Day and the Four Freshmen. (60 mins.)

New Hampshire Primary, on 4, 5 and 7 at 11:30. Program regularly scheduled for this time slot have been pushed back a half-hour for this special summary of the results of the New Hampshire primary. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at midnight. Among Johnny's guests tonight is Freddie Prinze of Chico and the Man. (90 mins.)

Today's Movies

Death Is a Woman (x), on 8 at 12:45. A mediocre 1966 British-made crime-drama about an undercover agent in Malta who becomes the chief suspect in a murder. Cast is unfamiliar.

The Redhead and the Cowboy (xx), on 11 at 1. Glen Ford and Rhonda Fleming star in this 1950 Civil War western about a cowboy who becomes involved with a beautiful Southern Spy.

Anna and the King of Siam (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. (Part 1) Rex Harrison and Irene Dunne star in this entertaining 1946 true-life drama about a turn-of-the-century English governness who undertakes the education of a Siamese king's large family. This is the non-musical version with Miss Dunne and Mr. Harrison in top form. (Shown in two parts, with the conclusion tomorrow). Recommended.

The Lindergh Kidnapping Case, on 8 at 8. An unpreviewed 1976 movie that dramatizes what was termed, "the crime of the century" — the 1932 kidnapping and murder of aviation hero Charles Lindbergh's infant son. This powerful 3-hour film takes a semi-documentary approach, chronicling the frustrating kidnap investigation, the ultimate capture of suspect Bruno Richard Hauptmann, his trial and its aftermath. An excellent cast includes Cliff De Young as Lindbergh, Anthony Hopkins as Hauptmann, Sian Barbara Allen as Anne Morrow Lindbergh, and Joseph Cotten, Walter Pidgeon and Martin Balsam.

Strange Homecoming (xx), on 4 at 11:30. Robert Culp, Glen Campbell and Barbara Anderson star in this 1974 made-for-TV drama about a hometown hero who returns for a visit to his delighted family, who are completely unaware of the fact that their golden boy is really a jewel thief and a murderer running from the law.

Kelly's Heroes (xx), on 12 at 11:30. (Part 1). A clumsy 1970 copy of The Dirty Dozen about a group of misfit soldiers on a dangerous mission into a German-occupied town to rob a bank. Cast includes Clint Eastwood, Don Rickles and Donald Sutherland. (This movie is shown in two parts, with the conclusion tomorrow at the same time.)

I Wake Up Screaming (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Betty Grable, Victor Mature and Carol Landis star in this well-produced 1941 mystery about the murder of a cafe entertainer, and the pursuit of her killer. The best performance is by Laird Cregar as a psychopathic cop with an insane love for the dead girl.

Hit Lady (xx), on 6 at midnight. Yvette Mimieux wrote and stars in this 1974 made-for-TV crime-drama about a beautiful lady artist who works part-time as a ruthless syndicate assassin. Supporting cast includes Dick Rambo and Joseph Campanella.

In Harm's Way (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. A 1965 three-and-a-half-hour saga that takes a melodramatic look into the loves of Navy men and their women caught up in the chaos of Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor. Despite an impressive all-star cast (John Wayne, Kirk Douglas, Dana Andrews, Fanchot Tone, Henry Fonda, George Kennedy, Patricia Neal, etc. etc.), the story fails to register a strong impact, such as that found in, for example, From Here to Eternity, which had a similar setting and plot.

All the Young Men (xx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Sidney Poitier, Alan Ladd and James Darren star in this 1960 Korean War story about racial integration and prejudice in the Marine Corps.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-hosts Fred Astair and Gene Kelly welcome Henry Fonda and Ben Vareen to today's show. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7.)

Prison: Pro and Con, on 4 at 7. Law and prison reform experts who attended the recent crime conference held in Seattle, give their views on the future of prisons and possible alternative methods of correction in this special report. (30 mins.)

Sports of the XXI Olympiad, on 2 at 7:30. Archery takes the spotlight in tonight's program which includes film footage of some of Canada's and the world's best competitors in the sport. (30 mins.)

This Land, on 2 and 6 at 8. Tonight's program, entitled Time of the Cree, focuses on an archeological expedition into Northern Manitoba to piece together the society and culture of past Indian civilizations before a proposed hydroelectric development floods the area. (30 mins.)

Drama Special, on 2 and 6 at 8:30. Two of Britain's best actors, Albert Finney and Rachel Roberts, repeat their critically-acclaimed 1972 stage roles in Alpha Beta, a powerful two-character play that spans nine years in the lives of an unhappy and uncompromising couple. (See Page 5 for more details on this drama special.) (60 mins.)

Great Performances, on 9 at 9. A ballet special featuring the acclaimed artistry of choreographer George Balanchine and his famed New York City Ballet. The company performs three of Balanchine's works, including Serenade, a 1934 work; and Tarantella, an exuberant 1964 piece based on Neapolitan folk dances, performed by Edward Villella and Patricia McBride. (60 mins.)

Concerto, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. A concert with Canadian cellist Dennis Brott who performs selections by Saint-Saens and Faure. (30 mins.)

Tall Ships are Coming, on 9 at 10. A documentary special focusing on the crews and sailing ships competing in a transatlantic race this summer. They are seen in training in the North Sea and the English Channel, and parading in Amsterdam. (30 mins.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 10:30. Acclaimed black actress Ruby Dee joins the program for a reading of works by Southern authors, including Tennessee Williams. (30 mins.)

Today's Movies

The Beguiled (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Somewhat lurid 1971 tale, set during the Civil War about a wounded Union soldier who takes refuge at a girls' school run by a pair of sex-starved spinsters. Some of the sexy and brutal scenes have been cut for TV, but the film, starring Clint Eastwood and Geraldine Page, still remains unpleasant.

Escape from Zahrain (x), on 11 at 1. Yul Brynner and the late Sal Mineo star in this routine 1963 adventure about prisoners escaping across a Middle East desert.

Anna and the King of Siam (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. Conclusion of this excellent 1946 drama starring Rex Harrison and Irene Dunne. (See Wednesday movies for more detail.)

The Lindbergh Kidnapping Case, on 5 at 8. An unpreviewed 1976 movie that dramatizes what was termed, "the crime of the century"—the 1932 kidnapping and murder of aviation hero Charles Lindbergh's infant son. This powerful 3-hour film takes a semi-documentary approach, chronicling the frustrating kidnap investigation, the ultimate capture of suspect Bruno Richard Hauptmann, his trial and its aftermath. An excellent cast includes Cliff De Young as Lindbergh, Anthony Hopkins as Hauptmann, Sian Barbara Allen as Anne Morrow Lindbergh, and Joseph Cotton, Walter Pidgeon and Martin Balsam.

My Sweet Charlie (xxx), on 11 at 9. Although this 1970 award-winning TV movie is based on a highly contrived situation (an unusual meeting and friendship between a pregnant, runaway Southern farm girl and a black fugitive), the characters are so superbly played by Emmy-winner Patty Duke and Al Freeman, that you will find yourself accepting the improbable situation and stay with it until the end.

Where It's At (xx), on 12 at 9:30. A lightweight but fairly entertaining 1969 comedy about a father-and-son relationship which at best is offbeat. Dad is David Janssen who runs a Las Vegas casino, and his son is a college student with a different set of moral and ethical standards. A parade of Las Vegas types make up the supporting cast but Brenda Vaccaro's slightly dumb secretary is flawless.

Kelly's Heroes (xx), on 12 at 11:30. Conclusion of this 1970 adventure about a group of renegade Second World War soldiers on a daring bank robbery on Nazi-occupied territory. Cast includes Clint Eastwood and Don Rickles.

Night Creatures, on 2 at midnight. No rating available on this 1962 British-made thriller about smuggling and ghosts in an 18th-century village, starring Peter Cushing and Oliver Reed.

The Deadly Dream (x), on 6 at midnight. Lloyd Bridges and Janet Leigh star in this 1971 made-for-TV formula thriller about a man whose nightmares about being pursued by killers become a reality.

The Screaming Woman (xx), on 8 at midnight. A short story by Ray Bradbury served as the basis for this 1972 suspense chiller about a woman, who was once a mental patient, frantically trying to prove someone is buried alive on her estate. Olivia de Havilland and Joseph Cotton star.

The Sunshine Patriot (xxx), on 7 at 12:30. A fascinating 1968 espionage drama about an experienced spy trapped behind the iron curtain, who cleverly frames an American businessman and switches identities with him. The improbable plot is superbly handled by Cliff Robertson in a dual role, Dina Merrill, and Luther Adler. Recommended for late night viewers.

Revolt at Fort Laramie (x), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. Routine 1957 western with an unfamiliar cast.

Come Back, Little Sheba (xxxx), on 8 at 1:30 a.m. Shirley Booth won an Oscar for her superb performance in this excellent Inge's Broadway hit about the unhappy marriage between a slatternly housewife and an unstable alcoholic. TV's Hazel fans will be reminded what a moving actress Miss Booth can be.

IT'S NO LAUGHING MATTER when Lt. Mike Stone (Karl Malden) goes undercover as a clown in an effort to catch the murderer responsible for the deaths of several top circus performers, in the next episode of The Streets of San Francisco, Thursday at 8 p.m. on 8, and 9 p.m. on 4.

Today's Highlights

New Comedy Series Stars One of Britain's Best

A funny thing happened to CBC-TV on the way to decorum: a British comedy institution, long of face but short on frowns, recently joined the variety department roster as resident sit-comic and star of his own series The Frankie Howerd Show. And it's all just for laughs.

Yes, it finally happened: a series featuring the injured innocence and ribald humor of one of Britain's top comics makes its debut Feb. 26 and will be on view each Thursday at 9 p.m. on CBC-TV for 13 weeks.

Canadians may never be the same again; at least, not their TV viewing habits, as this is a series like no other. The one thing that can be said for sure is that it's definitely not your average sitcom. The Frankie Howerd Show is different from anything usually seen on TV in North America. It's bawdy, risque and hilariously entertaining.

Away from the harsh and disturbing world of nightly cops and doctors who rule the roost on current TV fare everywhere (guns blazing and scalpels carving their predictable paths) beckon the hapless but winning ways of Francis Howerd Esq.

On-screen he is the master of blustering, bawdy laughmakers, forever rivalling the late Robert Newton in eye-rolling and lively leering, but once out of camera range, the private persona is almost a total contrast, a living paradox of a man.

Introspective and friendly, Howerd's sad-eyed bloodhound looks belie the flexibility of one of the greatest intuitive wags in stage and screen comedy over the past quarter of a century. Indeed, his forte, mischievously evident throughout this new series, is the ad lib and the gag-laden send-up. The show reveals him to be extremely adept at the difficult art of carefully rehearsed spontaneity, and the absurd side. These talents have been put to mirthful use over the years in everything from the wacky Carry On films, Up Pompeii TV series an and Charley's Aunt to the satirical That Was The Week That Was, A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum, and six Royal Variety Command Performances. Howerd's affair with Canadian audiences is about to begin.

FRANKIE HOWERD stars in his own CBC-TV comedy series, premiering on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 2.

His comedy spans Britain, Australia, Broadway, and recent appearances in Canada, and in this series he's going to bring a new spring to the step of Canadian television comedy. But, for all his throaty irreverence, Howerd balks at making an off-color remark. In fact, despite his much-publicized reputation as a naughty comic, he has often purged BBC and film scripts of true-blue humor. Then he will do a turn-about and explain sagely "There's nothing shameful about the naked human body: It's what we do with it that counts," leaving audiences to contemplate that one . . .

Written, created and nurtured by Bill Lynn and Jerry O'Flanagan, the Frankie Howerd Show is directed by double Emmy award-winning Norman Campbell, and co-produced by Lynn and Campbell. The scripts are consistently tailored to Howerd's contortionist personality, and are laced with triple entendres and verbal eccentricities which Howerd allows to roll from his rubberband mouth in exasperated disbelief, as if amazed to think that some people could actually misinterpret him so wilfully . . . and so often.

Constructed, too, to the Howerd style, the format revolves around the escapades that a job-hunting but work-hating British immigrant gets involved in from his Canadian boarding-house home base. The storyline bobs and weaves with him as he encounters and deflates a wide variety of familiar institutions, including Canada Manpower, computer dating, home decorators and funeral homes, among many others. Bouncing laughs off Howerd and each other is a superb supporting team of experienced Canadian actors who share Mrs. Otterby's boarding house: the regular cast of Jack Duffy, Ruth Springford, Gary Files and Peggy Mahon. Character actors from across Canada appear each week in guest roles. Taping of the half-hour shows commenced Jan. 31 in CBC-TV's Studio 7 in Toronto, before a live audience.

Howerd describes himself as often feeling "like a rabbit in the lights of a car" when he's in front of the cameras, and there he put his finger on it, as his twitching uncertainty transmits itself to the viewer. When he comes on, a mass of nerves and expostulations, audiences cannot tell if it is real or feigned, and soon they'll be collapsing with laughter indiscriminately, from Inuvik to Islington and back. This is the stuff of which Howerd's special humor is made: He plays himself always, with a distinctive comedic touch derived from an overt impression of panic.

"It's not a question of jokes, you see, no, not jokes at all," he says, referring to the serious business of comedy. "Jokes are all too often about other people, other things. No — a real comedian does it — he IS it; he himself becomes a joke."

MANAGEMENT MANIPULATION

In accord with the general business philosophy, Japanese managers pursue the highest profit margins for their companies with a spirit of dedication and discipline — the spirit of the Samurai warrior. Young executives of the Bank of Tokyo Sogo take part in compulsory military training under Army Officers who instruct business cadets looking for white collar work. The barrack room is the way to the boardroom for these future generals in the battle for trade.

"But Japanese regimentation, once so criticized by North Americans, is now being widely copied," reports Correspondent Michael Maclear — on Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 8. "Our minds and bodies are being maipulated by the bosses in the push to new extremes in the race for greater profits."

North American companies now tell newly-hired recruits to behave, act and think alike Western management ruthlessly adapted this group mentality with a policy of conform or else, while Japanese companies traditionally assure their workers lifetime employment.

Chris Osmers, president of Northwest Drug Company, explains this fairly typical approach, "I don't care about the personal lives of my employees except if they have a slow, rutted personal life. Then, they are liable to carry that into business."

So Osmers, like many other business leaders, looks to the scores of mood-altering, mind-bending behavioral programs offered with the promise of better profit margins. Now, he orders his subordinates to go and climb a mountain — part of an Outward Bound survival course.

"The philosophy," said Maclear, "is if his manager doesn't drop, profits won't. They are risking their lives to retain their jobs."

For others in the management game, there are such programs as Transcendental Meditation, taken up by thousands encouraged by their bosses; or think-tank training; or Transactional Analysis; and if management is looking for something different, there are retraining programs that teach concepts of split-brain functioning — linking right-brained creative and left-brained logical processes anew.

"For most people, the use of so-called behavior modification techniques, whether mental or physical, are probably unnerving, perhaps unethical and certainly unrewarding."

PBS Thanks B.C. Viewers

"The response has been fantastic," exclaimed KCTS/9's director of programming and operations Burnill Clark as he surveyed the ballots submitted for Public TV 9's Viewers' Choice 1976. "We have received sacks of mail from members, regular and occasional KCTS/9 viewers, all anxious to state what kinds of programs they want to see on television. We are grateful to all those people in Washington and British Columbia who took the time to participate."

Many people also took the time to write their personal comments, and to share their enthusiasm about having a chance to say something about program purchases:

—In this household we always switch to 9 for good programs whether it be music, plays or general interest. Your choices have certainly been of a high quality. I hope Viewers' Choice is just as good.—R.C., Vancouver, B.C.

—Leave it to Channel 9 to give its viewing audience a chance to vote on what programs it wishes to see next season. . . . On commercial television the viewer has forced down his eyeballs commercials and programs which have been produced solely to keep the viewer from turning off his set and thus missing the all-important commercials. Now, thanks to Channel 9, the viewer not only has programming that is made to please him and not any advertiser, but he can show his support for the shows he wishes to see in the future. . . . M.N., Kent, Wash.

—The whole idea of letting us see and advise in the choice of new and current programming is great and I enjoyed the "game" very much.—P.R., Seattle.

—What an excellent idea, giving us a chance to take part in choosing what we'd like to see. . . . I watched the whole 3½ hours, and enjoyed every minute of it, although of course I enjoyed some programs more than others.—M.E., Victoria, B.C.

The ballot responses now are being fed into a computer by KCTS/9 research director Pat Harris. The results will be analysed, and then used by Mr. Clark as one guideline for making purchases from the Station Program Co-operative. In the SPC, those series which receive the necessary financial commitment from PBS member stations are made part of the regular PBS schedule. However, only those stations which have paid for the program have the right to air it.

Public TV 9 will announce its purchases for the fall schedule upon the completion of the SPC voting process.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-hosts Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly are on hand for a studio cast party to celebrate the end of production of the film, That's Entertainment, Part 2. Their guests include Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Debbie Reynolds, Russ Tamblyn, Jane Powell, Nanette Fabray, Merle Oberon, Mickey Rooney, Kathryn Grayson and Howard Keel. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7.)

Homemade TV, on 2 and 6 at 4:30. Debut of a new children's show geared to the 10-14 age group. The series demonstrates theatre in a workshop setting, by using theatrical exercises and imagination games. (30 mins.)

Documentary Special, on 4 at 7. Dat Moi is the Vietnamese word for 'new life' and it's also the title of this special which examines the problems faced by Vietnamese refugees who have resettled in the United States, particularly in Washington state. The program focuses on one family of three generations and the adjustments they must make. (30 mins.)

Columbo, on 8 at 7:30. The world of magic is the theme for tonight's mystery as Columbo (series star Peter Falk) tries to trap a magician-murderer who was seen on stage at the time of the crime. Guest cast includes Jack Cassidy, Bob Dishy, Robert Loggia and Nehemiah Persoff. (2 hrs.)

Sara, on 12 at 8. Sara's (series star Brenda Vaccaro) star pupil, a girl with some knowledge of medicine, is the only one left to tend to the stricken victims of their epidemic-swept town, in tonight's episode of this new western series. (60 mins.)

Wayne and Shuster, on 2 and 6 at 9. Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster host this good-natured, comic salute to the U.S. Bicentennial. Skits include a spoof of the classic American western, Gunfight at the O.K. Corral; Miss America beauty pageants and the Boston Tea Party. (60 mins.)

Dean Martin Special, on 5 at 9. A two-hour comedy roast of Dean Martin, who becomes the good-natured target for a barrage of verbal attacks from host Don Rickles and a huge list of showbiz, sports and political celebrities, including John Wayne, Joe Namath, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Sen. Barry Goldwater, Orson Welles, Bob Hope, Gene Kelly, Muhammad Ali, Angie Dickinson, Rich Little, Rowan and Martin, joey Bishop and Ruth Buzzi. (2 hrs.)

Ellery Queen, on 6 at 10. Tonight's episode finds an old college chum of Ellery's (series star Jim Hutton) on trial for murder, with his future hinging on whether an anonymous woman witness will come forward and testify. Guests cast includes the late Sal Mineo, Cesar Romero, Michael Parks and Michael Constantine. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Among Johnny's guests tonight are Carl Reiner, Bobby Goldsboro and comedian Ed Bluestone. (90 mins.)

Today's Movies

Three Hats for Lisa, on 8 at 12:45. No rating available on this 1965 British-made musical-comedy about the misadventures of a movie star seeking a holiday from publicity, starring Sophie Hardy and Joe Brown.

Here Come the Girls (xx), on 11 at 1. Bob Hope, Tony Martin and Rosemary Clooney star in this lightweight 1953 musical about Broadway show people.

Congratulations, It's a Boy! (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A typical 1971 made-for-TV copmedy-drama about a swinging, immature bachelor who suddenly discovers he is the father of a 17-year-old son. A competent cast includes Bill Bixby and Diane Baker.

Griffin and Phoenix: A Love Story, on 4 at 9. An unpreviewed 1976 made-for-television romantic melodrama about two star-crossed lovers — he a married, but separated middle-aged man dying of cancer, and she, a young woman still reeling from an unhappy love affair and the knowledge that she too has only a few months to live. Their wild and happy love affair is played to its inevitable end, with believable performances by Peter Falk and Jill Clayburgh.

Shark's Treasure, on 7 at 9. No rating available on this 1975 adventure about a hunt for buried Spanish gold in the shark-infested waters of the Caribbean, starring Cornel Wilde. (This film may be delayed or pre-empted by the previous basketball game.)

Horror Rises from the Tomb, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1970 Spanish-made horror melodrama.

Nicholas and Alexandra (xxx), on 12 at 9. A huge, sprawling, uneven but interesting 1971 historical drama about the 14-year period leading up to the Russian Revolution. The story focuses on the royal couple, well played by Michael Jayston and Janet Suzman (who earned an Oscar nomination), and is highlighted by spectacular sets and marvelous, award-winning costumes. (It's also 3½ hours long.)

War-Gods of the Deep (xx), on 6 at midnight. A story by Edgar Allen Poe inspired this 1965 fantasy about a "City in the Sea" off England's Cornish coast. Cast includes Vincent Price.

Crucible of Terror, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1972 British-made mystery about murder and the occult. Cast is unfamiliar.

Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man, on 7 at 12:30. Horror film fans will enjoy this 1943 thriller, starring Lon Chaney and Bela Lugosi.

Harper (xxx), on 12 at 12:35 a.m. An entertaining, fast-paced 1966 mystery starring Paul Newman in the title role of a Bogart-type detective probing the disappearance of a millionaire. A great supporting cast includes Lauren Bacall, Julie Harris, Robert Wagner and Janet Leigh. Tonight's best bet for late viewers.

Requiem for a Gunfighter (x), on 2 at 1 a.m. Threadbare 1965 western about a gunman who assumes the identity of a dead judge and proceeds to clean up a lawless town. Cast includes Rod Cameron and Stephen McNally.

Frankenstein's Bloody Terror (x), on 6 at 1:45. A 1968 low-budget Spanish-made thriller.

The Skull, on 8 at 2 a.m. No rating available on this 1965 British-made thriller about the revenge-seeking skull of the notorious Marquis de Sade on a murderous rampage. Cast includes Peter Cushing.

FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE — Peter Falk and Jill Clayburgh star in Griffin and Phoenix: A Love Story, an intense drama about two incurably ill people who meet and fall in love, ignoring time and consequences, to be telecast at 9 p.m. on Channel 4.

Pat Barclay

I remember once writing somewhere that the dominant theme of Canadian literature was not Survival at all (as Margaret Atwood and others have claimed), but the Search for Respectability. I was being facetious, of course and as usual, but only partly. Because if you stop for a moment to think about it, what life's goal is dearer to the heart of any ordinary Canadian than total and unqualified respectability? No wonder our writers spend so much of their time making their characters strive after it, when they're not stomping on it with all the pent-up vengeance of freshly-liberated slaves.

One writer in particular was actually a real-life martyr to our fierce Canadian passion for respectability; her name was L. M. Montgomery, and her behind-the-facade story has just been told by Mollie Gillen in a biography titled The Wheel of Things. (Ms. Gillen is herself well known to Canadian women readers as a former associate editor of Chatelaine. Born and educated in Australia, she has written four other books besides this one and is presently at work on a sixth.)

Ms. Gillen's prose in The Wheel of Things is gratifyingly workman-like and clear. Her attitude to her subject is interested, yet professionally detached, and she is not afraid of making value judgments. On the debit side, her arrangement of her material according to subject occasionally throws the reader into a chronological quandary. And it's annoying to find a tantalizing subject only touched on, then re-introduced pages later, like a good meal interrupted by a telephone call and rewarmed for later consumption. Finally, the availability of Montgomery's voluminous correspondence after 1902 (when she was 28) has naturally led Ms. Gillen into a study of her subject's adulthood. Yet because L. M. Montgomery wrote largely about children, her own childhood and formative years are of great — and still unsatisfied — interest.

Ms. Gillen's title is taken from a letter L. M. Montgomery wrote in 1923: "I am as usual very busy — too busy. I haven't time to savor life at all — caught in the "wheel of things" as Kim says. If I were not a coward I think I could better matters. But I am."

Too idealistic and sensitive ever to be completely happy in an imperfect world, too dutiful (and trained to respectability) ever to make a serious attempt to escape it, Maud Montgomery was destined by her own nature and upbringing to a life of nervous frustration, illumined by only occasional moments of intense joy. By the time she was 30 she had learned well that her "realms of cloudland" and the real world "clashed hopelessly and irreconcilably," and must be kept apart lest the ideal world of her imagination be destroyed. When she fell deeply in love with a man she believed to be a "disastrous" marriage prospect, she apparently gave up forever the idea of marrying for love, as if such an idea belonged only to "cloudland." "After all, this is a practical world and marriage must share in its practicalities," she wrote in 1907. Four years later she married Ewan Montgomery, a Presbyterian minister, and lived if not disastrously, then certainly disappointingly, ever after.

Circumstances were not kind to L. M. Montgomery; she spent 11 of her adult years caring for her grandmother; her husband suffered recurring bouts of melancholia which had to be concealed from his ever-vigilant congregations, and her life spanned two world wars, or would have if she had not died in 1943, apparently from stress aggravated by the strain of war on top of everything else.

On the other hand, there were fine moments, too. One of these was the tremendous public response to the publication of Anne of Green Gables in 1907, culminating in a personal letter of appreciation from Mark Twain. (He called Anne "the dearest, and most lovable child in fiction since the immortal Alice".) In its first five years in print, Anne ran through 32 editions, and has since been translated into more than 15 languages, made into a film twice, adapted for TV by the BBC and produced as a musical in cities as diverse as Charlottetown, Osaka and Nairobi.) In all, Maud Montgomery wrote 25 books, nearly all of which are still in print and likely to be, as long as human beings remain susceptible to her particular kind of magic.

What exactly did Montgomery have? I wondered the other day, remembering my own lore of P.E.I.-strewn past. So I sat down with a copy of Emily of New Moon, because it is the most autobiographical of them all. Four or five hours and a dozen handkerchiefs later, I can only say that she has it still, even for a hardened book reviewer like me. Dark secrets, romantic pasts, high drama and loving descriptions of the beauties of P.E.I., combined with comic Irishmen, incorrigible WASPS, lively repartee and children's lib — well, all I can say is, any reader, of any age, could do a whole lot worse.

When Prejudice was Flaunted

By JULIAN REID

The Battle of Burrard Inlet, as one Vancouver newspaper dubbed it, took place in the early morning of Sunday, July 19, 1914. A sea-borne task-force of 160 policemen and "special" immigration officers, commanded by Inspector Malcolm Reid of the Canadian Immigration Department, was repulsed by more than 300 angry Sikhs, passengers aboard the Japanese tramp-steamer Komagata Maru.

The Sikhs, all would-be immigrants, were scheduled for deportation under the terms of a federal order-in-council designed to exclude East Indians from the country. The legality of this order was questionable; its popularity was not.

These were the years of the Asiatic Exclusion League, when racial prejudice was flaunted proudly and newspapers cheerfully conjured up fearful images of an East Indian "brown tide" to match the equally fearful "yellow peril." The day the Komagata Maru arrived, B.C.'s premier, Sir Robert McBride, explained to a Times of London correspondent: "To admit Orientals in large numbers would mean in the end the extinction of the white people, and we always have in mind the necessity of keeping this a white man's country."

A White Man's Country is the story of the Komagata Maru incident — a minor but damning footnote to Canadian history. The ship was chartered in Hong Kong by Gurdit Singh, a Sikh profiteer of dubious honesty but considerable persuasive power. Convinced he could secure them entry into Canada, some 376 East Indians booked passage — mostly British Army veterans, and all but 17 Sikhs.

In the event, only 22 were allowed to land — those who could legally claim Canadian domicile. The rest, insisted Malcolm Reid, the Immigration Department's stubbornly martinettish Vancouver supervisor, must be shipped back to Asia. The equally stubborn Gurdit Singh defied him, appealing for support to the Vancouver Sikh community and to the Ghadr, a secret terrorist organization sworn "to drive the British from India by guerrilla warfare tactics," to be conducted in all parts of the Empire where Sikhs had settled.

Despite the temporary setback of the Battle of Burrard Inlet, Inspector Reid emerged the eventual victor. On Thursday, July 23, under the threatening guns of the cruiser HMCS Rainbow, the Komagata Maru upped anchor for the Orient. Her 354 restive passengers were still aboard.

The first two-thirds of Ted Ferguson's book are devoted to this melodramatic tale of threat and counterthreat, of shameless misrepresentation in the press and self-righteous racist spewings. It is an absorbing story, well and fairly told.

The remaining chapters are split between the subsequent outbreak of violent feuding in the Vancouver Sikh community, for the most part only peripherally-connected with the Komagata Maru affair, and a rather sketchy account of the passengers' sad fate after their unwilling return to India. Finally, an "Aftermath" discusses more recent anti-Asiatic outbreaks in B.C.

None of this connects very neatly with the preceding narrative; the result is that, after the Komagata Maru sails, the book seems to lose its way. Ferguson would have been better advised to stick to the one episode. As it stands, the inherent drama of his tale is largely dissipated in the course of its annoyingly diffuse triple anticlimax.

Improbable But Fun

Readers yearn for a true change of pace once in a while, a novel or book that is totally different. This reviewer found his answer in Brothers Keepers, a totally improbable novel by any standards.

In simple terms, the book is about a monastery in the heart of downtown Manhattan, and Brother Benedict a young monk. Although the monastery has survived many decades, progress in the form of a development company is moving in on it.

Brother Benedict's foray into the real world in attempt to change the destiny of himself and his fellow brothers is a charming story peopled by some charming characters.

Greatness it lacks totally, but Brothers Keepers is a change of pace that intrigued and entertained at least one reader.—F.C.B.

One Leader on the Way up And Another in eclipse

It's difficult to conceive of two more disparate political figures than Margaret Thatcher and Willy Brandt. Poles apart temperamentally and ideologically, West Germany's ex-chancellor is in temporary eclipse while the ebullient Mrs. Thatcher, leader of the Conservative Party and of the official Opposition, is poised to make a quantum leap into the history books as Britain's first woman prime minister.

Whether their paths will ever cross is debatable but, thanks to two newly-published biographies, they are momentarily rubbing spines on bookstore shelves.

Brandt's past is largely shrouded in mystery but what is known is colorful, tragic and fascinating.

The illegitimate son of a farmhand's daughter, Martha Frahm, Brandt (he changed his name to outwit his Nazi pursuers) spent a lonely and deprived childhood. His only friend was his mother's father, a radical Marxist, who supplied the boy with hatred of the bourgeoisie in place of games and fairy tales.

In his teens Brandt became a Marxist hothead and bully-boy. He fought Nazis in the streets, and in print as an immature journalist. After Hitler's ascendancy to power he discreetly exiled himself in Norway, married a Norwegian girl, took out Norwegian citizenship and continued his anti-Nazi activities.

Later, he fled to neutral Sweden, then returned to Germany after the war and again became a German citizen. His impeccable anti-Nazi record made him acceptable as mayor of beleagured Berlin (the old Marxist was no lover of the Soviet Union) and later leader of the West German socialist party and so on to the chancellorship.

This is a gross over-simplification of Brandt's career. His climb to supreme power was fraught with difficulties, dauntlessly taken in stride by the moody, mercurial, introverted, charismatic figure who was blessed with the twin abilities to deal with in-party rivalries and to sway large crowds with telling rhetoric.

His weaknesses were an inability to socialize and a total disinterest in administration, the latter a weakness which led to his downfall. More and more he left the office work to his trusted confidential aide, Gunter Guillaume, the faceless East German refugee who was later uncovered as a Russian spy. Brandt, Nobel Peace Prize winner and strongman of Europe — and onetime fervent Marxist — promptly resigned.

It's a classic example of the Phaeton complex — the inevitable fiery death following the attempt to steer the Sun in an unconscious bid to impress the unknown father.

What a challenge for a great biographer — undoubtedly one will eventually accept it. Meanwhile, we are offered a pathetic travesty of the real thing by Viola Herms Drath, Washington correspondent for a German newspaper.

Washington is the home ground for some of the best reporters in the business. It is also the happy hunting ground of character-assassins. Ms. Drath, lacking the ability of the former, has aped the techniques of the latter.

Determined to sensationalize, she has rummaged around in the muck and gleefully presents the tragic Brandt as a "swinger" with the emphasis on heavy drinking and womanizing.

Power is the ultimate aphrodisiac, as the homely Henry Kissinger used to philosophize, and Brandt has been guilty of errant behavior (although nothing compared to Lloyd George and, apparently, John Kennedy, to name but two) but that's no reason to allow this aspect to overshadow a great man's solid achievements.

Apart from this, Ms. Drath's book is a literary disaster. It's totally disorganized and reads as if she had made copious notes, shuffled them, dropped them and not bothered to re-arrange them before writing. I confess to skipping in hopes of finding something of substance, and finally giving up in disgust.

BRANDT . . . mangled

THATCHER . . . eulogized

It's a damn shame, Willy Brandt has suffered enough without being mangled by this bitchy, political Louella Parsons.

In his biography of Margaret Thatcher, Russell Lewis takes the opposite tack to Ms. Drath: he presents her, both in her personal and political life, as a paragon sans pareil; there is not even the hint of a teeny weeny wart. Such pretended perfection invites suspicion and is therefore self-defeating.

The portrait is even more suspect when one learns that Lewis, until recently director of the British Conservative Political Centre, is a professional Thatcher image-maker. In other words this biography is a flack's eulogy to his client.

All the same this samefully biased, one-dimensional presentation at least has the virtue of presenting Mrs. Thatcher's life in chronological order.

The carefully selected facts about her early life, her education, and her poltical activities are facts and they do help to explain how this formidable woman has rocketed to the top and calmly and confidently awaits the next election which, all things being equal, will bring her the prime ministership.

She's certainly more than just a pretty face. The grocer's daughter, who acquired an Oxford accent along with a degree in chemsitry, and later a law degree, has cultivated an ultra-feminine exterior to mask her steel-hard core. This Greer Garson-looking woman disarms her opponents with charm, then flays them with statistics, logic and devastating wit.

She is uncompromisingly Conservative; compared to some of her utterances John Diefenbaker sounds like a pinko. Her parliamentary performances like her personal appearance, are faultless. Thanks to political acumen and effective homework she has so far avoided a wrong move.

Every move, and every word, is calculated for maximum effect. What's more, she is usually three moves ahead of her adversaries. I'm certain she has already planned the decor for the moment when she takes up residence in 10 Downing Street.

When that time comes she will perhaps rate the attention of a good biographer. Meanwhile, as an introduction to this vibrant woman, Russell Sewis' piece of flummery will have to do.

Last of the Marquis-Style Leaders in the Fur Trade

By JAMES McCOOK

Before their amalgamation in 1821 the Hudson's Bay Company and North West Company engaged in violent competition. Bay men kept more voluminous journals and an impression has been created by them that the Nor'westers were reckless rogues who could not be considered gentlemen. Mrs. Campbell in Northwest to the Sea — she surely could have found a more exciting title than that — gives the other side of the story and makes the leading Nor'wester, William McGillivray (1764-1825), appear as chivalrous as the best the Bay could produce.

He was handsome, agreeable and imaginative. Scottish clannishness and the interest of his uncle, Simon McTavish, ensured that he entered the fur trade as a clerk with expectations of advancement.

Young McGillivray did well when appointed to frontier posts, sharing in the excitement of buffalo hunts and starting a family with an Indian or Metis woman in what is now Saskatchewan. With her, he had twin sons and a daughter and, while he married a Scottish girl later, he never disowned his western children and gave them assistance.

McGillivray sought good relations with his Bay competitors during his years on the frontier; others might be bullies waving swords or firing pistols but he preferred peaceful associations and it worked so well that he was made a partner in his uncle's firm and, when he was 35, chief superintendent of the North West Company.

In McGillivray's days of power, the Nor'westers pushed to the west of the mountains and their Simon Fraser plunged down the Fraser River looking for a commercial route to the ocean. In 1803, the North West and XY Companies took into the west enough spirits to make 100,000 gallons of "Blackfoot milk," rum diluted with water. The Nor'wester made acid comments about the "saints in parliament" who would reduce the trade in liquor and appeared less concerned about the damage done Indians than the Bay people.

McGILLIVRAY
. . . chivalrous

At times McGillivray felt that his company, with all its venturesomeness, was trapped between the Hudson's Bay Company in the North and the Jacob Astor fur traders in the South. His mercantile empire extended from the Saguenay River in Quebec to the Arctic and Pacific oceans and he was rich enough to build a mansion in Montreal and indulge himself in buying good paintings.

NORTHWEST TO THE SEA: A Biography of William McGillivray. Clarke, Irwin. $12.50.

Outside factors distracted him. Britain's war with the French and the 1812 war with the Americans disturbed the normal courses of business. Lord Selkirk, who bought Hudson's Bay stock and sent settlers to the Red River Colony, was anathema to the Nor'westers and McGillivray became entangled in the antagonisms and lawsuits that followed the Seven Oaks Massacre of 1816 at Winnipeg when North West Company supporters killed Governor Semple and 20 others friendly to the H.B.C.

There were weary days when debts began to accumulate and economies worthy of the penny-pinching H.B.C. were urged on Nor'westers. Talks about union of the companies began and when it was carried through McGillivray found he had no actual voice in the direction of the new concern.

McGillivray was the last of the marquis-like leaders of the trade, a notable host, a free-spender, ready to share in the occasional revels in Montreal and at Fort William, named in his honor. He assisted exploration, visualized trade across the Pacific, attempted to be fair in his dealings and, when the North West Company came to its end, said with satisfaction that the business had been "closed with honor."

Mrs. Campbell has done an impressive amount of research to obtain a rounded picture of a rare personality.
